VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — The future for corn growers appears as equally promising as it does bleak, according to experts at a Thursday Pennsylvania Master Corn Growers Conference held at the Penn Harris Convention Center.

Ethanol production and biodegradeable plastics are expected to increase corn consumption and will help to eliminate surplus production in the United States, according to Dave Drennan, field services director for the National Corn Growers Association.

However, corn producers may not be able to create the current surpluses of crop in the future. The 1990s appear to be filled with regulation and restriction on the use of toxic chemicals for weed control, said Dr. Marshal McGlamery, professor of weed science at the University of Illinois.

"We been working for the past three or four years on new industrial uses for corn," Drennan said.

"Even though half the crop is still consumed by the livestock sector, we still got a 1.6- to 2-billion (bushel) surplus projected, so we've been looking at industrial uses like ethanol in gasoline . . . and biodegrable plastics made with a six percent corn starch mix," Drennan said.

According to Drennan, the mix of ethanol to gasoline has several benefits to society at large. He said a 10 percent increases the octane rating of gasoline and helps to eliminate carbon monoxide in automotive exhaust, a major cause of air pollution.

Drennan added that there are eleven cities in Pennsylvania that already exeed federal clean air standards for limits for air pollution, directly attributable to automotive exhaust and calls for a stronger clean air bill, currently under federal consideration could affect the situation more.

The biodegradeable plastics made with corn starch reduces the time required by bacteria to decompose plastic bags. Normal plastic bags are rated to take anywhere from 300 to 400 years to decompose in a landfill. On the other hand, it is expected to take only from three to five years for the plastic-corn starch product to be broken down.

"I've got over 30-some companies making some kind of product. We've got two companies making biodegradeable diapers right now . . . and several companies are making the trash bags, kitchen bags . . . a couple of biobags are being sold in Illinois . . . several of the companies here today are going to biodegradeable plastic for their literature bags and several seed companies are using

Pennsylvania DHIA Reports Progress

EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — DHIA is not just testing milk samples anymore. In fact, according to Clyde Robinson, state Dairy Herd Improvement Association president, the mission of DHIA is to "provide records, information services, consulting services and products that are accurate, reliable, innovative and competitively priced to assist agriculture producers in the successful management of their herds."

Robinson opened the second annual meeting of the state corporation here Thursday, by commending the delegates, directors and management for their help to take the message of reorganization back to the local districts.

"Last year, I asked you to tell your local association about the merits of reorganization," Robinson said. "Thanks for your cooperation. You did your job well."

"Pennsylvania DHIA is big business with a three million dollar budget," Robinson said. "Your board has invested 1.2 million dollars in capital investments since 1986 which now gives us the best equipped and most efficient milk testing laboratory and the best data entry control system in the United States.

Robinson said the date of October 1992 is set as the final date for all local mergers into the state corporation because we needed to "get off our hunkers and get the show on the road."

Improved service, better trained supervisors with longer service records and better communication with members were listed as reasons for the reorganization.

"But remember," Robinson said. "this decision goes back for every member to have the opportunity for his or her vote either by voice or a proxy vote."

Vaccinate Early, Prevent Exposure Are Keys To Controlling Avian Reovirus

ANDY ANDREWS

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — "If we had 100 percent biosecurity, we wouldn't have any disease problems in poultry," said Dr. Bill Gerencer, director of poultry health for Avian Farms at Poultry Progress Day at the Farm and Home Center on Thursday.

Gerencer was one of 10 specialists invited to speak to about 150 poultry farmers and industry representatives at the seminar sponsored by the Penn State extension and the Lancaster County Poultry Association.

Gerencer identified some of the ways poultry diseases, particularly the respiratory enteric orphan virus (Reovirus) problem, are spread and ways to combat them.

His "stop the bug at the barn door" approach provides a list line of defense against reovirus and other types of diseases affecting poultry breeder and broiler flocks.

Vaccinate Stock

Ways to handle the problem, according to Gerencer, involve two methods: prevent exposure and vaccinate broilers and breeder

Energy Corrected Milk Awards Given At Maryland Convention

ABERDEEN, MD — In the past, milk records have been adjusted for 3.5% fat-corrected in solids (FCM) to give credit to cows that produced milk high in solids. According to Dr. Lee Majeskie, University of Maryland, Extension 0459, that formula did not give any credit to the protein composition of milk.

"This year our Production Awards are being based on Energy Corrected Milk (ECM)," Majeskie said. "The Energy Corrected Milk formula takes into account protein and fat when adjusting the milk for components."

The ECM Formula is 7.2 x lbs. protein + 12.95 x lbs. fat + .327 x lbs. milk.

This Formula should help to identify cows that produce high volumes of milk solids. The 1989 Maryland Holstein Production awards presented at the state convention recently are as follows:

REMSBURG SALE SERVICE TROPHY, (Jr 2 yr. old), Owner: Kimstead Farm, Centreville - Kimstead Mandigo Veronicia - 28, 152 ECM.

New York Eggs
March 1, 1990

Prices continued to trend higher on larger sizes while holding unchanged on mediums. Trade sentiment though cautious was mostly steady to fully steady. Cartoned egg demand was generally no better than fair but expected to improve as retail promotions hit the media and first of the month monies stimulate some additional consumer buying interest. Supplies were usually in balance with current trade needs.

Delmarva Broiler Fryer Market
March 1, 1990

Movement of ready to cook whole fryers was very light and buyers showed little interest in additional product. Supplies were somewhat irregular and ranged close to fully adequate. Less than trucklot asking prices were unchanged to lower at 61-72 cents. Live supplies were adequate. Average live weights were lighter than desired. Today's processing schedules were moderately heavy. The trade sentiment was barely steady at best. In the parts complex, supplies of cutlets, legs, and leg quarters were balanced with demand, whole breasts were barely adequate, and wings varied from adequate to fully adequate.

National Egg Market
Feb. 28, 1990

The market tone was fully steady to firm as prices advanced in several markets. Cartoned egg demand was generally no better than fair with areas having attractive features stimulating some additional buying. On the other hand, loose egg demand was fairly good and product was often held for premiums. Breakers had difficulty in finding product in some areas and were aggressive in filling their needs.

N.E. Chicken Parts
March 1, 1990

Trucklot buying interest was light and unaggressive. Boned skinless breasts were closely balanced to fully adequate with traders noting price increases due more to the costs of whole breasts than to an active demand for supplies. Offerings of whole breasts were light and generally held with confidence; however, buyers reported disappointing demand from retail and food service held receipts to bare minimums and bid for new product at lower price levels. Legs and leg quarters were generally well balanced with some sellers asking higher prices for future deliveries. Wings were adequate at unchanged prices.

New York & Phila. Frozen Eggs
Feb. 27, 1990

Prices trended higher on all items. Trading activity was moderate but higher asking prices quickly tempered buyer interest. Raw materials were limited in their availability and costs continued to rise. Floor stocks were about adequate for current needs but further processors were wary about packing uncommitted product at present costs.

OPINION

A Change May Be In Order

The Pa. Farm Show Commission has asked the beef breed associations of the state cattle industry to get behind the Friday livestock youth sale at Farm Show. There should be no problem for these breeders to support the sale if they have some way to determine that the steers being sold are not all out-of-state purchases by our 4-H and FFA exhibitors. After all, Farm Show is supposed to be the display and exhibition of Pennsylvania farm products.

As you know, "club calves" sell for premium prices. It is not unusual for these project animals to require an initial investment of at least $1,000. As a result, we've seen fewer and fewer young people electing to show beef projects. Instead, they are opting for lambs, hogs and goats that require a lower initial investment.

How would having a breed steer show help alleviate this trend? It would allow each breed of steers to show against themselves and would give their owners a greater chance to take home some premium dollars. Many of the purebred breeders have children who would love to exhibit one of their own steers in the show with a chance to compete for the over-all grand championship, which would put purebred champion steers against the crossbred champion.

In addition, maybe we should have a Keystone Classic Steer Class which would be limited to only Pennsylvania-bred steers. Local calf sales, that average far below $1000 per head, could provide a marketplace for Pennsylvania breeders to sell calves to local youth at a price more reflective of the true beef market. Breeders could provide documentation that the calves they are consigning or selling by private treaty, as a youth project, are Pennsylvania bred and purebred. This type of class would help breeders promote the Farm Show Junior steer sale since they can assure potential buyers that these are Pennsylvania calves.

With the decrease in numbers of Farm Show steers being exhibited, it is apparent that something must change in order to keep young people interested in beef projects. The showring is beginning to reflect a trend toward over-rating the space between a steer's belly and the tan bark as the yardstick to determine champions. Today's standards are the reverse of the 1950s ideal which proliferated short, boxy steers for a decade or more. We don't advocate either extreme, but moderating toward a functional, lean beef animal that better reflects the marketplace in price and quality may be in order for the youth show and sale at the farm show.

Plan Location For Tobacco Planting

We have been saying for years that animal and poultry manure are an excellent fertilizer. It still is . . . but not for tobacco. Research shows us that animal manure, particularly dairy, increases the chlorine content of the tobacco; this chlorine content reduces the "burn" quality of the tobacco, and buyers frown on that. Locate the area that you plan to transplant your tobacco, and be sure not to apply any manure to that area this year. We suggest that a soil test be taken as an indicator of your present nutrient level. Then apply fertilizer at the recommended rates. The fertility program, recommended by Research Agronomists, for a 2,000 pound tobacco crop, should consist of 80 pounds of nitrogen, 35 pounds of phosphorus (P2O5) and 165 pounds of potash from either sulfate of potash or potassium nitrate. This fertility program will increase quality and reduce buyer resistance.

To Check Pastures

With the arrival of March and moderating temperatures, our thoughts quicken to early spring pastures. We need to be concerned with pastures and exercise lots along rural roads for discarded junk. Unfortunately, people still throw bags of waste from their cars into nearby fields. Some of the materials may be poisonous to livestock. Every producer should remove these materials before starting to graze. Also, in hay fields the materials should be removed before growth begins. Bottles and cans will damage equipment and be a threat to the livestock eating the hay. Be sure your animals are not poisoned through someone's carelessness.

To Be Aware Of Safe Drinking Water

Private water supply is just that -- private. The quality of your water supply is the responsibility of the homeowner or farmer. State laws do not require testing and regulatory agencies do not monitor the quality of private supplies. Therefore, the only way you, as a water supply owner, can be certain that the water is safe to drink is to have the water tested periodically. What Should Water Be Tested For? Comprehensive water analysis can be very costly. The following tests can determine the most common water quality concerns.

BACTERIA: A test for total coliform bacteria can determine contamination from septic tanks or manure.

NITRATES: Excessive levels of nitrates can be harmful to human infants and some animals, although the occurrence of this is rare level of 10 ppm nitrate nitrogen has been set for humans, for livestock. Water with a pH less than 6.5 or greater than 8.0 can cause plumbing problems. Corrosion shortens the life of the pipe and introduce dissolved metals into the water that can stain fixtures and pose a potential health hazard. To assure that a well supply is safe, it should be tested for bacteria and nitrate at least once a year, preferably during a wet spell. Only after accurate testing can a decision be made for treatment equipment.

Prune Fruit Trees

Whether you have a few or several hundred fruit trees, orchard pruning need not be delayed until spring. It may be started in colder weather. But it is a good practice to work on the hardiest trees first. Early pruning can involve some problems from winter injury, but in many cases an early start will be necessary to complete pruning of large orchards before spring. By confining early work to the older, hardier trees, fruit growers keep injury to a minimum. Apple and pear trees are the hardiest of the fruits, with plums and our cherries next in order. Because peach and sweet cherries are most tender, delay their pruning, particularly the younger trees, until late.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

IS CHRISTLIKE LOVE POSSIBLE?
March 4, 1990

Background Scripture:
John 15: 1-17.
Devotional Reading:
1 Corinthians 13: 1-13.

Have you ever thought about just how impossible it seems to live up to the command of Christ to "love one another as I have loved you"? Daily I am confronted by people to whom I find it difficult to be nice. Perhaps you experience much the same thing. How can we force ourselves to love the seemingly unlovable. How can we make ourselves feel differently than irritable or hostile? I have certainly had a lot of experience trying to feel and act differently. But, usually when I try, I do not succeed in loving, but only in hiding my true feelings. And the very reality of those feelings haunts me when I hear Christ saying: "This is my commandment, that you love one another as I have loved you" (John 15:12).

Jesus must have known how difficult it is for us to love other people. So, did he knowingly give us a commandment that we can't possibly obey? Did he set for us a standard that we cannot reach? Are the cards stacked against us so that we cannot sincerely obey that commandment?

RELATIONSHIPS

When I read John 15, however, I see a possible way through my dilemma — and I trust not mine alone. He does not begin with this hard commandment, but rather with the statement: "I am the true vine, and my Father is the vinedresser" (15:1). Jesus begins this discourse with some important truths about the relationship between the Father, the Son and the disciples.

Jesus uses an Old Testament image — Israel, the vine planted by God to be fruitful — to communicate the nature of the three-way relationship. Because Israel had failed to be fruitful, Jesus was now the "true vine" of God and the Father is as the vinedresser: the one who plants, nourishes, and cares for the vine. And the disciples are like the "branches" of the vine. "I am the vine, you are the branches" (John 15:5). The branches are important to the vine's fruitfulness, but without the vine itself the branches would be useless. Producing "fruit" without being attached to the vine would be as difficult as trying to love the unlovable on your own power alone.

ABIDE IN ME

Then he goes on to use another image: to abide. This word can mean to remain, to continue, to stay, to dwell, to reside, to wait and to endure. The word "abide," which is not commonly used in today's speech, indicates a close relationship that remains close regardless of what happens. There is a strong suggestion of perseverance on the part of the disciple and tender care on the part of the Christ.

This mystical relationship, then — of God with Christ, of Christ with us, and of us with each other — is the key to the commandment, for we cannot manage to "love one another" by the sheer power of our own will. Trying to love the seemingly "unlovable" on our power alone is about as unlikely as producing "fruit" without being attached to the vine. So, that which makes love possible to others around us is the closeness of the relationship we have with Christ within. On our own, we cannot do it, but if we live so close to Christ, we cannot help but find the power and inspiration to love even the most unlovable.

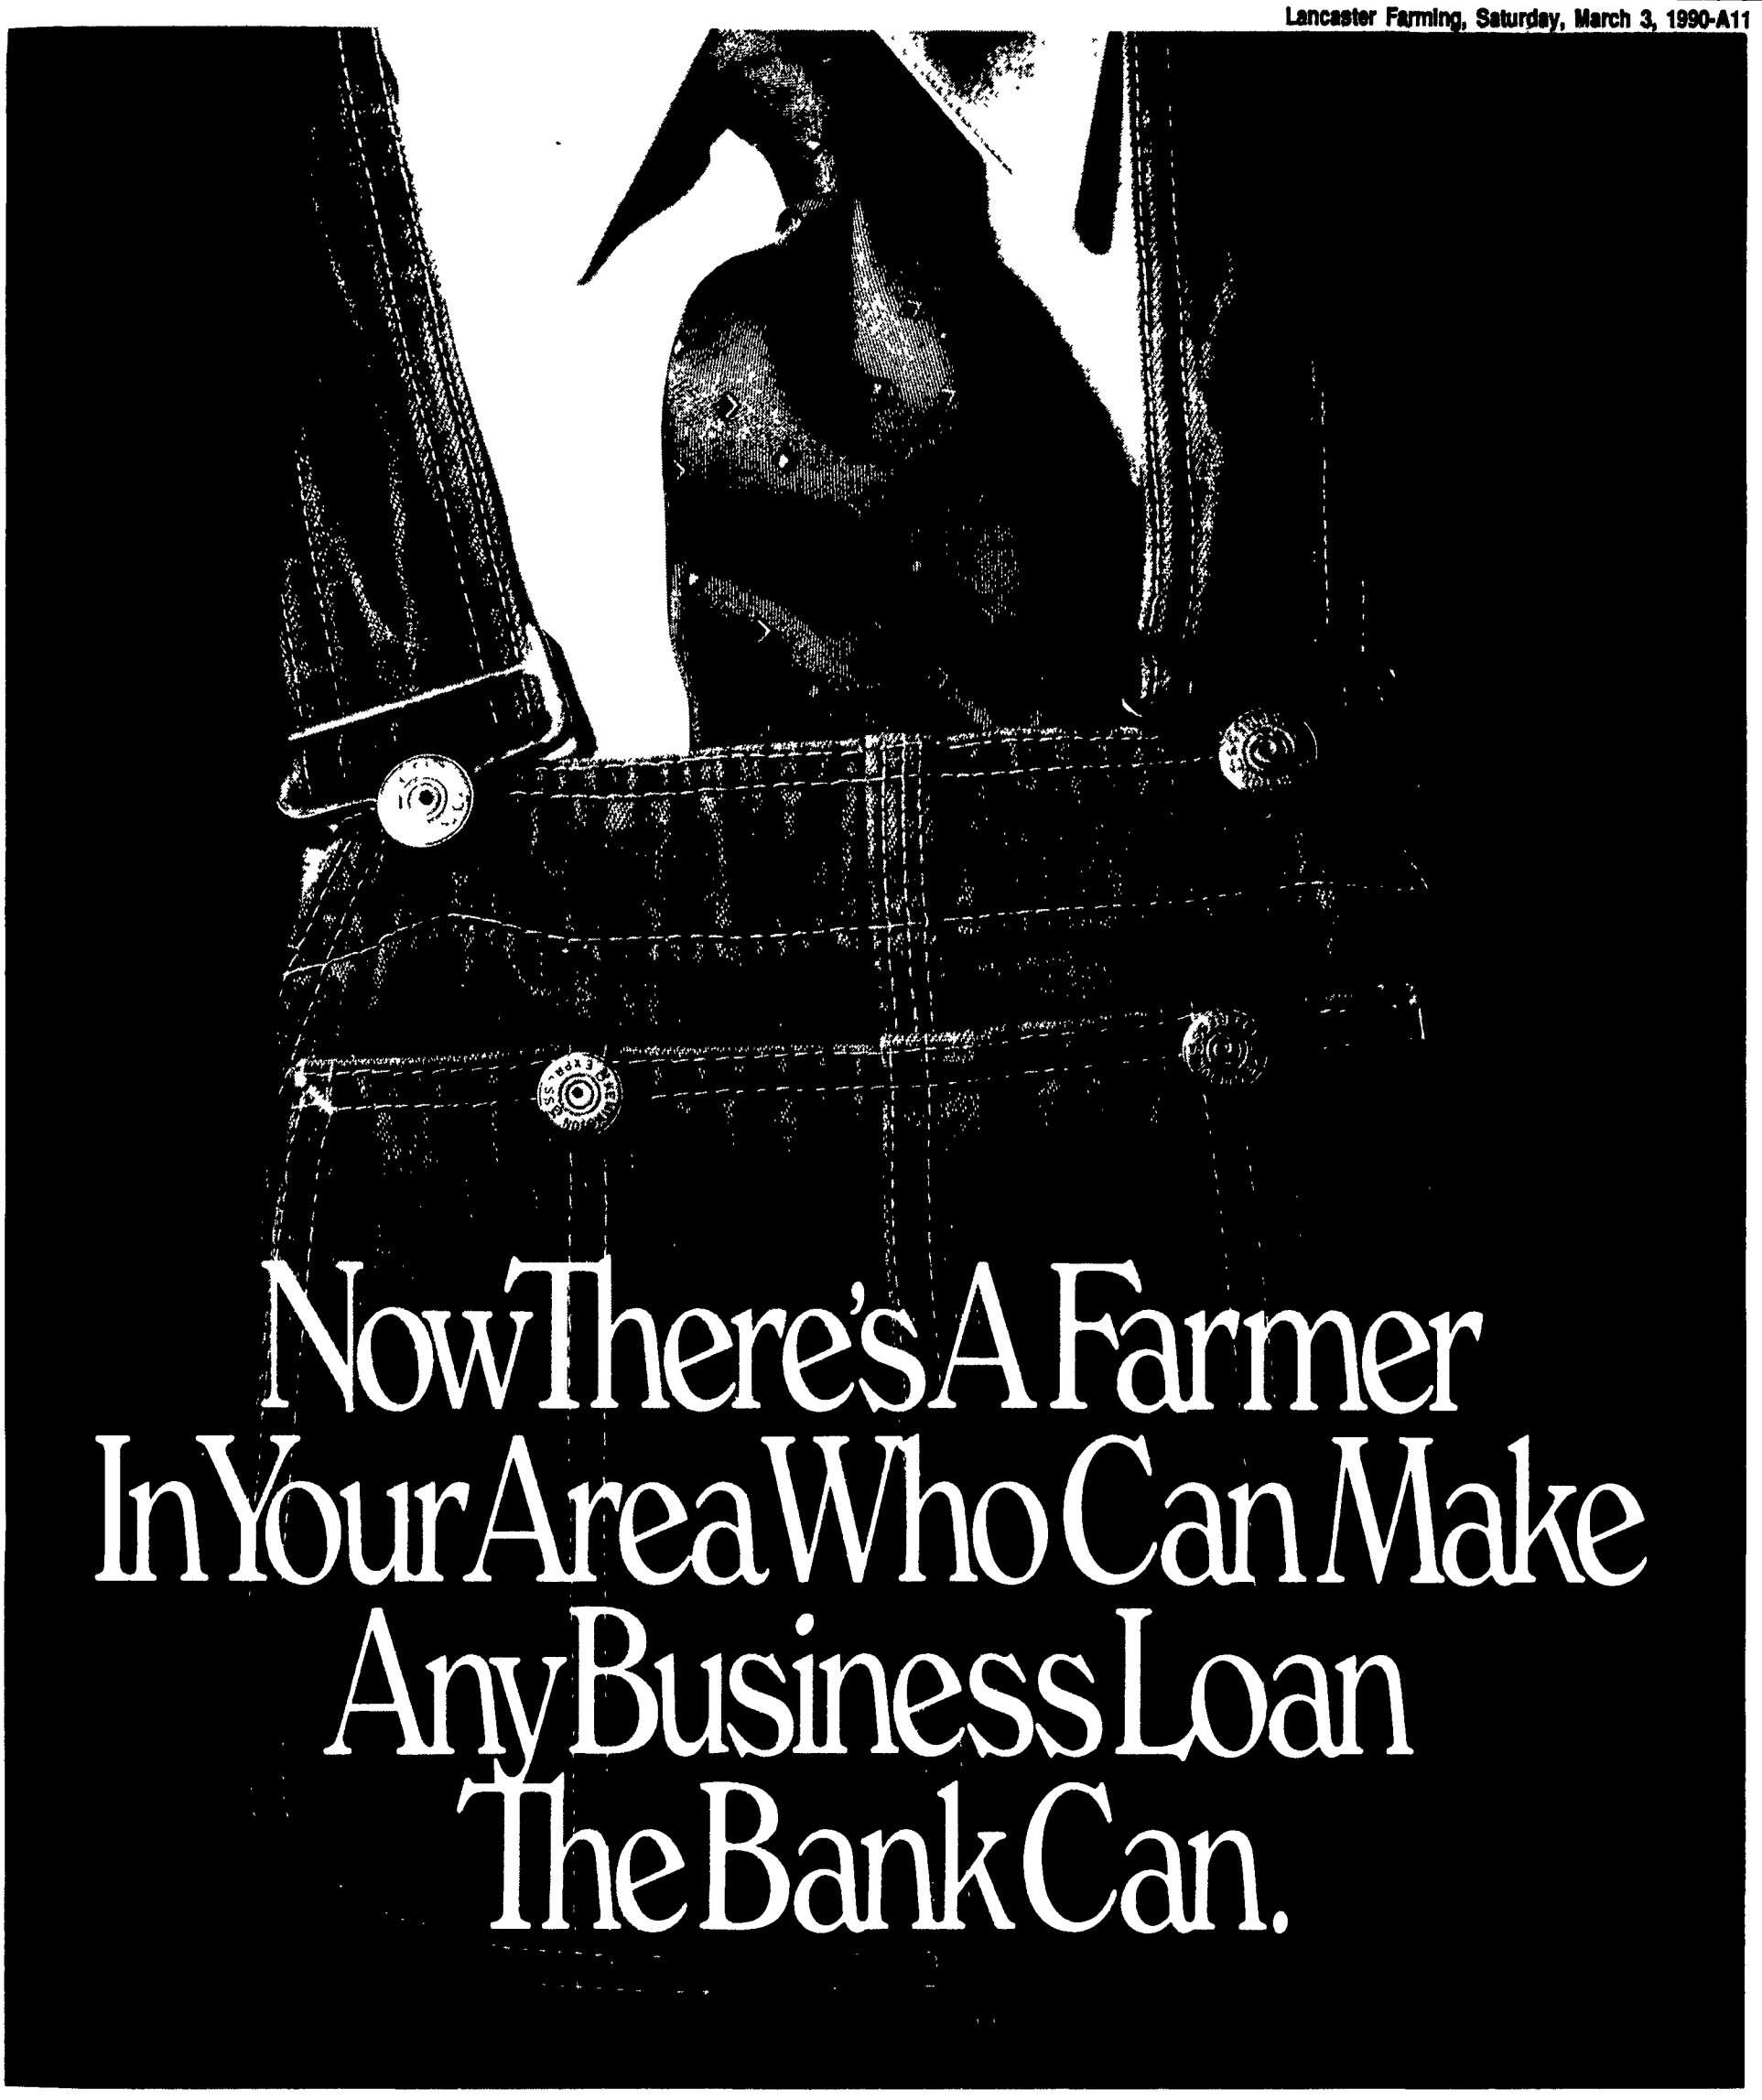
WELL, I ONCE HEARD YOU SAY THAT WHEN YOU WENT TO THE OLD COUNTRY SCHOOL YOU HAD THE SAME TEACHER FOR FOUR YEARS IN A ROW.
DAVE CARPENTER..



Now There's A Farmer In Your Area Who Can Make Any Business Loan The Bank Can.

Since 1917, farmers have taken kindly to Farm Credit because we're owned and controlled by people who really understand your business.

Farmers. Just like yourself. Thing was, we didn't exactly lay out a Sunday dinner spread of loans. Our menu was limited, and we knew it.

So recently we overhauled our lending system. We now offer competitive rates and options for loans we never could offer before.
Adjustable rate mortgages.
Revolving lines of credit.
Variable and fixed rate loans.
Terms of 30 days to 30 years. There's even a variety of services including insurance plans.

Some things do remain the same, however. The Farm Credit loan officer you talk to still makes most of the decisions.

And chances are he can do it faster than most bankers can say "bureaucracy."

So think about this for a moment. Who would you rather deal with for your next loan? A banker who merely wants your business. Or a farmer who knows it.

FARM CREDIT
Nobody knows the field better.

Ask your feed supplier about our Free ABS Semen Offer.

Five good reasons to deworm your whole herd with Rumatel®

1. Worms are a whole-herd problem. They threaten the health and productivity of your young stock and milking herd alike.

2. Rumatel makes whole-herd deworming easy. You can effectively deworm calves, heifers, dry cows, lactating cows and bulls in one simple treatment (Baymix® requires six).

3. No milk discard. TBZ® forces you to dump eight milkings ($2,800 worth in a 100-cow herd averaging 50 lbs. of milk per cow per day, and at a milk price of $14/cwt.). With Rumatel you don't waste a drop.

4. No milk residues. Ivomec® may only legally be administered to males and pre-breeding weight heifers, while Rumatel may be safely fed to lactating cows at any time without risking milk residues!

5. Rumatel is extremely palatable. Unlike other in-feed dewormers, Rumatel doesn't make animals back off feed.

There's just no good reason to settle for incomplete or inconvenient deworming. Ask your feed supplier for Rumatel today.

Stops Worms, Not Milk, In One Day.

biodegradeable plastic liner in their seed bag," Drennan said.

"The key bottom line is that anything that can be made from a barrel of crude oil can be made from a bushel of corn," he said.

"Corn starch is the secret ingredient. When you look at the styrofoam cups that you drink coffee out of, shampoo bottles . . . all those can be biodegradeable plastics. And so, more and more companies are turning to that because of the concern about landfills, and we're just tagging along and selling more corn as it goes," Drennan said.

"Even with the drought we had in '88 and even last year there were parts of the country that were still dry, we've got plenty of corn to sell. There's no danger of running out of corn. We've got enough corn to feed our own people, and to feed out livestock. We feel we're not overproducers, we're under-utilizers," he said.

According to Drennan, using corn to make ethanol intended as a gasoline additive is not new. He said it started about 12 years ago in Iowa and was called gasohol.

At the time, gasoline shortages caused long lines at stations and gasohol was seen as an alternative and possible solution. Other products also came out of federally-funded research programs, created under former President Jimmy Carter, that were aimed to seek economical energy alternatives.

According to Drennan, of the gasoline additives and fuel substitutes, ethanol made from corn starch is the only product to receive federal acceptance.

Currently there is proposed legislation in the state Senate (SB 493) seeking to require gas pumps be labeled as to whether the gasoline includes an ethanol from corn additive, or an additive of methanol made from natural gas.

Drennan said the association is seeking to have the bill amended because it makes no mention of a highly corrosive (to plastic) additive, MTBE.

"All we're saying is, if you are going to label the pumps, let's label all these products, so the consumer knows it," he said.

Also, Drennan said corn growers objects to the location of the labeling on the gas pumps. He said that the legislation would require labeling on the front of the pumps. Drennan said he feels that labels in that location is perceived to be a warning, which is not the case at all.

Rather that placing the labeling on the front of the pumps, Drennan said the association seeks to have them placed on the side near the pump nozel.

As far as promoting the use of products made from corn, Drennan said the corn growers association in Pennsylvania it motle

"We've developed a logo, a biodegradeable logo for people to put on these products, so people know it's made with biodegradeable corn starch," Drennan said.

However, Drennan said the corn industry is not yet to the point of self-promotion as are other agricultural realms, such as the dairy, pork and beef industries.

He said there are some Western states that do have a check-off program to help with research, but nothing has been done yet as to how the corn industry can strengthen demand for corn-based or added products.

Wolff Gets Dairy Award

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — The Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture, Boyd Wolff, was recently presented with the Service to Dairying Award at the 30th Annual Meeting of the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council Inc. (ADADC).

More than 250 dairy producers and industry leaders were present at the meeting held here at the Sheraton Inn.

The Service to Dairying Award has been presented for 13 years to individuals or organizations who have made a significant contribution to dairy promotion.

Secretary Wolff is responsible for taking the initial steps to strengthen Pennsylvania dairy promotion. His efforts to coordinate milk promotion programs of ADADC, Mid East UDIA and the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, have resulted in decreased milk promotion costs in Pennsylvania and increased impact on consumers.

Wolff has served as Secretary of Agriculture for the past three years. Prior to this appointment, he was a full time farmer in Westmoreland County, owning and operating a 410-acre dairy farm.

A distinguished alumnus of the Dairy and Animal Science Department of Pennsylvania State University, Secretary Wolff has been recognized for his many leadership roles in agriculture. Among these are the Distinguished Service to Agriculture Award, which he received from the Pennsylvania Farmers Association, and the Outstanding County Conservationist Award.

"Investing in the 90s: "Your Promotion Portfolio" was the theme of ADADC's Annual Meeting which highlighted a panel of four experts who discussed different aspects of dairy promotion as we enter a new decade. Also included was a review of beverage advertising trends for the 90s.

Corn Growers

Dr. McGlamery told the several hundred who attended the corn conference that the future of chemical weed control looks to be restricted and with problems.

According to McGlamery, who has taught college courses for about 32 years, the herbicides for the 1990s could be post-emergence types. According to McGlamery, post-emergence fits more into the world of agriculture as defined through Low Impact Sustainable Agriculture (LISA).

McGlamery critized such programs, however, because it shows a regression in technology. He said such natural practices for weed control were prevelent in the early part of the century and didn't do an effective job, compared to the effectiveness of chemicals.

However, McGlamery said concerns for water supplies, food toxicity, and other total environmental concerns will restrict and strongly regulate the use and application of chemicals in the future.

He said he predicted that applicators could be required to have permits for each chemical and notify authorities when they intend to spray. Issues, such as spray drift, will become even more studied.

New machinery will help, he said. He showed slides of a computerized set-up that determines weed type, size and areas in a field where certain chemicals should be used, merely by driving over the areas.

The computer would then map out a specific herbicide application plan. Such fine-tuning will become the way things are done.

Other restrictions, just starting to be felt, will deal with notification of potentially chemically-sensitive neighbors as to when spraying will be conducted, approved storage and labeling of chemicals and notification of local authorities as to the location of storage are coming, he said.

4-H For Strong Dairy Future

DUANE DUNCAN
Extension Dairy Agent
Cumberland County

Many people recognize the 4-H dairy program for its opportunities to show dairy animals at county roundups, district shows, and the Pennsylvania Junior Dairy Show.

Even though showing dairy animals has doubled at the state level - from around 500 animals since I first became secretary of the show in 1973, to last year when we catalogued 996 - showing dairy animals is only a small portion of the learning opportunities offered by the 4-H dairy program.

4-H members develop their leadership abilities as a 4-H club member, club officer and teen leader, plus, members enrolled in the teen leader project, share their knowledge with younger members.

Dairy judging provides many opportunities to learn and practice the art of decision making and dairy animal selection. 4-H demonstration activities and giving oral reasons, a part of dairy judging, provides young people with learning situations that will increase their self confidence, their ability to gather information, and express their opinions in an organized fashion.

The 4-H Dairy Bowl, a take off of the old TV "College Bowl" program, provides encouragement for the participant to learn a great deal of knowledge pertaining to dairy management, the dairy industry, and dairy farming in general while preparing for the Dairy Bowl experience. Dairy Bowl provides a test of member's knowledge and his or her ability to give impromptu responses.

4-H members learn a wealth of information including feed stuff identification, judging hay quality, selecting herd replacements, identifying milking and dairying equipment while participating in the Dairy Herdsmen Contest held at the county level for many years and which recently became a statewide program held in conjunction with the Pennsylvania All-American.

Don't forget the two 4-H basics - "Responsibility" and "Learn by Doing". When an individual joins 4-H, the member is accepting the responsibility to properly care for an animal and complete a record book; two very basic factors of dairy management in the 90's.

Is "4-H Dairying" in your child's future? I hope so!

Robinson also announced that in response to a member survey, they had agreed to reopen the Penn State forage testing lab. "We know many of you have gone elsewhere by now to get your test. But we hope we can offer a plan that will be attractive to you."

Richard Barth, general manager and director of operations, reported that five counties have already merged with the state organization and 20 to 25 more are in the process. In addition, Barth listed some major national trends that influence DHIA. Such trends as: labor shortage, increased costs, decreasing cow and herd numbers, more competition from farm computers, new technology, relationships with extension, consumer influence, and membership attitudes.

Even though these national trends also influence the state association, Barth said Pennsylvania DHIA continued its progress in 1989. This progress was shown by the release of Prime records in January and by the year's end, 110 members were using this partial processing service at lower cost than full service programs.

"During the summer," Barth said, "members were given access to a DHIA credit card and later a predicted transmitting ability report was developed to replace the cow index report. This change responded to USDA's adoption of the animal model for genetic evaluations."

Two new services were introduced in early 1990: Prostaph rapid analysis of milk samples for the presence of Staphylococcus aureus mastitis and the long awaited DHIA nutrition system.

Other major achievements were listed. The barn sheet received major revision along with a completely new data entry system to reduce maintenance costs and improve operator speed. A four year lab overhaul was completed that resulted in labor and maintenance cost savings.

A vial washing operation was started to allow sample vial recycling and the the senior supervisor program was expanded to eight part-time people to improve supervisor training and member recruiting.

Barth said that this year they hope to have a new heifer management system, laser printing for member reports, forage analysis services and two pilot project: bar coding for milk samples and an electronic barn sheet.

Gary Truckenmiller, chairman, finance committee, reported $1,435,400 in association assets with a yearly budget of more than three million dollars. The average cost is 74.2 cents per month per cow and the state DHIA has 349,300 cows on test in more than 6,000 herds.

William Jackson, chairman, planning committee said the association had developed a long range plan that addressed such issues as technology, market share, education, quality of service, liability, human resources and reorganization.

At the Thursday evening banquet, Robinson was honored as the retiring president. He served terms as president of Pennsylvania DHIA in the '60s, again in the '70s and now has finished his three-year term that began in the '80s. Robinson's total service to the state DHIA is 26 years.

Average Farm Feed Costs For Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's this week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania. Remember these are averages so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

Tips For Using Progesterone Tests

MIKE O'CONNER
Dairy Specialist Penn State

At least eight different milk progesterone assay kits are now on the market. These kits, when used properly, determine the relative concentration (high or low) of progesterone in cows' milk.

Progesterone is the hormone produced by the corpus luteum (CL) on the ovary. Progesterone is high during midcycle and pregnancy. Lower levels are detected two or three days prior to heat, during heat and for a few days after heat.

Knowing the level of progesterone can be of value in determining the reproductive status of the cow.

This technology can be used to verify suspicious heats, evaluate the accuracy of heat detection on a herd basis and identify cows that are not pregnant 19-23 days after insemination. There are several other uses for milk progesterone analysis which can be used in cooperation with your veterinarian to diagnose certain problems.

Here are some points to consider when using these "cowside" tests:

• If you are interested in trying this new technology, buy a kit that has a small number of tests per package so that you become familiar with the procedures and determine if you like it before investing too much money. The number of tests/kit will vary from 10 to 96 per kit. The cost per test range from about $3.00 to $7.00 and this depends primarily on the number of milk samples that are tested simultaneously. Some kits require that a control sample be used along with the milk sample you are interested in testing. If several tests are performed at the same time, the cost of the control is averaged out across several tests. Some kits do not require a control sample so the cost is constant for each milk test.

• Each kit will have an expiration date printed on the package or the chemicals within the package. Be sure there is enough time to use the kit before the chemicals expire.

• Keep kits refrigerated between use. However, do not let the chemicals freeze. Always allow the kits to warm up to 60-70° F before testing the milk samples. Temperature is critical!

• Follow directions carefully and do not take shortcuts.

• Most kits utilize a change in color to determine the level of progesterone. Occasionally the intensity of the color will not be noticeably different from the control. This may indicate the level of progesterone is borderline between high and low. One kit does not involve a color change. A grainy appearance of the milk after the addition of the chemicals indicates low progesterone for this kit.

• Some kits require that foremilk strippings be used while a few other kits utilize postmilk strippings. The concentration of progesterone may be twice as much in postmilk compared to foremilk. It is essential to use the type of milk that is specified for the kit you are using.

• Low progesterone does not indicate the exact time to inseminate the cow.

• Low progesterone 19-23 days after insemination is a very accurate indication the cow is open. However, high progesterone obtained during this time is not an absolute sign the cow is pregnant. Several studies have shown it to be 75% accurate in determining the cow is definitely pregnant. Several conditions other than pregnancy can cause progesterone to be high 19-23 days after insemination.

• Although the time required to conduct the test varies between 3 and 20 minutes for the different kits, extra time is required to allow the chemicals to warm up. Allow for this extra time and devote adequate time to conduct the test properly.

There is no sense in spending the time and money to use this technology if the tests are not performed correctly and inaccurate results are obtained.

Teat Tips

In milking parlors, the common method of washing teats is to use a hose to deliver a sanitizing solution and the hands to aid in removing debris, said Bill Heald, Penn State dairy scientist.

"Only teats should be washed, as wetting the whole udder makes it difficult to adequately dry the udder before milking machines are attached," he said.

Milking wet udders and teats may lead to increased mastitis and bacteria counts in bulk milk.

Animal Rights, Lyme Disease Issues At Ag Seminar

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

PRESCOTT (Lebanon Co.) — The actions of animal rights activists and welfare groups, and the severity of the debilitating Lyme disease were among issues discussed here recently during the annual Lebanon Valley National Bank's agriculture seminar.

Other issues presented includes testing performed at Cornell University which shows the effects and necessity for quick and heavy feeding of colostrum to calves during the first 24 hours after birth to aid survival.

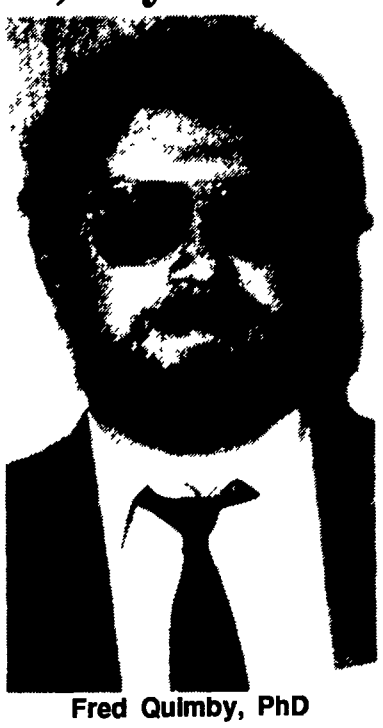
Dr. Louis Moore, renowned Penn State University agricultural economist, discussed the perceived future trends of agricultural business (see Feb. 3 issue, Lancaster Farming). And several county extension agents provided an update on agricultural security developments in the Lebanon area.

Dr. M. Lynn Sammon, veterinarian at Willow Creek Animal Hospital, told an audience of about 300 people that "if it were not for AIDS, Lyme disease would be the number one concern in the United States."

According to Sammons, the disease, which is spread by ticks, has shown up in the area he serves in Lebanon, Berks and Lancaster counties, not only in domestic animals, but in people as well.

"There are three people in here that I know of who have relatives who have Lyme disease," Sammons offered as testimony that the threat to farmer health is strong.

Although the disease is an import, is not new to North America, having been discovered about 100 years ago, and named after Lyme, Connecticut. But now, the once contained disease has spread to epidemic proportions in the East Coast and Wisconsin in people, dogs, cats . . . , Sammons said.



Fred Quimby, PhD

M. Lynn Sammon, DVM

He explained that there are three stages of illness: the first signs of infection include flu-like symptoms, aching joints and usually, but not necessarily, a ringworm-like reddening surrounding a tick bite; next, if nothing is done, heart problems can occur during an intermediate stage; in the final stage, symptoms can include permanent effects to the brain and joints, such as arthritis and memory loss.

According to Sammons, in addition to the people he knows who have the disease, recent discoveries of the disease include two cows which were shipped here from Wisconsin, a horse in New Jersey and two dogs who were entered locally in a show.

"It is not an epidemic in central Pennsylvania," Sammons said. "And it can be treated early," he said.

Treatment is usually tetracycline and other antibiotics, Sammons said.

Detection is tricky, according to the veterinarian. He said it usually takes a month, after a bite from an infected tick, in order for blood tests to determine whether or not the tick was carrying the disease.

There are other ways for humans to contract the disease, Sammons said. It can spread from cow urine onto skin.

Although everyone should take precautions and use tick repellent, deer hunters could be at higher risk. It normally takes 12-hours for all ticks to leave a carcass, Sammons said. It also takes about the same time for a tick to latch onto a host.

Deer hunters who put deer into the back of pickup trucks can run the risk of transporting infected ticks to their homes. Common sense precautions can help prevent high risk situations, Sammons said.

Dr. Fred Quimby, director of Cornell University's Center for Research Animal Resources, in Ithica, N.Y., told the group that animal rights activists are basically "terrorists."

According to Quimby, a number of research facilities have been destroyed at high costs to tax payers because of actions performed in the name of animal rights activism.

Quimby said he predicts it won't be long before local farmers get visits from such groups and advised farmers not to attempt to convince these people that they are wrong, but to stay calm and be ready to call police should the people begin to act violently.

He said some farms, mostly in California, were attacked in that sides of buildings were destroyed in order to "free" domestic animals.

He said that at Cornell, some of the research staff have been getting telephone calls "at two or three in the morning and are told that if they don't stop, we will kill your child on the way to school." He said one man's $300,000 home was burned by activists. "This is just the beginning," he said.

To help stand ground, Quimby said area farmers must stay on top of the issue and "support state and federal referendum. Rally together and support each other. Their (activists) strategy is to divide and attack," he said.

Although claiming to be a large group, actual numbers represented by such groups are not known, he said. However, the groups do weild influence among legislators, he said.

"The situation in the United States has reached almost a critical moment," Quimby said.

Quimby provided the local agriculture community with reference material about animal rights activism and left it in the care of the LVNB agricultural lending group, headed by Micheal Firestine.

In other areas, Dr. Richard G. Werner, retired from Cornell's animal science department, told the group about research done on calf survival at the 400-cow dairy herd at Cornell.

According to Werner, the herd was experiencing about a 15-percent loss of calves that had been born alive.

Now, after researching the importance of feeding first colostrum, Werner said he formulated a feeding schedule that decreased mortality of live-born calves at Cornell to less than one half of one percent and increased weight at 25 months averages 1,210 pounds. He said that represents a 140-pound gain in first calf heifer weight.

According to Werner, the secret it to feed immediately after birth with the first milk and to continue feeding every four hours for the first 24 hours.

Werner said that the intestinal tract of the calves quickly absorbs the antibodies during the first 24 hours. After 24 hours, research shows that the cells lose their ability to absorb antibodies and the milk is wasted and the calf doesn't have the proper protection to ward off bacterial infection.

He said the best way to feed is with a feeding tube, the second best way is with a bucket and the third best way is for the calf to feed directly from the mother.

Werner said that the secret to calf survival is a race against bacterial infection. If bacteria become ingested before the antibody laden colostrum, the calf is destined to not do as well. Research shows that the bacteria destroys the cells that otherwise would absorb the colostrum.

Colostrum can be stored and should be continued to be fed to the calves until it is gone. Milk should never be thrown away, he said and calves can continue to be fed milk for several weeks longer than what is normally done before weaning.

DeKalb-Pfizer Holds Alfalfa Grower Meeting

BETHEL (Berks Co.)—Quality forage comes from both proper management of cutting times and planting the right variety to get maximum yield. That's the message DeKalb-Pfizer Genetics officials had for alfalfa growers and dealers at a seminar held here Wednesday.

Jim Rich, alfalfa product manager, DeKalb, IL, said variety selection is extremely important. One criteria for selecting varieties would be your harvest load. According to Rich, you may want to plant more than one variety so you get bloom at different times.

"Most varieties that would be adaptable to this area would bloom within a week's period of time," Rich said. "But you could still cut one variety at optimum stage of growth and then cut the next maturing variety four days later and still have maximum quality."

Rich said a farmer who has 50 acres of alfalfa would likely see advantages in planting two different varieties. Variety selection is a major decision because like a large equipment purchase, you need to live with your choice for maybe five years. And while you can find many different prices of seed, Rich said you usually get what you pay for.

"It costs money to get varieties that have good yields and also last as a five-year stand," Rich said. "But the good seed pays for itself.

"From a bag of good variety seed that would plant three acres, you could easily get two-tenths of a ton yield advantage. On an annual basis, that would be six-tenths of a ton extra yield. At $80 per ton, over the five-year life of the crop, you would net $240 additional value from that bag of good seed.

"We're saying variety selection is a critical part of forage quality," Rich said.

Tom Hall, DeKalb agronomist, Seven Valleys, said alfalfa growers are not aggressive enough in their management. State averages run from two to four tons yield per acre. But early cutting with proper fertilizer and pesticide management can give the farmer extra cuttings and up to six to eight tons of profitable alfalfa crop.

Hall said that cutting at from bud to one-tenth bud stage maximized the protein and TDN and induced the cows to give more milk. And while you may cut a few years off the life of the stand, in the long run, you have a more profitable crop.

John Wysolmerski, district sales manager, said the goal of the meeting was to help educate farmers and dealers to be more professional in the way they handle alfalfa forage crops and apply chemicals.

If we can help them, we have accomplished what we want to do at this meeting," Wysolmerski said. "We'll keep farmers on the cutting edge of information about such things as multi-leaf alfalfa varities. The debate is on-going about the additional protein content that may come from these new varieties that have up to five leaves instead of three. We have designed this event to become an annual meeting where we can provide whatever growers want to hear."

In the World's Forage Analysis Super Bowl, held for growers mostly from North America, DeKalb has had more finalists in the top 10 than any other brand. Last year, 43 percent of the 99 finalists used DeKalb varieties.

This chelated formula called Golden Pride Formula #1 is available in a pleasant-tasting form containing honey, royal jelly, bee pollen and the chelating agent EDTA. Start to erase years of damage to your system. Good nutrition can eleviate many health problems. The following are just a few testimonies of some of the many persons using Golden Pride Products.

Dear Golden Pride:

I am a physician. For more than 40 years, I was a staff member of a large teaching hospital. Much of my effort was devoted to patient diagnostic clinics. Also, I taught hundreds of medical students, doctors, and other health science professionals

Early in my career, I had eposides of high blood pressure. These increased in frequency and severity to a point where my doctors started me on medication some 38 years ago These medications were changed as serious untoward reactions dictated On one occasion, I developed signs of diabetes due to the medications. In addition, the control of my blood pressure was less than desirable in spite of the fact that over the 38 years I was given most of the types of blood pressure medicines.

A little over a year ago, Harry Hersey came to speak at a Golden Pride meeting which we heard about on a local radio station. I attended the meeting and was so impressed that I began taking Formulas #1 and #3. A few months later Formula #7 was introduced and I added it into my routine. After about one month, I had my cholesterol level tested and found it to be in the normal range and my blood pressure had also leveled off to normal. Normal blood pressure for the first time in my adult life seem miraculous and with no side effects!

I have been pleased with the other FORMULAS FOR HEALTH as well, especially Propolis, which taken as a preventative to infection has saved me and my family from many days of colds and flu. It is the antibiotic of choice, definitely.

Harpster: New PHA President

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

Wayne Harpster, owner of Evergreen Farms in Huntingdon County, is the new president of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association. He was installed into office during the group's annual meeting, held February 23 at the State College Days Inn.

Harpster, formerly PHA vice president, takes over the reins of the state's largest dairy breed organization from outgoing president, Jay Landis of Lancaster. Filling out the slate of officers for 1990 and 1991 is vice president Lewis Berkley, Berlin, and Dean Johnson, Warren, re-elected treasurer.

Newly-elected to PHA's executive board is Kenneth Mowry, Roaring Springs, representing the central district, and Lloyd Pease, Susquehanna, from the northeast district. The two replace retiring executive board members Fred Strouse, Centre Hall, and Gordon Wood, Mansfield.

Installment of new officers capped the board and business portions of PHA's annual convention, which focused on organizational housekeeping chores, a review of past successes and glimpses at future needs of the Holstein breed group.

In his president's report, Jay Landis touched on the continuing development of PHA's numerous programs, including expansion of junior member activities. He lauded membership director Ken Raney for increasing junior activities from 14 to a present 22 youth programs.

Treasurer Dean Johnson reviewed 1989 financial reports, showing member equity at almost a half-million dollars. Income and expenses were both down slightly from 1988 levels, and resulted in net loss of over $11,000.

Johnson indicated that a study committee has been appointed to evaluate PHA's long-range financial needs. Among the considerations of that committee is the planned hosting by PHA of the national Holstein convention in four years.

More than $2.8 million in cattle sales was handled by PHA in 1989, according to executive secretary Bill Nichol. In his report, Nichol noted that nearly 1500 head of cattle were exported to primarily the Canary Islands, Tunesia and Japan, with another 600-plus head sold domestically.

Exports are handled through PHA's farm and facilities at Middletown. In addition, the facility generates income through rental to other livestock exporters and through rental of four apartments on the property.

With lower volume of export cattle being handled from past years, income which has supported many of PHA's varied membership programs is down. Thus, Nichol projects the need for dues increases, both in the current basic $20 membership fee, as well as the .45/per head dues. The board's summer meeting is expected to address the issue of organizational financing. PHA's 1989 membership was over 5400.

Nichol reported the PHA scholarship fund has surpassed $45,000, with a goal of $100,000. Interest monies generated by the fund provide junior member scholarships.

Resolutions

Resolutions presented to the meetings addressed a variety of industry issues, including support of the national Holstein policy on the 1990 Farm Bill, and were unanimously passed by the voting membership.

The Holstein Association stance on the upcoming Farm Bill legislations is toward market-oriented policy, retaining Section 22 dairy product import limitations, and support of the long-range concepts endorsed by the report of the National Commission on Dairy Policy. Provisions for an export enhancement program for live cattle is supported as well.

Specific recommendations are for an increase of .25% in national minimum standards for both fat and solids, multiple component pricing in all federal orders, shifting from a fat to a solids base for CCC calculations and credit toward the cost of the Dairy Stabilization Program by CCC stocks used in entitlement programs.

National Holstein policy further supports a stand-by supply management program. That program should include provisions for a two-tiered pricing system as outlined by the National Milk Producers Federation, based on predetermined production levels, and administered by a board of producers.

Wetlands concern was addressed, with a several-points resolution proposing legislation for "fairer, more reasonable and less onerous" treatment of such designated private properties. Key points included: regulations exemption of wetlands up to ten acres, a procedure for both public and private comments on wetlands designations, considerations of the lands historic use, compensation for the "taking" of property designated wetlands, and exemption from property and school taxes if production use of the land is halted due to wetlands preservation designation.

Penn State food scientist Dr. Manfred Kroger informed and amused his Pennsylvania Holstein convention audiences with his presentation on food safety.

Also passed was a resolution supporting the efforts of the Food and Drug Administration, State Department of Agriculture and USDA in providing consumer and producer information and safeguards for new products developed through bio-technology and genetic engineering.

Other resolutions addressed deer damage, establishment of a uniform statewide "911" emergency network, and the establishment of a modern, centrally-located animal health laboratory in Pennsylvania, with plans to be developed by July 1, 1991.

Members voted to support the re-election of Dr. David A. Morrow, State College, and William Ringler, Berlin, to the Pennsylvania State University Board of Trustees, and the re-election of Thomas Kelly, Tyrone, to the national Holstein board of directors.

National President Donald Seipt

Special business meeting speaker was the national Holstein president, and former PHA president, Donald Seipt, Easton.

"We're at a crossroads at the national level," said the noted Keystone Farms breeder. In response, a "Year 2000" national Holstein-funded research force is looking at trends which will influence the Holstein industry as it moves into the next century.

Seipt reviewed the Holstein Association's "unity" stance on the 1990 Farm Bill effort. That position has Holstein leaders working with other major players in the dairy industry to find common ground in writing a farm bill, rather than "splintering" a unified effort.

The national president noted that the Council of Dairy Cattle Breeders is looking for ways of combining the resources and efforts of various groups to provide the best possible service in such issues of classification standards, animal identification and testing. Others in addition to the Holstein Association include the National Association of Animal Breeders, DHIA And Purebred Dairy Cattle Association.

How Safe Is Our Food?

JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Just how safe is the American food supply, anyway?

Very safe, according to one of the country's foremost food researchers.

"Our food supply is abundant, available, affordable, and appealing," says Dr. Manfred Kroger, Penn State food safety specialist and advocate for the wholesomeness of the national food supply. Dr. Kroger was one of the speakers at the Holstein Convention.

A native of Germany who got early training in the dairy processing industry, Dr. Kroger says that a major reason for current concern over chemicals in food safety is "because we can find them."

Foods naturally contain chemicals, some of them toxic at certain levels. And, while the public can read what is in food, and know the numerical safe limit of food ingredients or residues, "making sense of it all" is often overlooked, according to Dr. Kroger.

He stressed that the current

Holstein Breakfast Concludes Successful Convention

BONNIE BRECHBILL
Franklin Co. Correspondent

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — A Penn State professor of Rural Sociology reported the findings of his studies on changes in milk consumption to Holstein breeders attending the Awards Breakfast at the Pennsylvania Holstein Association State Convention.

Dr. Rex Warland, who has taught at Penn State since 1966, spoke about several changes in American lifestyles that affect the amount and type of milk consumed.

"While consumption of other foods fluctuates, milk stays pretty steady," he said. The highest increases in milk consumption have occurred in people under 30. Health and nutrition concerns were the main reasons cited for the increase with "setting a good example for the kids," coming in second. "Taste was important," Warland said, "but not as important as health and nutrition."

Milk consumpton among well-educated people has declined, Warland said, because of their switch from whole milk to lower-fat milks to avoid calories, fat and cholesterol. "But they don't necessarily know the fat content of milk," he added.

A preliminary report showed that skim milk consumption rose 28 percent last year, and that ice cream consumption dropped 7½ percent.

Another change in American lifestyles that Warland's studies looked at was the increase in the number of one-parent families. He found that single parents pushed their children harder than married parents to drink milk. Forty-five percent of American parents insist that their children drink milk.

Concerning dairy promotion, he found that citizens of Pennsylvania are more aware of dairy promotion than are citizens of the country as a whole. Children and young women scored highest on awareness of ads.

Dr. Lamartine Hood

Also addressing the group in the ballroom of Days Inn-- Penn State was Dr. Lamartine Hood, Dean of the College of Agriculture at PSU.

Penn State is embarking on its largest-ever building project, he said, which will be the Agricultural Science and Industry Building. To be built behind the dairy center, it will incorporate all elements of the dairy and animal sciences into one location.

Additions to the Dairy Center are also planned. When the new milking center, food and bedding storage buildings and a 45- foot by 164-foot tie stall barn are completed Penn State will have "the finest dairy animal research and educational facility of any of the land-grant institutions in this country," Hood said.

Hood also noted that enrollment in the college of agriculture has fluctuated in the past 15 years. "Enrollment peaked in 1977-78," he said, "due to an influx of students in the conservation fields. By 1986, enrollment in the college of agriculture was half of what it had been in the mid-70's."

"We have to communicate (that there are) enormous career opportunities in the field of agriculture to graduates of ag programs," he said. "There's a 20 percent shortfall in the number of people graduating from colleges of agriculture

Shey-Land Cleitus Alix-ET sold for $21,000 to Circle Lane Syndicate of Middlebury, Indiana. Due September 1 to Eric-Dew Quietcove Michael, she sold with a $6,000 contract for a bull calf. Alix is from an 87-point Ned Boy dam with PTA of +1398M, +91F, +59P and +2.16T.

Consignors were George and Paul Sheypuk of Jermyn.

A standing-room only crowd attended the sale, held in the Pennsylvania State University Ag Arena. Well-known Holstein enthusiasts led cows through the ring, which had been decorated for the event with blue sawdust and surrounded with pots of red and white chrysanthemums.

Buyers from as far away as England, California, Texas, Maine, Wisconsin, Michigan and Indiana helped to keep the bidding brisk on the 75 lots sold. Included in the sale were 21 lots of embryo flushes. The sale average was $4251, up significantly from last year's sale.

Second-highest selling lot of the sale was second-choice of a female calf sired by Southwind Bell of Bar-Lee. Buyer Wilmer Hostetter of Oxford purchased the choice for $18,000 from Charles Plushanski of Kutztown. Plushanski's well-known cow, Plushanski Neil Flute, is the dam of the flushes, due September and October 1990. Flute made 35,145 pounds of milk with a 4.2 percent fat test and 3.4 percent protein test in 365 days.

Fidelity Mark Lydia, an 87 point Chief Mark, brought $17,500, the third-highest selling lot of the sale. She sold with a contract for eight embryos for $1,350 apiece. This attractive cow is due May 25, 1990 to O-Dean Valiant Command. Steve Hoover of Fidelity Holsteins, Martinsburg was the consignor. Mike Bobal, Hollidaysburg, purchased her. Lydia produced 21,870 pounds of milk with a 3.9 percent fat test and 3.2 percent protein test in 365 days as a first calf heifer.

The sale, a highlight of the Pennsylvania Holstein Convention, was co-managed by the Pennsylvania Holstein Association and The Cattle Exchange of Delhi, NY. Auctioneers were Dave Rama and Mike Weimer; Mike Young read the pedigrees. Sale chairman was Donald Adams.

The first item to be sold was an 8-foot by 10-foot braided rug, handmade of all new wool by Reba Yoder of Rocky-Side Farms, Elverson. It was purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Ray McMillen of Loysville for $950, which was donated to Phase III of the Penn State Ag Arena.

A banner with the convention logo on it was sold to help defray the expenses of the sale. Donated by Over's Feed Mill, Martinsburg, it was purchased by R. Wayne Harpster, new president of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, for $350.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray McMillen, pictured, of Loysville purchased a braided rug made by Reba Yoder of Rocky-Side Farms, Elverson. The $950 from the sale of the rug was donated to Phase III of the Penn State Agricultural Arena.

Shey-Land Cleitus Alix-ET topped the Pennsylvania State Holstein Convention Sale. Consigned by George and Paul Sheypuk of Jermyn, she was purchased by Circle Lane Syndicate of Middlebury, Indiana, for $21,000.

Junge Ned Boy Penny, consigned by Raymond Moyer of New Tripoli, sold to Premier Breeders of England for $14,800. Included in the price were five frozen embryos sired by Eric-Dew Quietcove Michael.

Fidelity Mark Lydia, consigned by Steve Hoover of Fidelity Holsteins, Martinsburg, was second highest selling animal, going to Mike Bobal of Hollidaysburg for $17,500. Included in the price was a contract for eight embryos at $1,350 apiece.

versus the number of jobs open in these fields."

The composition of Penn State has also changed, Hood said. In 1955, when he was a student there, 80 percent of the students in the college of agriculture had been raised on farms. Today, about 15 percent have. "We are aggressively working to encourage non-farm students to come in," he said. Of the 100,000 4-H members in Pennsylvania, 15,000 of them are in Philadelphia. "We need to take advantage of the interest these kids are expressing in hydroponics and embryology," he said.

Membership Awards

In other business, the Pennsylvania Holstein Association recognized their membership solicitors at the breakfast. Receiving jackets for soliciting from five to nine new members were: Wendell Smith, Butler County; David Stahl, Somerset County; Melvin Marks, York County; Calvin Will, Somerset County; John Coleman, Lancaster County; James Houser, Centre County; Harry Mosholder, Somerset County.

Milk Promotion Contest

The Pennsylvania Holstein Association recognized several Holstein Milk Promotion groups for their work during 1989. Each club received a monetary award.

In first place for the second year in a row with the best new idea was Beaver/Lawrence Counties, Wendy Cooper and Marlene Mitchletree, chairpersons.

In second place was Lebanon County Sue Werner, chairman.

Third place went to Huntingdon County, Max and Eleanor Isenberg, chairpersons.

Representatives from the Milk Promotion groups of Adams, Centre, McKean, Perry and Somerset Counties received effort awards.

All-Pennsylvania Awards

James Burdette, chairman of the Show Committee, presented the All-Pennsylvania awards. These are awarded to the top animals in each of 18 classes from three major shows sponsored by the Pennsylvania Holstein Association. Animals shown at the Spring Show, one of five Regional Championship Shows, and the Fall Championship Show earn points toward All-Pennsylvania honors.

In 1989, some 1,330 head were shown at these major shows with 54 head earning All-Pennsylvania, Reserve All-Pennsylvania, and Honorable Mention All-Pennsylvania recognition.

Richard and Georgianna Locke, Mercersburg, led the way with four All-Pennsylvania Awards. Queens Manor Holsteins, Jamestown, and James and Nina Burdette, Mercersburg, each received three All-Pennsylvania Awards, with Steve and Chris Wood, Littlestown, receiving two.

The remaining awards were split among 34 other exhibitors.

Progressive Breeder Recognition

Twenty-four Pennsylvania Holstein Association members were honored with the prestigious Progressive Breeder Registry Award at the breakfast. The requirements for the award are:

Receiving the award for the first time were David Countryman, Berlin; Richard Higley, Forksville; John and Susan Howard, Willow Street; Thomas C. Lapp, Gap; and Terry and Shirley Womer, Middleburg.

How Safe Is Our Food?

level of health consciousness is a major force in the sometimes fanatical concern over food safety.

"Today we can afford to demand the cleanest food," relates the researcher, who noted that in the post-war days in his native Germany, "We took whatever food we could get."

Environmentalism is tied to food safety concerns. Many of the agricultural and technological practices are not understood by those attacking them, Dr. Kroger adds.

Food safety experts do agree that there are concerns over the food supply which need continuing research. Topping the list are mycotoxins, toxic molds which can naturally occur in foods. Aflatoxins which develop in corn under certain growing conditions is one of the more familiar of the mycotoxins.

Bacterial food poisoning is a continuing concern of food scientists, and a frequent cause of intestinal upsets. "Waging war with Mother Nature," is Dr. Kroger's assessment of the ongoing existence of naturally-occurring food problems.

Pollutants, both industrial and agricultural, should have continued research by legitimate scientists, as should process-induced intoxicants which may get into a food supply during processing.

Potentially harmful food additives, contaminants produced by the body itself chemically changing foods in the digestive process, and parasites are other food safety issues experts would like to see get more intense study.

Dr. Kroger sees education as the key to greater understanding of food issues, especially improved general knowledge of agriculture and food production.

"There is less fear with understanding," he insists. "We must teach technological literacy, and learn to make decisions on a risk-vs.-benefit basis.

"We must develop in our children an understanding of just how Mother Nature functions."

Lebanon Farm And Home Center Underway

VERNON ACHENBACH JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

LEBANON (Lebanon Co.) — Farmers in this south central county will no longer have to drive around town in order to do business.

Officials with the Lebanon Valley Exposition Corporation announced plans Tuesday for the construction of a $500,000 farm and home center at the Lebanon Area Fair Grounds.

According to officials, the farm and home center building is projected to be finished and ready for tenants by August 1, just in time for the Lebanon Area Fair.

The new building isn't the only construction planned at the fair grounds, however.

"This is Phase I" of a large expansion plan, said John H. Gerdes, president of the Lebanon Valley Exposition Corp. and chairman of its development committee.

He said an overall expansion program at the fair grounds, separate from the farm and home center, is expected to cost up to $1.2 million and would include a large addition to the existing main show building, improved parking, lighting, and other general improvements.

All funding for the expansion is to come from fund-raising efforts done during the next several months, Gerdes said.

Funding for the farm and home center is provided through loans made available through Peoples National Bank.

Gerdes said future visitors to the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds should see an increased spectrum of events.

Currently, about 50 different events are held at the grounds, including the annual fair, and others done through the county builders association, the Lebanon Bologna Fest, a Brethren Relief Sale, the Lebanon Valley Auction Co., Airstream Trailers Association, National Campers and Hikers Association, county dairy association, the Lebanon Quilters Guild, and a variety of events held by farm youth groups and family reunions.

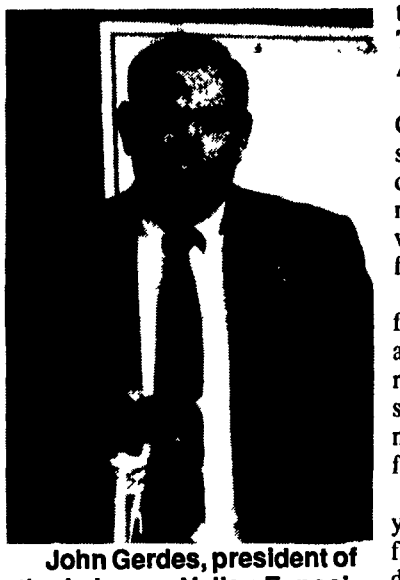
Gerdes said that in the future, the fair grounds will be seen as more of a "community civic center."

But for the county's farmers, the announcement of the farm and home center comes as welcome relief.

For many years, farm agencies in Lebanon County have been located up to 10 miles apart. Because the agencies' operations is interelated, and often requires patrons to go from one office to the other to complete projects, farmers have to spend a considerable amount of time driving or make extra appointments to accomplish paperwork.

Additionally, the offices of those agencies are not easy to find for the uninitiated are generally not ideally suited for the work required.

The county conservation district and USDA's Soil Conservation Service are currently located in back offices in an old building, tucked among small machine shops and businesses, along Rt. 422 on the east side of town. Parking there is severly restricted.



John Gerdes, president of the Lebanon Valley Exposition Corporation, announces plans for a farm and home center to be built at the Lebanon Area Fairgrounds and general expansion plans for the fair grounds.

The Farm and Home Administration is located on the other side of town from the SCS and conservation district building, a distance of at least 10 miles.

The Lebanon office of the USDA Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) is located about midway between the FmHA and the SCS locations. The ASCS office is in the Lebanon Agway building.

The offices of the Penn State Cooperative Extension are on the south side of town in the basement of the county municipal building, not conveniently located for those who also need to visit the other four agencies.

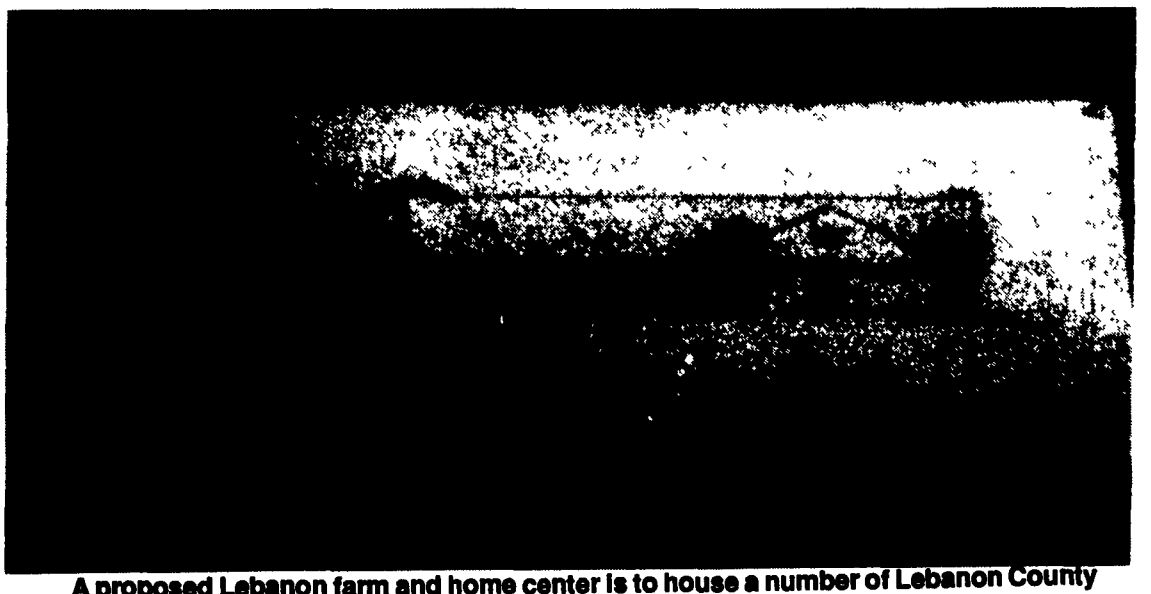
The proposed 4,400 square foot farm and home center is to house all of the agencies at an initial rental rate of $12 per year, per square foot. Gerdes said that the new building will be self-financing.

"We expect that within one year, the rentals will meet the cash flow needs of the building," Gerdes said.

The county extension offices will occupy half of that space and apparently will pay about $25,000 in rent. Currently the extension is granted free use of the municipal offices, however, county agencies need to use those offices.

The other four agencies have about equal space in the other half of the proposed building, and rent is expected to run proportionately, he said.

About 20 acres of land adjoining the fairgrounds property was purchased at a "significantly reduced rate" in order to locate the farm and home center near, but not among the existing building at the fairground. The center is to be built near Evergreen and Cornwall roads.



A proposed Lebanon farm and home center is to house a number of Lebanon County agricultural agencies.

Vaccinate Early

stock in a timely and correct manner.

Proof of the timely vaccinations, based on one test result, involved 145,000 vaccinated and 83,000 nonvaccinated birds in one sample. Of the vaccinated, only 2.15 percent developed the reovirus infection; with the nonvaccinated, the number infected rose to 2.59 percent.

"It is important to vaccinate broilers in the early stages when the chicks are suspected of carrying the virus," Gerencer said.

How the virus is spread should be a concern to all poultry flock managers.

Tracked Into Farms

About 90 to 100 percent of all viruses are tracked into poultry farms on footwear, said Gerencer. Workers must sanitize their boots before working with poultry flocks.

According to Gerencer:

- 1 gram of manure contains enough viral particles to infect 1 million chickens (1 gram of manure will cover the surface of a dime).
- There is a danger of the bacteria and viruses being carried in on crates and coops.
- The signs of an infection of reovirus include viral arthritis (VA) — a swelling of tendons up above, down below, and around the hawk.
- The virus contaminates birds through fecal/oral or fecal/respiratory transmission.
- Reovirus infection is common around the world.

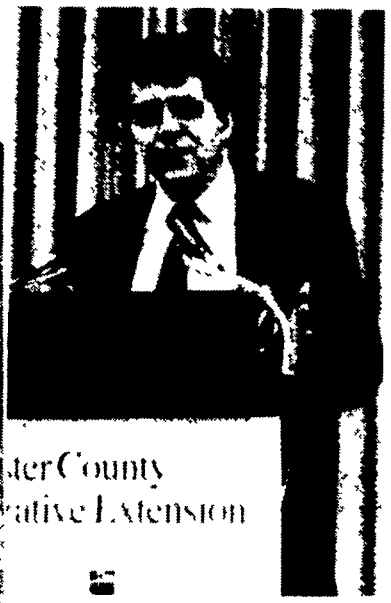
"It is important to vaccinate broilers in the early stages when the chicks are suspected of carrying the virus," said Dr. Bill Gerencer, director of poultry health at Avian Farms, at the Poultry Progress Day in Lancaster.

"Sometimes a fat-to-feed problem or vitamin deficiency looks like a reovirus problem," Gerencer said. "It's hard to determine exactly what the problem is."

Gerencer pointed out that farmers may falsely label a nutritional problem on a reo-infection. Farmers must be careful when diagnosing and treating reovirus problems.

Pretty Tough Guy

"A farmer is a pretty tough guy. He hangs on and hangs on and hopes it goes away," said Dr. William F. Porter, department of pulmonary medicine, Lancaster General Hospital. "He believes it is a cold, and he may not realize it could be something in the workplace or the environment causing cold-like symptoms to develop."



"A farmer is a pretty tough guy. He hangs on and hangs on and hopes it goes away," said Dr. William F. Porter, department of pulmonary medicine, Lancaster General Hospital, at Poultry Progress Day. "He believes it is a cold, and he may not realize it could be something in the workplace or the environment causing cold-like symptoms to develop."

Porter examined ways farmers can protect their lungs from dust, molds, gases, pesticides, and other particles at the seminar.

Farmers usually encounter dust in their environment. To those individuals (about 20 percent of the human population have a family history of allergies) who may be susceptible or sensitive to dust, particularly hay mold, they may develop flu-like symptoms.

Barn dust has many fungal spores, manure, insects, insect parts, bacteria, and ammonia from excrement. The best way to shield against these contaminants is either using a simple face mask, a face shield with mask, or a respiratory mask with centralized filter.

Dealing With Gas

"The main thrust of dealing with gas is to keep the area well ventilated," Porter said. Problems to look for, especially in poultry houses, are histoplasmosis, which produces pneumonia in victims. In Mississippi, for instance, 80 percent of the people working in farms have contracted histoplasmosis before they are 30 years old, said Porter.

Only 7 percent of the total number of histoplasmosis cases reported have been from Lancaster County. Histoplasmosis is normally contracted through exposure to recently excavated roosting or dropping areas. The virus can lay dormant in the body for 20 to 40 years and reassert itself if a person's immunity system weakens later on.

"Self help is dangerous help," said Charles A. Achey, attorney-at-law. "You may be facing criminal charges and civil liability if you use force to protect your property."

Achey discussed ways farmers can protect their property if a break-in and vandalism occurs.

Three Steps

Achey said the best thing to do in case you are confronted with trespassers and vandalism is to follow three important steps: (1) notify police; (2) have a phone handy, especially a cellular phone in case phone lines are cut; and (3) provide gates and locks at sensitive, strategic locations.

A property owner is allowed, by law, to use "justifiable and reasonable" force to protect property. But the best method is to use a properly posted and signed "no trespassing" notice posted where it is easily seen on your property.

Using dogs on premise and letting the public know that you are protecting your farm are also important.

Adequate insurance, and using surveillance cameras, may help prevent a possible future break-in. "An ounce of prevention is worth a life of cure," Achey said.

Mid-Atlantic Dairy Farmers' Newest Spokesperson — Cynthia Kereluk

TOWSON, MD — To the millions of cable TV viewers who start their day with Cynthia Kereluk's exercise show, "The Everybody Workout," one message is clear -- A Healthier You Is Within Reach. Soon millions of consumers will be receiving another message from Cynthia -- this one, "Milk. It Does A Body Good."

Cynthia, known as the "Exercise Educator" and the "Aerobics Queen" will be touting the goodness of milk in a new television commercial for the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association. Via a startling technique, viewers will see how vital milk is to the development of strong bones and good health.

The television commercial is scheduled to premier April 16 throughout the Middle Atlantic milk marketing area. Although Cynthia is on the screen for the entire commercial, viewers will see only her skeleton performing the exercises as Cynthia talks about the importance of proper diet combined with the proper exercise program. The skeletal image is an innovative approach to dramatize the calcium message to the target audience of women between the ages of 18 and 49.

At 5'6" and a trim 120 pounds, blond, blue-eyed Cynthia is a model of health and radiates fitness and vitality. Her show, "The Everyday Workout" acquired by CATV Lifetime Television, reaches 42 million homes across the country each day.

As a child, Cynthia learned that good health was truly a blessing and has devoted her life to showing others how to improve their health through physical fitness.

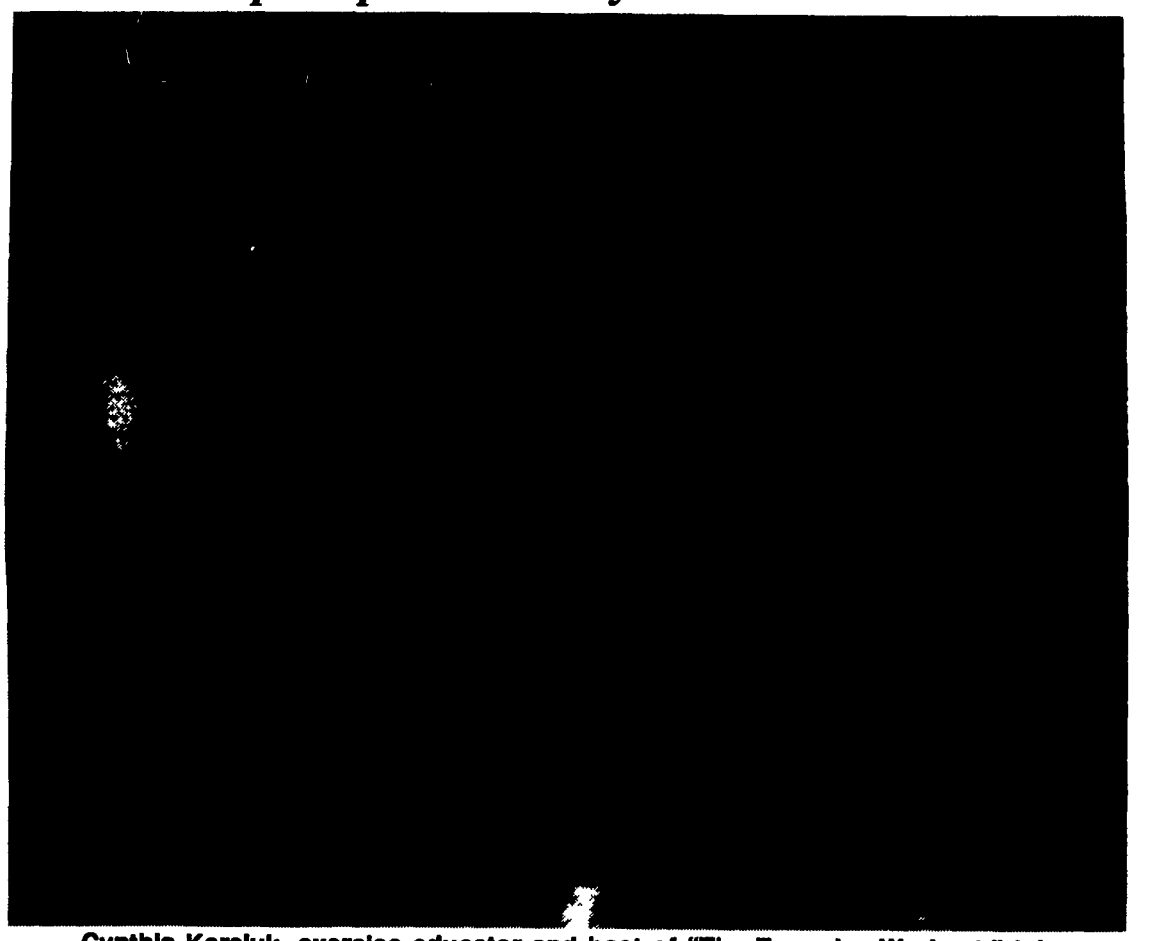
"Adopted into a family of ten-plus, where most were physically or mentally disabled, you quickly realize that good health should not be taken for granted," says Cynthia.

One-week-old Cynthia was adopted by Elizabeth Kereluk. Although Elizabeth never gave birth to any children of her own, Cynthia's mother did give life through endless love and caring to ten-plus children who found their way to the Kereluk home. Only Cynthia was caucasian and seven had either mental or physical handicaps. Two had disfiguring Lupus disease. Two were partially paralyzed from polio. One had no arms. One was retarded. One had a head too heavy for her neck to support.

The family became known as Kereluk's Rainbow because the children were all colors, according to Cynthia. Growing up as a member of Kereluk's Rainbow, oftentimes meant growing up fast. In trying to make others understand and accept the disabilities of her family members, Cynthia developed maturity and wisdom early in life.

Money was always in short supply, but there was never a shortage of love. Still, it was not an easy life for the Kereluk family. Not every rainbow holds the promise of a pot o' gold, but eventually the Kereluk Rainbow held a different form of riches for Cynthia. Her childhood inspired her to succeed in leading others to live healthier lives through fitness.

"I always felt I had to prove that I was just as good as other people and maybe that's why I did so well academically and athletically, because that was my way of saying, 'Yes, you're right. I come from a very different family, but I am just as good as you.' And that's why I worked so hard as I did. Maybe I was trying to prove it to myself more than anyone," says Cynthia.



Cynthia Kereluk, exercise educator and host of "The Everyday Workout," joins with the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association in a startling new television commercial to show consumers how vital milk is to the development of strong bones.

After college graduation Cynthia taught school and aerobics, but not traditional aerobics. She used three levels of instruction for three levels of difficulty, to accommodate the widest possible spectrum of participants: young, old, fit, unfit, disabled or able-bodied.

Cynthia's introduction to television came in 1984 when she was crowned Miss Canada. Like her childhood and her method of teaching aerobics, her reign as Miss Canada was also non-traditional.

"I wanted people to know me for me. I didn't like to look like Barbie all the time. It's hard enough for people to get beyond the banner. It could be totally disconcerting for somebody to try and approach you. So I played the hair and make-up way down," says Cynthia.

Wholesomeness and that all-American look became Cynthia's trademark. These qualities became the impetus to her popularity. After her reign she wrote "The Everyday Workout" and taped 65 half-hour segments. In its first season on the air, her show won the distinction of being Canada's premiere fitness and sports program. In March of 1989, "The Everyday Workout" was syndicated in the United States and began airing May 1.

She has written several other award-winning health and fitness shows. Her "Lean Body Workout" is available on video. She hosted "Neuropsychology of Weight Control," a scientific weight loss program written and researched by doctors at Brigham Young University. Also, in cooperation with Dr. Pataki, who works with the United States Olympic athletes, she has researched and designed a total health and fitness video.

Cynthia grew up on a small farm in Canada which is now operated by several family members and is home to a small sheep herd. She returns to the farm for two months every year. Touting the goodness of milk and other dairy products, she feels is a natural for her since these items are an important part of her diet.

Cynthia feels she has accomplished more than she has ever dreamed possible in her life, but she admits she did not do it alone. Although the death of her mother eight years ago and the loss of her father four years ago overshadows Cynthia's success, she believes her mother and father are guiding her life.

"I feel very blessed that I have been given what I have in my life and I feel that my mom is up there along with my dad, sort of looking down. I feel that she is up there guiding my life, along with God."

Cynthia turns 30 on her next birthday and is excited about it. She looks forward to the next 30 years of her life with great anticipation.

"I've never known a game to be over in the first half; it is always won in the last half. I am looking forward to my years to whatever God will give me."

Marketers Convinced, Farming Skeptical

Dairy Farmers Still Perplexed About BST

"I'm concerned that [BST use] will probably speed up the decline of the small farm," said Dale Hershey, a Manheim dairyman, at the panel dealing with experiences and observations with bovine somatotropin (BST) at the Lancaster Dairy Day. People have been ingesting naturally occurring BST in milk "all our lives, every one of us who drinks milk or eats meat has done that," said Robert Patton, a Monsanto nutritionist, speaking. LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — File this one under the heading "More Research Needed."

For the more than 250 dairy farmers and industry representatives at the Lancaster County Dairy Day on Tuesday, the word on bovine somatotropin (BST), a hormone naturally produced by the cow and, recently, injected into cows to increase milk yield, is still no word.

For more than five years, the debate has raged on the use, effectiveness, and safety of using BST, a naturally occurring protein produced by the cow's pituitary gland. BST has been successfully "cloned" in the laboratory and injected experimentally into cows to test changes in milk yield.

The industry has mixed emotions about BST. Although not yet approved for sale by the FDA, companies such as Monsanto, Upjohn, Eli Lilly, and American Cyanimid want to market the synthetic growth hormone immediately. But some farmers remain concerned whether, once it is approved by the FDA, it will work — and produce any harmful side effects in cows or humans.

Decline Of Farm

"I'm concerned that]BST use[will probably speed up the decline of the small farm," said Dale Hershey, a Manheim dairyman. "I'm a small farm and I wish to stay a small farm. I can compete with or without BST. I do think there are farmers out there who will find managing herds with BST difficult."

Dairy marketing experts such as Robert Yonkers, Penn State ag economist, said that BST will lower milk cost per hundredweight by 65 cents. Studies conducted by Monsanto Agricultural Company, a BST manufacturer and marketer based in St. Louis, Missouri, indicate a milk yield increase by 10 to 25 percent per cow per day "within several days after use."

In a Fact Sheet prepared by Monsanto, the BST they manufacture is "identical to cow's own."

"It is produced through biotechnology in the same manner used to make such valuable human drugs as insulin for diabetes," according

BST Injected

After it is produced in the laboratory, BST is injected into the liver of a cow. The chemical binds to the receptors on the cow's liver and causes a release of insulin growth factor 1 (IGF-1), which increases blood flow through the udder.

"With more blood to the udder, you get more milk from the cow," said Robert Patton, a nutritionist from Monsanto Agricultural Company. "The adipose tissue effects cause an increase in nutrient flow and fat through the udder.".

Farmers should be aware that using BST will cause an increase in how much dry matter the cow consumes. Because milk production will increase, energy is needed from feed intake.

There is no change in the conception rate using BST, according to studies by Monsanto. "But the BST cow may be open about another heat cycle longer," Patton said. However, Patton indicated that BST cows get pregnant at approximately the same rate.

Exists Naturally

BST exists naturally in milk at an amount of 2 to 3 parts per billion. "What's that worth?" Patton said. "That's a couple of grains of sand on a truckload full — a very, very small amount. Treating cows with exogenous BST does not change the levels of BST in the milk."

Patton indicated that people have been ingesting naturally occurring BST in milk "all our lives, every one of us who drinks milk or eats meat has done that."

BST is not absorbed into the human digestive tract and is no danger to humans, Patton said. Three or four companies will have a BST product out by mid-fall, in perhaps October or November this year, he predicted.

BST already has a laboratory track record. The growth hormone was approved by the FDA for use in testing by the dairy industry in 1985, according to Yonkers. But it has not been approved for commercial use. However, the issues of cow safety are still being considered and the effects on cow milk production still under heavy examination.

Potential Impacts

A panel moderated by Glenn A. Shirk, dairy extension agent, discussed some of the potential impacts of BST on the dairy farm. In summary, the following information was presented:

* Farmers must still consider adjusting the feed material upward and be concerned also with cow body condition.

* Through extensive tests, BST was shown to have no obvious effect on reproduction.

* Using BST on selected herds, there has been no increase in health problems, change in herd health, or decrease in longevity of cows.

* BST is not the "magic bullet" that Jack Doyle, of the Environmental Policy Institute, contends it to be.

* In one test conducted with the help of Kenneth Nobice, a Michigan dairyman, rolling herds experienced a 15 percent increase in production in the days BST was administered, or 170 days in lactation. The overall effect is a production increase of 7 percent using BST, with no herd health problems at all, as long as the cows maintain good body condition. BST is discontinued four weeks before the cows are dried off.

* Farmers should establish clear goals on production if they intend to use BST.

* After the FDA approves the sale and use of BST, which many predict will be late this year, there will be various "injection" choices for farmers, depending on the size of dosage and dosage release time. A 14-day injection is used by Nobis on his BST test herd in Michigan. The dosage will be set by the FDA, according to Patton. The price will range from 35 to 50 cents per cow per day.

* DHIA listings will be drastically changed once BST is implemented. DHIA must more seriously consider the BST issue once it is on the market.

Product Of Biotechnology

"BST is a product of biotechnology," said Yonkers. "There is a concern about what kind of impact it will have on the industry."

Economic studies of BST use have ranged from no impact to catastrophic impact on the industry. Most of the studies released so far have been "press-release" type of studies not reviewed by experts in the industry, especially scientists, before being published, according to Yonkers.

Dale Hershey, along with many other dairy farmers, is concerned about promotion and consumer response that will be generated because of BST.

"The industry has had a relatively pure image — we may not have our pure image anymore. It will take a while to learn BST and more commitment than some dairymen will be willing to put into the management," he said.

Using Computers On The Farm

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — A one-day conference to help farmers understand the application of computers on the farm and advancements in computer technology will be offered on March 8, from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. at the Farm and Home Center.

"The Agricultural Computing Conference is designed for new computer users and people considering purchasing a computer," said Dr. John H. Schwartz, extension agent. A panel of farmers will be discussing their experiences with computers.

A morning session will discuss the development of personal computer skills, lessons learned, tips on buying hardware and software, problems encountered, and the use of computers in a particular operation.

The afternoon session will address where the industry is heading in agricultural computing, including emerging computer technology and its implications for agriculture. Topics include new developments in hardware environmental monitoring, expert systems, and telecommunications.

Exhibits from companies providing computer services for agriculture will be included at the conference.

Unknown Disease Causing Sheep Birth Defects

VERNON ACHENBACH, JR.
Lancaster Farming Staff

HUMMELSTOWN (Dauphin Co.) — Experts suspect that a mosquito-transmitted virus is causing a large number of fatal birth defects in sheep in south central counties.

Although the cause of the birth defects has not been completely proven to be the suspect virus, officials said the symptoms are typical of a disease seen in flocks in Western states.

Three cases were confirmed to be the result of the virus, as of Friday. All cases are confined to southcentral Pennsylvania.

The effect of the disease is being heavily felt in certain areas. A Hummelstown livestock veterinarian said two of the largest sheep producers in the Lebanon, Dauphin, and Lancaster counties region she serves have reported losses of up to 50 percent of their expected lambs.

However, officials have said that there are apparently no steps that can be taken to prevent or stop the disease.

Scientists at Penn State and Cornell universities are currently studying the malformed dead lambs in an attempt to isolate the exact cause of the fatal deformities.

Harper said that the virus-afflicted sheep are always deformed in the central nervous system. A certain number of lambs die without such malformations from a variety of causes. Such natural deaths should not be confused with the virus.

The birth defects are thought to be caused by Cache Valley virus (CVV), a virus which causes Arthrogryposis Hydrocephalis, or AGH syndrome. Officials suspect CVV is the cause of AGH.

Authorities said AGH syndrom is more common in Texas, Michigan and Nebraska, but new to this area.

Susan Harper, a livestock veterinarian operating out of Hummelstown, said that, in the last two months, she has seen nearly 100 lambs die because of developmental problems of the central nervous system.

Afflictions range, she said, from lambs with poorly formed or twisted spines to animals developed perfectly except for the lack of a head and brain.

Almost all of the suspected AGH lambs are born dead, she said. But of a few that have been born alive, Harper said they died quickly because of their spinal deformities.

According to Harper, the other symptoms associated with AGH syndrome are stiff, rigid joints and water on the brain, which is what AGH literally means.

Harper said officials suspect that the disease has become known in this area due to an increased growth and interest in the sheep industry locally, and breeders shipping new stock here from across the country.

She said the virus is short-lived and travels from sheep to sheep through mosquitos which feed on multiple hosts. Ewes infected with the disease while pregnant show no symptoms. The only symptom occurs with the malformation of the developing lamb.

Harper said all ewes that have given birth to defective lambs have experienced difficulty because of the stiff legs of the lamb. The malformed offspring can pose a threat to the life of an ewe attempting to deliver an AGH lamb, if human assistance can not be rendered in time.

It is also speculated that the loss of lambs could soon affect prices for locally-produced spring lambs.

Open Letter To Pennsylvania's Farmers

I was shocked, to put it mildly, to see a paid political ad in the February 3rd issue of Lancaster Farming paid for by the Pennsylvania Ag Republicians. I realize that in a paid ad the persons placing and paying for the ad decide on the content of the material. However, I feel compelled to respond based on my personal knowledge of the ag-related budget items as Chairman of the House Committee on Agriculture and Rural Affairs.

During my years of service in the PA House of Representatives the House leadership has looked upon the Agriculture Committee as probably the least partisan of all the standing committees. I have always made a conscious effort to conduct the operation of the Committee in that manner. The activities and actions of the Committee are based on what will most benefit our #1 industry, not whether it is Democrat or Republican. For that reason, as Chairman of the Agriculture Committee, I have always played a prominent role in restoration or increases in various ag-related budget items, and this was done with the full bi-partisan support of the entire Committee.

I also feel it is necessary to refresh the memories of everyone interested in the well being of agriculture that under the previous Administration, we did not have support for farmland preservation, something that is now an accomplished fact. We were denied having independent commodity promotion boards, now we do have them. We did not have an Animal Health Commission, one which is now operating. Jointly, in a bi-partisan spirit of cooperation, we were able to get very substantial increases in financial support for the Cooperative Extension Service, county fairs and ag research, just to name a few.

Under the previous Administration the Governor's request for agriculture research leveled off at $310,000. Under the Casey Administration the Governor's request started at $1,000,000 and increased to $2,500,000 by the third year. The requested appropriation for County Fairs followed the same pattern, going from $2,500,000 in the prior Administration to the present request for $3,750,000.

Since this Administrazstion took office, staffing has increased in areas important to all residents of the Commonwealth as well as agriculture. For example, the Bureau of Plant Industry increased 33% in its Agronomics Division which includes environmental concerns such as groundwater. At the same time, the Bureau of Food and Chemistry increased by 21% in number of Food Inspectors.

While it is true that few of us get everything we would like to have, either in our political or private lives, I think the accomplishments I have mentioned speak for themselves. I'll let you decide who is looking out for the future of agriculture.

BUG CONTROL
by Donald L. Singletary

Litter beetles, flies and spiders continue to be a problem to control for many poultry producers. Spiders produce a cob web problem, flies are an annoyance and beetles damage insulation and carry disease.

Keeping these pests under control can be very difficult. Some poultry producers report that they are disappointed with the results of spraying for these pests. This would indicate that the pests have developed a resistance to the products used or that the product may have been used improperly.

What products are available? The following table lists some of the commonly used products, the pests controlled and approximately how long the product is effective.

PRODUCT	PESTS CONTROLLED	DURATION OF ACTIVITY
Seven (carbaryl)	All	Short
Red Zone	Beetles only	Long (6-12 mos)
Insectrin (permethrin)	All	Several months
RaVap	All	1-2 months
Residual Fly Spray	All	Up to 8 weeks (cygon, dimethoate)

A common and frequently asked question is - Can these insecticide products be mixed with disinfectants? For the best results, each product should be applied separately. They should not be mixed even though it would be convenient and labor saving. A relatively new product is Red Zone. It is recommended for use on those premises where the litter beetle is resistant to other products. This product is expensive but it has the longest residual effectiveness. It is also safe and non-toxic. However, Red Zone cannot be mixed with other products. It must be applied separately. Residual Fly Spray (cygon) is moderately toxic and has up to 8 weeks residual effectiveness. It must not be applied on chickens or when the birds are in the house. Sevin has been used for years and many growers still like it and find that it does a good job for them. Also, it can be mixed with certain disinfectants. Permethrin is the active ingredient in Insectrin and Ectiban. These products have low toxicity, moderately long duration of effectiveness and are best used as residual sprays. RaVap is a combination of a low and high toxicity organophosphate. It has a relatively short duration of activity but is effective against most poultry pests. When using any of these products, remember to read the label for the directions, precautions, restrictions and proper method for disposal of the contents and container.

Wetland Legislation Violates Rights

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — "Present wetland legislation is confiscation of property and a violation of our constitutionally guaranteed property rights," Eva Foster told Directors of the Chester/Delaware Farmers' Association at their monthly meeting

A resident of Westtown, Foster related a horror story of the loss of the use of their property and denigration of the value of their property. In other business, Directors planned visits to legislators in Washington and Harrisburg, heard committee reports and Curtis Kratz, Region 3 Director of the Pennsylvania Farmers' Association.

"The existing legislation burdens farmers with costly engineering studies," Foster said. "Apparently the landowner must prove all aspects of the law to get any compensation. This process can be long, costly and contested at every juncture by DER. This is contradictory to the Constitutional mandate that a person is innocent until found guilty by a jury of his peers. The burden should be on the Department of Environmental Resources and the state to prove it does not owe full compensation whenever a permit is denied or some condition imposed.

"The U.S. Constitution makes no arbitrary threshhold for the compensation for the confiscation of property. The existing Dam Safety and Encroachment Act is clearly repressive legislation that brings hardship on all landholders, especially farmers," Foster emphasized. "Legislators should be held responsible for justifying the violation of property rights."

President Dick Breckbill, Oxford, appointed a committee to assist in the adoption of a returnable beverage container law. "Such a program will encourage and further reduce solid waste in landfills," Breckbill pointed out. "The proposed program would encourage consumers to recycle bottles and cans and not dispose of them in farmers' fields. Broken bottles and the cans do considerable damage to farmers' tires and equipment. Livestock injuries can be attributed to the litter discarded from passing vehicles."

Petitions will be distributed to Chester/Delaware Farmers' Association members for the collection of signatures. Non-members are encouraged to participate in implementing a returnable container program to reduce litter and solid waste costs.

Robert Lange, Westtown, Chairman of the Governmental Relations Committee, announced the annual trip to Washington to confer with legislators is scheduled for March 7-8. A legislative update for participants will be held at Yoder's, New Holland, on Feb. 21.

The legislative trip to Harrisburg will be April 2. Any Farmers' Association member interested in making either trip should contact a County Director immediately, Lange said. It is necessary to attend the update meeting to complete details.

Lange is making a special trip to Washington to meet with members of the House Ways and Means Committee, to urge adoption of House Bill 2338. "The adoption of this bill would help farmers in high growth areas surrounding cities to retain their land in farming. Because of soaring land values in suburban areas, estate taxes can gobble a farm out of existence," Lange asserted.

Charles Woollaston, Toughkenamon, Membership Chairman revealed that just 9 more members added to the Association list would put them over their goal of 672 members. There are 80 new members in the Association, 34 of them through the efforts of Woollaston.

Charles Moore, Cochranville, Chairman of the Spring Banquet, said that the banquet would be held April 5, at the West Fallowfield Christian School. Members are urged to obtain their reservations early.

Curtis Kratz, Souderton, reported on the annual meeting of the American Farm Bureau Federation held in New Orleans, in January. "While farmers from all over America may not agree on all things, their respect for principles is to be commended. The concensus of the members of AFBF is that the family farm is fundamental to maintaining agricultural sufficiency in this country."

Ed Koncle, Lititz, Regional Organization Director, distributed a list of subjects available from the PFA tape library. These include topics on land use, milk marketing, farm safety, boycotts, negotiating, animal welfare, pesticides and more. The topics are suitable for all age groups including Jr. and Sr. High Schools and advisory councils. A copy of the list can be obtained from Pennsylvania Farmers' Assoc. PR division, P.O. Box 8736, Camp Hill, PA 17001-8736.

Milk Price Outlook

THOMAS JURCHAK
LACKAWANNA COUNTY

SCRANTON (Lackawanna Co.) — By now you know that the Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series took the biggest drop in history when it fell 99 cents to $13.97 in January.

That will be reflected immediately in the Class II price that handlers pay for January milk but producers won't feel the total impact in their milk check this month.

Fortunately, the Class I price in January reflects the M-W for November that was $15.65, making the Class I price 82 cents better than last month. Almost a trade off with Class II going down 99 cents and Class I up 82 cents — but not quite.

With a Class I utilization of only 41.7 percent, it will cost you 30 cents on the uniform or blend price for January. That would make it $15.17 to start the new year and that's not too bad. It's $2.22 better than a year ago, and a record high price for January, even after a 6.3-cent assessment to meet the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings budget deficit reduction target, as required by the Budget Reconciliation Act.

This will be a one-time-only assessment collected by the handlers and sent to the Commodity Credit Corporation to reduce the cost of dairy price supports.

So much for the "good" news.

What about the February M-W? There's no question that it will fall again, because cheese prices took a drop to $1.26 in February from $1.54 in the first week of January.

That's a total of 28 cents in six weeks which means $2.80 a hundred on milk for cheese. That's a lot and more than was expected because inventories aren't that large, after four months of fighting for milk supplies with the powder manufacturers.

There are signs of cheese prices holding or even increasing a little in late February but they've gone down too far already to avoid another cut in the M-W in February.

Powder prices in the central and western markets are already down to support prices, and the market price for butter is still the support price, so we can't expect much help from these products to keep the M-W up.

It won't be another 99-cent drop in February, and a lot depends on how long cheese dealers want to wait for another spring flush to rebuild their inventories. They were burned last year and paid dearly, but they may gamble that the export market for powder will dwindle and milk production, which has pulled up even with a year ago, will continue to increase for the next four months.

Looking Back

Now that we look back on 1989, nearly everyone agrees that the combination of circumstances, that produced increases of over $4 a hundred in Order 2 from May to December, may never happen again.

Not that you won't see prices that high in the future but not for the same reasons.

We've had bad weather before, but this time it hit in the upper mid west, where it could affect milk prices most severely, and came at a time when Commodity Credit Corporation had no government stocks to stabilize prices, because they were all given away under the Temporary Emergency Food Assistance Progarm.

At the same time, milk production was down in the northeast and handlers had to pay record high premiums, because they couldn't get milk in the usual "surplus" areas.

The annual spring flush never happened, and the cheese makers, who were waiting for it, had to fight with powder manufacturers for the reduced supplies of milk available. Both paid premiums to get the milk to fill their contracts.

This never happened before, because cheese makers usually got what they wanted and butter-powder manufacturers still had enough for their needs at prices that kept dairy products a bargain among food items in the supermarket.

What made powder manufacturers competitive in this bidding for milk supplies was an unexpected boom in export markets when world prices increased, for the first time, well above our support price; partly because of milk production quotas in Europe.

Prices would have gone even higher, it we didn't postpone, until this year, the delivery of powder to Mexico and returned some we had exported earlier to Germany.

So all of these things combined to give us a big, but temporary, increase in milk prices. And one by one, each is being changed to a more "normal" situation. Prices will fall as changes occur.

Contracts for the export powder markets are expiring and other countries are ready to compete again at lower prices.

Cheese makers feel they took a beating in such "chaotic" market conditions and are waiting to see the worm turn in their favor again.

With the high export demand for powder, butter piled up in CCC warehouses and the support price dropped to $9.88, but no one paid much attention, becuase market prices were $5.00 higher.

Now with the help of lower feed prices and higher milk prices, production is on the increase at a time when we seasonally expect it.

With reasonably good weather, this should continue to the end of this year even at prices lower than the second half of last year.

So, while you still feel the effects of last year's markets in this year's milk checks, you can expect them to dwindle month by month until $12.00 milk (before premiums) may become a fact of life by mid-year.

Looking Ahead

If every cloud has a silver lining, then falling milk prices may be helpful in accomplishing some of the results many have hoped for, but never quite accomplished. Everyone would like to see the milk prices of late 1989 maintained into the future, but if you're sincere it's going to take a massive effort to get it.

With the new farm bill expected to be passed this summer, many are making proposals to legislate higher prices into the next four years by a variety of methods.

Congress on the other hand is inclined, with the backing of a lot of taxpayers, to spend less on farm programs. Whatever you propose, you may have to pay for.

This will call for a lot unity among dairy interests. Much more than we've seen in the past.

While everyone claims "market oriented" programs, the differences are still divisive.

For those who want the self-help programs, without reliance on unpredictable government compromise, the opportunity seems to be even greeter.

If we learned anything from last year's price, it was that the consumer is willing to pay much more for dairy products in the 1990s than they did in the 1980s.

They may not support government subsidies, but they will pay higher prices. So that leaves the door wide open for, what have come to be known, as over-order premiums paid by the consumers to get the products they want.

Cooperative organizations already exist in Federal Order markets to do this, and all that is lacking is the participation of all producers to make it work.

When prices were going up, many producers felt they could do better negotiating premiums from handlers without a cooperative. Perhaps now, as prices are falling and supplies increasing, attitudes may change.

But I don't believe you can have it both ways.

You may have to choose between legislating higher prices through government programs, with the risk that legislators can change their minds, or you can form organizations strong enough, without government assistance, to get prices that reflect "all the market will bear."

Either will require industry-wide cooperation that has been lacking in the past; particularly in the northeast. Marketing changes expected in the next six months may give you the opportunity to make a choice.

Landmark Acquires Rothrock Sire

— Rothrock Cleitus SARGENT-et, Reg. #1084738, a young Pennsylvania Holstein bull bred by Rothrock Golden Holsteins of Kempton, has been selected for sampling in the young sire proving program of Landmark Genetics. His semen has just been released for use in herds on official DHIA test throughout the United States.

As a member of Landmark Genetics' "GO" (Genetic Opportunity) program, SARGENT is undergoing thorough testing. He has successfully passed his health tests and the goal now is to get a minimum of 50 daughters milking in 40 herds across the U.S. for a high repeatability on his first proof.

Kevin Carhart, Regional Sire Analyst for the International, artificial breding company, said, "We've selected this youngster because of his outstanding bloodlines."

SARGENT is sired by Cleitus, one of the best production and TPI sires of today. His maternal side hals outstanding type as well as production. His tall, strong, Bell dam is EX 91 with a VG Mammary and is +124 CFP. She produced at a high level in her first two lactations, her best record being 29,570M 4.5% 1,326F 3.4% 1,011P as a 3 year old.

The next dam, by L.H. Mars is also 91 points with a 3-year-old record of 22,031M 4.7% 1,034F.

Use SARGENT to improve protein yield production.

Semen from SARGENT, according to Kevin Carhart, will be available for sampling in the "GO" herd program for the next 60 to 90 days. For more infomration, call Landmark Genetics, at (209) 883-4001.

Money Doesn't Deter Teen From Career Goal

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

ONO (Lebanon Co.) — While statistics report that most teens choose careers for monetary reasons, Kynel Bomgardner, the 18-year-old Lebanon County dairy princess, breaks the mold with her creed, "Money doesn't matter to me at all. It's important to like what you are doing."

For that reason, Kynel candidly admits that her career goal is to become a farmer's wife.

Growing up as the only daughter among six brothers on her parents' 113-acre dairy farm, has convinced Kynel that nothing can be better than farm life.

"We haven't had a lot of money — and we don't want it," Kynel said. "We have a lot of fun and a lot to enjoy on the farm."

Kynel, who graduated with honors, said that many people think she is wasting her talents by not going to college. But Kynel looks at life differently.

"It's always been a requirement with me to marry a farmer. Living on a farm has so many rewards with the open space and the enjoyment of watching things grow and caring for animals. I've learned a lot on the farm and I enjoy it so why look for anything else?"

She credits her parents, John and Margaret, for instilling love for God, farm and family within her.

"As a family we do a lot of singing together," she said. "Everyone but Mom plays a musical instrument."

Kynel plays the piano, flute and piccolo for her church, Manada Gap Full Gospel Mission. Sometimes the whole family gives programs for churches or groups. The male family members play trumpets, a trombone, French horn, saxophone, drums and the clarinet.

Farm work provides another enjoyable family activity. Kynel gets up every morning for the 5:30 a.m. milking of 65 Holsteins. She sweeps the barn and sometimes helps clean out the manure and beds the cows. When it comes to chores, she said, "I'm treated just like one of the boys."

While she (the third oldest) can do about every chore her brothers do, Kynel has a feminine distinction her brothers can never attain — Lebanon County Dairy Princess.

Although the brothers can't compete for the title, they good-naturally assist Kynel in her duties. She said, "One evening they helped pack 382 bags that I needed for a presentation at a school."

Sometimes they also take care of Kynel's evening chores if her dairy princess duties interfere with the milking schedule.

In June, Kynel's reign with be completed. She holds many fond memories, but those she enjoyed most, she said, were the visits to the Veterans Hospital in Lebanon where she taught patients to play "Mighty Milk Bingo." Prizes were cow key chains and cow erasers.

"It was so rewarding to see people smile," she said of her visit. On Valentine's Day, Little Miss Dairy Princess Alicia Mase accompanied Kynel to the hospital to give Valentines to the clients.

While representing the dairy industry to a German tour group, Kynel met a couple with the same last name as her own. Their common identity forged a friendship that continues with letter writing to this day.

"Being dairy princess has been a lot more demanding than I had imagined," Kynel said, "but I've enjoyed it."

Sometimes schedules conflict such as the time she attended the Hershey Dairy Day and needed to miss a 4-H event that would have enabled her to get a top county award for her 10 years of active participation.

In 4-H, Kynel has garnered showmanship and fitting awards. She said, "I always encourage kids to get involved in showing. It's good experience. It helps you learn to control your temper because you can't hit an animal or it backfires on you. Owning a good animal is a nice reward."

Handing out ribbons at fairs and shows is one of the dairy princess's duties. With so many Bomgardners showing, it's not surprising that they accumulate many awards. It's been a special privilege for Kynel to hand her dad a ribbon for his grand champion bull at the Lebanon Area Fair. One brother placed first at the Southeastern Region FFA Dairy Show and Kynel herself showed the junior grand champion at the same fair.

Kynel is glad she waited until after graduation to enter the dairy princess competition. "There is so much I would have missed in high school if I hadn't waited," she said.

Her high school activities included track team, band, pit orchestra, play casts, student government, and the National Honor Society.

Her academic achievements earned her recognition in Who's Who Among High School Students and as student of the month.

Working on the farm and promoting the dairy industry as dairy princess has been a fulfilling and busy time for Kynel. When her reign ends in June, Kynel will have time to pursue other interests.

She surmises that she may become closer to attaining her career goal because there is a special farmer who lives across the fields, who'd like to help Kynel attain her goal.

"It's the best life I can think of," Kynel said. "Happiness and enjoyment is something money can't buy."

Lebanon County Dairy Princess Kynel Bomgardner (holding the calf) thinks the family farm is the best place on earth. Kynel, her parents and six brothers believe that enjoying your work is much more important than making money. Surrounding Kynel, from left: Jesse, 11; Kevin, 13, Nelson, 22; dad, Corl, 15; and Jere, 25.

Kynel and her mother Margaret prepare signs they will use when a group tours their farm.

"It's always been a requirement with me to marry a farmer. Living on a farm has so many rewards with the open space and the enjoyment of watching things grow and caring for animals. I've learned a lot on the farm and I enjoy it so why look for anything else?"

"Farming means long, hard work, but I think it is worth it," Kynel said. "Living on a farm has so many rewards with the open space and the enjoyment of watching things grow and caring for animals."

The pond in the background provides skating in the winter and swimming in the summer for the Bomgardner family.

Homestead Notes

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Seems to me I recall reading that having a stork nest on your barn brought good luck.

If memory serves me right that belief originated in areas near the sea, where fish-catching storks make their homes.

Now, we have occasional visits to the ponds by green and great blue herons. Spunky, white cattle egrets stalk the milk cows during summer months, feasting on bugs stirred in the pasture grasses by the cows' feet. Once, to our amazement, we spied an osprey make a dive to the pond, grab a fish, and flap to the top of a dead tree in the fence row to enjoy the fresh dinner.

But not a sign of a good luck stork. Wonder if a guinea would be a suitable substitute?

Our flock of five guineas is apt to turn up just about anywhere on the farm, including on the barn. On bitter cold or rainy days, they hang around the old barn, scratching in corners and crannies for bits of grain dropped by heifers and seeds fallen from hay and straw.

They seem to much prefer - like most of us, I guess - the more pleasant, sunny days, days on which they can roam the farmstead without wet, bedraggled tailfeathers. Often I'll glance out the kitchen window and see them cruising the meadow, pausing near the "crick" to scratch for a tidbit or pecking at bits of gravel on the field road.

Another favorite guinea stomping grounds is the sloping hillside above the house, where contoured fields of corn stubble and hay wind out over the high horizon to the northeast. The residue of stalk, husk, occasional ear of corn missed by the harvester, and clumps of dormant alfalfa and grasses apparently offer a bountiful guinea buffet.

Still, for all their natural instincts and abilities for living off the land, the guineas are blatant opportunists.

On both the coming and the going trips between the meadow and fields, the flock of five inevitably follows a meandering route passing beneath the backyard birdfeeders. While the finches and sparrows gobble away overhead, those guineas scout every inch of turf under the feeders.

Recycling, maybe, is what the guineas do with sunflower seeds and millet escaping the feeders. And what they miss, or don't get to first, is equally enjoyed by the half-dozen backyard hens and their handsome rooster husband.

Unlike their flighty predecessors, these guineas aren't too proud or wild to come hunting a handout. Occasionally they put in an early morning appearance outside the calf barn, screeching a demand for a favorite delicacy - dead flies. Apparently they remember their chick-hood days last summer, and how tasty were the contents of catch pan under the electric fly "zapper."

In lieu of the preferred snack, I usually toss them a couple of handfuls of calf grain. Often they'll turn their skinny heads, jut sharp beaks into the air, and slink off in opposite direction.

Okay, so I recognize rejection when I see it.

Come late afternoon, the five begin wandering toward the old bank barn, returning daily to their favorite nightime spot, the top rail of a section of old freestalls. Sometimes, the old wild-bird instinct to roost high in a treetop takes over. Wings spread wide, emitting loud squawks, a guinea will take to the air and land on the calf barn roof. There, silhoutted against the fading sky at dusk, the bird screeches and shrieks.

Whether it's calling the others to join it, or just showing off, I've never decided. Eventually the guinea sails gracefully back to the ground to join the rest. They've flown right by my head en route.

One recent morning, as daylight was pushing up over the woods, an unusually early - and loud - series of guinea calls splintered the dawn quiet. It took a moment to pinpoint the source of the racket - a lone guinea perched on the peak of the dairy barn, facing east, crowing at the top of its lungs.

Lots of barns sport decorative weather vanes. Ours is graced by a guinea, welcoming the new day with an ear-splitting soprano.

No stork, but it'll have to do.

Have You Heard?

Nothing lights up the eyes of children and the hearts of adults quite like ice cream. And with today's manufacturers meeting a host of tastes with all types and flavors, it is no wonder that ice cream has truly become an American Tradition.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture and the International Ice Cream Association statistics, some 98% of all households in the United States consume ice cream. Nearly one-third of American households consume at least one gallon of ice cream every two weeks. Such households, on an average, also enjoy ice cream at two away-from-home outlets per month. That's a lot of ice cream!

And while these delicious delights are consumed more on Sunday than any other day of the week, virtually any day is a perfect day to treat yourself. Whether you enjoy ice cream right from the container, or enjoy creating your own concoction from a host of available toppings the vast selection in the freezer case enables you to have what you want, when you want it.

According to a 1988 estimate, the top five flavors of ice cream in the U.S. are vanilla (30%), chocolate (9%), butter pecan (6%), strawberry (5%), and chocolate chip (4%). And, consumers enjoy crowning their selections with a host of toppings available in the supermarket. In 1988, enough retail toppings were sold to top more than 360 million servings of ice cream! The most popular of which (in rank order) were: hot fudge, chocolate fudge, butterscotch, caramel and strawberry.

Do you know that your usage of ice cream says a great deal about you? For instance, the typical heavy user of packaged ice cream tends to be married, economically upscale, lives in a larger household, with children in all age groups, and resides in the western United States. Superpremium ice cream is most commonly found in households where there are no children. Conversely, economy ice cream is more often present in households with children.

Most ice cream is eaten in households where the female primary purchaser is between the ages of 35 and 54. Those eating the most ice cream per person tend to be children ages 2 to 17 and adults 45 and over. And, the amount of ice cream consumed increases with income and education.

Ice cream products today account for some 10 percent of the total milk produced in the United States - which currently leads the world in per capita production of ice cream and related products with 46.30 pints per person. Ice cream is an American tradition which is strong and growing!

American Egg Board's Howard Helmer flips two of the 427 omelets he cooked in 30 minutes to regain the Guinness World Record for Omelet Making.

Omelet King Regains Title

PARK RIDGE, Ill. — Howard Helmer, Eastern Representative for the American Egg Board, is once again the "Omelet King!" Previously the holder of the Guinness World Record for Omelet Making, Helmer regained the title by preparing 427 omelets in 30 minutes, topping the existing record by 48 omelets.

The event took place during the International Poultry Trade Show in Atlanta, Georgia, on February 2. Amidst 13-acres of exhibits at the Georgia World Congress Center, Helmer set up his equipment in accordance with Guinness rules. Six omelet pans with no-stick coating and special non-slip handles, six high-powered butane burners and almost 10 gallons of liquid eggs were used in the effort.

Many years spent demonstrating omelet-making to audiences of all kinds and several months of high-intensity, record-breaking practice helped the champion retake his crown. Through thrilled about turning out an omelet every 4.2 seconds, Helmer said, "Now that I've re-broken the record, I'm looking forward to making 40-second omelets again!"

Helmer plans to spend his reign continuing his demonstrations highlighting the ease and convenience of omelets.

What Can You Do With Peanut Butter?

Is cholesterol-free peanut butter a heart-healthy alternative to the real thing?

According to a report by the Dairy Council, it's true the peanut butter contains no cholesterol — but it never did. Cholesterol-free claims have caught the attention of today's health-conscious consumers, leading them to think that the foods are new, improved and more healthy.

Don't let confusing or misleading health claims fool you. But do enjoy using peanut butter in your diet.

Award Winning Chili

CHICAGO, Ill.— When it comes to cooking chili, former White House Presidential Press Secretary James Brady is no novice.

Brady, who served as press secretary and assistant to the President throughout the eight-year Reagan administration, is probably one of the better known chili connoisseurs in the metropolitan Washington, D.C. area.

He has won three consecutive "Chili Bull" contests in the nation's capital, has beem made a "Lifetime Member" of the International Chili Society, has been recognized by the Goat Gap Gazette (Texas), a monthly newspaper for chili aficionados, and is a member of Chili USA, an organization that now is lobbying Congress to designate chili the official "national" food of the United States.

Because Brady's chili relies heavily on boneless beef chuck for its meat base, and because Brady is a tireless promoter of chili, the beef industry recently sponsored a reception in Brady's honor during the International Food Media Conference in Washington, D.C. The reception was attended by about 150 newspaper and magazine food editors, all of who sampled Brady's chili.

"It took more than 10 years of trial and error to perfect this recipe," Brady told the food editors. "Anyone can make chili 'hot' -- that's easy. But to find precisely the right ingredients and make them blend together -- an ambrosia, if you will -- takes quite a bit more doing."

But James Dickenson, a friend of Brady's who shared the stage at the reception, had a vastly different opinion of the chili: "Jim, whenever I've tasted your chili, the word 'ambrosia' never came to mind. 'Sweating, tears, water' -- those are the words that came to mind," said Dickenson.

After the reception, a feature story, photographs and a recipe of Brady's chili went to approximately 500 newspaper and consumer magazine food editors nationwide for use in upcoming food sections.

Jim & Sarah Brady's Chili

3 pounds boneless beef round or chuck, cut into ¾ -inch pieces
3 tablespoons vegetable oil
2.4-ounce box hot chili powder (about ½ cup)
3 medium onions, chopped
4 cloves garlic, minced
7 or 8-ounce can jalapeno peppers, seeded and chopped
28-ounce can tomatoes and juice
1 tablespoon oregano leaves
3 bay leaves
1 tablespoon salt
1 tablespoon ground cumin
1 tablespoon red wine vinegar
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 pint ripe olives, drained and sliced
1 tablespoon masa harina
Shredded Cheddar cheese for garnish

Brown beef cubes in oil. Add chili powder to meat. Stir. Put aside heavy iron pot or Dutch oven. Saute onions, garlic and peppers in oil until golden. Add to meat with tomatoes and cook 20 minutes. Add remaining spices, vinegar and brown sugar. Cook slowly, uncovered, 2 hours. Add masa harina and olives. Serve with shredded Cheddar cheese. Yield: 9 cups or about 6 servings.

Human Run Dating Service For Endangered Whooping Cranes

Veterinarian Glenn Olsen checks the heartbeat of a juvenile whooping crane, cradled by caretaker Jane Nicolich, at the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center. Researchers take extraordinary precautions to avoid infecting the birds, including washing their boots in a disinfectant solution at pen entrances.

DONALD SMITH
National Geographic News Service

BOWIE, Md.— Andre the Giant is one unhappy bird.

The three-year-old whooping crane is being shooed into a corner of his outdoor pen at the Patuxent Wildlife Research Center. Never exactly pleased to see people, Andre glares at the intruders with golden eyes, and hisses.

Named in early chickhood for his exceptional size and bad disposition, Andre is one of only 214 of his kind left in the world, a condition brought about largely by human transgressions.

Now humans are having some success in bringing the species back from the brink of extinction.

At the beginning of each mating season, scientists try to arrange pairings that they hope eventually will produce offspring.

Of course there is no way of explaining this to Andre, who had been spending a peaceful morning with three female companions in the roomy, 40-by-120-foot runway, probing the grass for edibles. Now his caretakers close in with upraised arms, their protective goggles glinting in the sun.

"He could have chosen any of the three females he's been with," veterinarian Glenn Olsen tells National Geographic. "But he hasn't shown any preference. Basically, they were just buddies."

Playing matchmaker to cranes is no lark.

"It's kind of like a dating service," says Claire Mirande, curator of the only other captive whooper flock in the world, located at International Crane Foundation headquarters in Baraboo, Wis. "It's a real challenge sometimes to get birds together. They have to be genetically matched, then introduced, and they need supervision. They can be quite aggressive to each other. Sometimes later we have to do marriage counseling."

Until recently, Patuxent was the home of 54 whooping cranes -- one-fourth of the species' survivors and the only captive flock. Most of the population, 146 birds, live in the wild, migrating between the Aransas National Wildlife Refuge in Texas and Canada's Wood Buffalo National Park. A smaller flock of 13 migrates between New Mexico and Idaho. One crane resides at the San Antonio Zoo.

Cranes are remarkable animals. The tallest birds in North America, they reach a height of about four feet six inches. They are notably intelligent and develop distinctive personalities.

"Some are friendly and follow you around, and some are feisty," says Patuxent caretaker Jim Stevens. "During breeding season their hormone levels go up, and it's like dealing with a tall, ticked-off rooster."

Never especially abundant, whoopers have been overhunted, and much of their habitat has been destroyed. From an estimated 1,300 to 1,400 birds before 1870, the population declined to as few as 19 adults in the early 1950s, making their comeback since then all the more extraordinary.

"I'm cautiously optimistic," says Robin W. Doughty, University of Texas geography professor and author of "Return of the Whooping Crane" (University of Texas Press, Austin, 1989). "The wild flock has done remarkably well in the last decade."

Besides discouraging hunting, the recovery effort seeks to protect the wild birds' breeding and wintering grounds and to raise captive birds for eventual release into the wild.

In December 1989 the Patuxent flock was split; 22 were put into crates, loaded onto a military jet, and flown by Marine reservists to the Wisconsin preserve. The idea was to ensure against a single disaster, such as contaminated food or an epidemic, that could wipe out the entire captive group.

Andre's macho displays notwithstanding, the staff hopes to find him a willing companion. Hopes are also high for another large male with good bloodlines and a somewhat gentler disposition: C.J. -- an offspring of one of Patuxent's first cranes.

The female chosen by Patuxent manager Scott Hereford to be C.J.'s trial mate is Tarzana, a lithe beauty named for some acrobatic tendencies she displayed as a chick. Her specialty was backflips.

C.J. enters his runway first. Later, Tarzana arrives in the arms of caretaker Jane Nicolich and jumps into the adjacent pen. For the next several days, the pair will be watched for signs of compatability, including staying close to each other on opposite sides of the chain-link fence.

To the delight of onlookers, Tarzana heads straight for the corner where C.J. is preening.

They eye each other for a moment at close range. Then Tarzana seems to lose interest, turning away and pecking at the ground. But C.J. stays pressed against the fence, watching her every move.

"They're friendly," says Olsen. "That's a good sign."

Where To Put Bottle, Can Waste?

EXTON (Chester Co.)— A campaign to hold a statewide referendum on the question of placing a deposit on bottles and cans was announced recently by Richard Breckbill, Oxford, president of the Chester/Delaware Farmers' Association.

"We are sick and tired of picking up bottles and cans from our fields and from along the highways of this state," Breckbill said. "These containers are recyclable."

The group has adopted a campaign slogan, "Cash 'Em, Don't Trash 'Em" and has named a county committee, headed by Marshall Haws, Exton, to coordinate the campaign.

Legislation placing the deposit on beverage containers almost passed the General Assembly. It was replaced by the Municipal Waste Planning Recycling and Waste Reduction Act. "This law is a possible solution but it does not assure that farmer's needs of property damage is accomplished," Breckbill said.

The 670-member farm group believes that if a deposit is placed on bottles and cans, beverage containers will be recycled.

The county farm leader said his organization plans to meet with local state legislators to gain their support for legislation that would place the referendum on the ballot. They plan to meet with legislators in Harrisburg.

"Most people would not throw bottles along the highway if these containers have a cash value," Breckbill said. "Container users would be more apt to recycle their containters. Discarded containers would be picked up and returned for the incentive of their cash value."

Freezer Problems

Freezers In Cold Places Can Cause Problems — If you've put a food freezer in your garage or an unheated entryway to save energy costs, you may have created a few problems for the appliance. Putting your freezer where winter temperatures drop below freezing may cause uneven temperatures within the appliance. Most models work best at 50 to 80°.

The temperature in the top of the freezer may get warm enough that ice cream will be soft. This happens because the compressor doesn't operate often enough to keep the space evenly cold.

Perry County To Crown Dairy Princess

A Perry County Dairy Princess will be crowned at the annual Perry County Holstein Banquet on March 6, 7:15 p.m., at Messiah Lutheran Church, Elliottsburg.

Mary Innerst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Innerst of Ickesburg, will be crowned and will represent the dairy industry over the next year.

If you would like to attend the coronation and dinner, please contact Patti McLaughlin at (717) 582-4847 by February 24.

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

If you've completely cut cheese out of your diet for health reasons, you could be missing out on vital nutrients.

Cheese is often avoided because of its fat, cholesterol or sodium content. But it's an excellent source of calcium, a nutrient lacking in the diets of more than half of adult American women.

So what can you do? Choose cheese that is lower in calories, fat and sodium. Many brands of these "light" cheeses are now available, so it's important to read labels. Some brands, for example, are lower in cholesterol, but higher in sodium or vice versa. It's also iimportant not to overindulge! Plan your meals and recipes to include enough cheese to satisfy, yet not too much to go above diet recommendations.

Don't confuse light cheese with imitation cheese. Imitation cheeses are not real dairy products. They're made from vegetable fat, casein (a chemically extracted protein of milk), stabilizers, emulsifiers, vitamins, minerals and sometimes chemical additives. Nutrient content, flavor and texture also vary greatly from brand to brand.

Light cheese microwaves about the same as regular cheese. However, some lower-fat cheeses tend to get tougher when melted. The light cheeses taste quite good. However, their flavors are often less intense.

When cooked too long or too quickly, cheese become tough and rubbery. The solution? Adapt your favorite recipes to avoid overcooking and use standing time or low power for melting cheese toppings.

Cheese can be cooked in sauces or casseroles as long as it's not cooked too long. You may want to add it towards the end of cooking in long-cooking dishes, such as macaroni and cheese that starts with uncooked pasta, or in au gratin potatoes. In layed casseroles, such as lasagna, cheese is protected by other ingredients, so it doesn't overcook. However, even there, the top layer should not be cheese during the long cooking time. End layers with sauce. After cooking, add cheese and let stand, covered, to melt cheese and firm pieces for easy cutting and serving.

The following recipes are adapted from "Cheesy Does It," developed by nutritionists at Dorman-Roth Foods, makers of Dorman's® Light cheeses. The 29-page booklet contains 22 recipes reduced in fat, cholesterol, calories and sodium. It includes a variety of recipes from appetizers to desserts. It includes conventional cooking directions and guidelines for making old favorite recipes healthier. To order, send 75 cents to Consumer Affairs Dept., Box CDI, Dorman-Roth Foods, 14 Empire Blvd., Moonachie, N.J. 07074.

FARMING FOR THE FUTURE with

Quick-adjust▲ arm and roller

◀John VanDorp—
Woodstock, Ontario
Dairy and hog operation

"The Aer-Way is playing an important role in my soil-building program, and saving me fuel and labor at the same time."

Most of my farm is on rolling ground that is highly erodible. I was losing too much soil. This made it necessary for me to look at alternative tillage practices.

I found the Aer-Way to be an excellent tool for tilling the soil and relieving compaction while maintaining maximum residue cover for protection from wind and rain.

The Aer-Way works great with my legume cover crop system. The tool can be adjusted to till the soil without destroying the established growth that provides protection for wintering, while it opens the soil to allow the water to soak in.

On corn, I use the roller working angle at either 7½ or 10. On my corn ground, I Aer-Way in the fall to partially incorporate the stalks. This helps to hold the soil and water on my hillsides and speeds up the rot-down of the residue. The Aer-Way only uses between five to six horsepower per foot of working width, so on my land I can use a smaller tractor. In the spring time, I hitch the planter directly to the back of my Aer-Way. This enables me to work and plant the field in one pass.

Due to the additional amounts of protective surface residue, I had to add a set of trash whippers to my existing corn planter. This tillage practice is helping me keep the soils in good shape for future use.

Alfalfa/Pasture. I set the roller working angle to either 0 or 2½ . Each season I use the Aer-Way on my hay and pastureland to alleviate the compaction caused from all the fertilizing and harvesting traffic The Aer-Way ground allows the moisture and fertilizer to soak into the soil for better absorption by the roots. This allows me to maximize my fertilizer dollar.

Fine Clothing, Accessories For Women By Women

SHARON B. SCHUSTER
Maryland Correspondent

NEW WINDSOR, Md. — For Micki Smith, life is a finely woven cloth embellished by colorful threads. Her family, business and the community are the fabric of her existence. She speaks with as much passion and reverence about her apparel business as she does about her kids.

"You've got to understand, this is a theology for me," explained Smith. Running her fingers over the colorful yarns in her sweater, she continued. "We have colors and textures that express the beauty of the world around us."

Micki Smith is a designer, knitter, seamstress, consignor and proprietress of the business she calls 'Smith, Beggs and Belnap'. The New Windsor business was started by three Smiths, a Beggs and a Belnap in 1985. As situations arose that required the cofounders to leave the business, Micki Smith made the decision to continue on her own, retaining the original name. She said, "I've been operating on my own for about a year and a half."

Smith described her enterprise as "a business that markets fine clothing and accessories for women by women." Many of the items in the inventory are hand made by Smith herself. "I'm absolutely enthralled with yarn," she exclaimed. "You can pick up a small amount of exquisite yarn to add in as an embellishment on a sweater to make it a real treasure."

Putting in a minimum of thirty to fifty hours on one sweater, Smith said it is relaxing. "I can't put it down. I learned to knit and sew at my grandmother's knee," she recalled. "When I was growing up, I really wanted to design clothes."

With a well-established customer base that stretches from North Carolina to Washington, to Potomac to Baltimore, Smith said that her "most frequent customers are Carroll Countians. There's something exciting about seeing someone walking down the street in your design," she added.

Smith said she prefers to work with natural fibers, especially silk and wool. "It has a wonderful feel to it." The sweaters that she knits by hand with hand held needles may be created from mohair, silk, wool, alpaca linen or cotton, each with a different luster and feel. While she spends much time designing a particular garment, sometimes she just knits.

"I didn't know what this was going to look like from one stitch to the next," she said of the free flowing design of the multicolored sweater she was wearing. "I was knitting in a much more traditional mode, taking only little risks until I had a class with Valentina Divine. "It was the most freeing experience," said Smith. Divine is a supplier of unique yarn that can be incorporated into a design by Smith, or purchased as a skein, dyed to order.

Smith also designs and creates garments such as blouses, skirts, suits and coats. She uses commercial fabric, though she said she would prefer to use more handwoven fabrics. "I don't have enough suppliers of handwoven fabric. I would love to find additional sources." The scarce commodity can run the price of a garment up in a hurry with prices around $60 per yard. "And I always cut one piece at a time. Hand woven fabrics tend to shift when they are cut." With those prices there is no room for a mistake. "It's a real challenge."

Smith can outfit women with the most discriminating tastes. "I have a pretty good feel for what my customers look like." Smith reported that most of her customers are size 10 or smaller, but the business is a source of custom clothing for all sizes, from size 2 and up.

The shop is a bit pricey, but reflects the quality of the fine apparel. A summer cotton sweater may cost from $60, while a hand knit winter sweater will run from $85 to $290, depending upon the materials and design. A suit made of hand woven fabric is priced in the $300 range. Shirts and blouses start at $50.

Among the designers whose work is showcased at Smith, Beggs and Belnap, is Chris Triola. Smith described her as "an extremely talented artist. "Her colors are magnificent, almost like waves of grain. She makes coordinated skirts, tops and coats. All the colors blend with what she has done before, so you can get yourself a Chris Triola wardrobe over the years," A Triola skirt and top are priced at about $300 to $325.

Smith also carries the designs of Janie N, porcelain jewelry designed by Madelyn Ricks, and the original handpainted scarves of Elaine, who "was trained in Paris and paints each scarf while working over a white carpet."

Smith recently expanded her business venture to include teaching. "I started teaching knitting last month in the house." The six-hour class encouraged participants to be creative in their designs. "The only requirements for taking the class were knowing how to cast on, knit, purl and cast off." Smith is interested in hearing from others who may wish to enroll in the next class or take private lessons. The group lesson fee is $40 for six hours. Private lessons with Smith cost $10 per hour with a two hour minimum.

Formerly from Westminster, Smith and her mother, Helen Deason, moved to new Windsor when they located the 'Victorianized' town home on Main Street, complete with a commercial zoning. "We were delighted when we found this house in the lovely little town of New Windsor." The circa 1802 home is spacious enough to accommodate both mother and daughter, and the business work area in a converted attic.

Smith's unmistakable design is evident in her upstairs living quarters, warm with burgundy wood trim and baskets full of hand dyed yarns. The white kitchen is awash with sunlight and floods the built-in countertop desk where the designer spends a lot of time with pencil, paper and a cup of tea. Tom and Saddidy, her feline friends, share her space, romping behind the antiques in the living room one minute, then curling up in a chair the next.

Mrs. Deason makes her home downstairs, where she sometimes works on the automated knitting machine. Her most recent project was a peach and cream colored baby blanket for her great-grandchild, not yet born. The front room serves as a showcase for the consigned items and creations of Smith, Beggs and Belnap.

Frumpys Lip Sync in Bluegrass Style

LOU ANN GOOD
Lancaster Farming Staff

MANHEIM (Lancaster Co.) — By all appearances, the Frumpys are a strange bunch.

Their clothes are an eye-clashing mixture of plaids, stripes and flowered prints. Beraggled lace droops from Grandma Frumpy's slip — and she shows no shame.

Although her husband sings with bluegrass expertise, she can't carry a tune at all. With her rapid Pennsylvania Dutch accent, Grandma Frumpy keeps things lively.

Ma Frumpy claims they have a "stable" marriage because she works like a horse and Pa is stubborn as a mule.

Their three adorable hillbilly kids use commode stoppers for trumpets and sing in Alvin and the Chipmunks style.

Although nobody desires to have the strange-looking Frumpys for honest-to-goodness neighbors, the odd bunch draws lots of raves and belly-shaking laughter from audiences who watch the Frumpys perform on the stage.

In real life the Frumpys actually consist of two families: Gene, Rose, Rodney, Gregory and Dwight Gehman of Mount Joy, and Cerwin and Doris High of Manheim.

Six years ago, the Frumpys came into existence when the Highs were looking for something different to do for a church youth program. Later, Cerwin, a truck driver for Ferrellgas, and a member of Transport For Christ, a ministry geared to meeting the spiritual needs of truckers, asked the Gehmans to help them with a program.

Gene is traffic manager at G&G Agway, Manheim, and is also active in Transport For Christ.

That first Frumpy program was such a success that the group has performed by popular demand during the past six years. The money they made was donated to Transport for Christ to purchase literature and support a mobile chapel. These "churches on wheels" travel to truck stops and terminals throughout the U.S. and Canada.

The comic group intersperses jokes, stories and songs throughout the program to entertain audiences. Recently the Frumpys performed their last program at the Lancaster Extension annual banquet.

"We're too busy to keep it up," Rose said.

The Highs are going into full-time work as director of the northeastern dirvision of Transport For Christ.

Although the crowds are certainly going to miss the opportunity to laugh at the strange-looking Frumpys, Gene, Rose, Rodney, Gregory and Dwight are going to continue singing as a family — no longer lip syncing records played on fast speed — but as a singing ministry because they really do have talent.

For six years, the Frumpys with their strange antics have been entertaining audiences.

It doesn't take a classy guitar or a brass trumpet to keep a Frumpy kid happy. Give them a tennis racket or a commode stopper and their imagination takes over.

Grandpa and Grandma Frumpy may not win any fashion awards, but they certainly are a happy couple.

Dauphin County Extension: Helping People Grow

Mary Laeger-Hagemeister
Dauphin Co. Correspondent

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — More than 150 people attended the Dauphin County Agriculture and Natural Resources Center on February 22 to hear how the cooperative extension is helping residents of the county grow.

Heidi Miller, the 1989 Dauphin County Little Miss Dairy Princess, represented the Dauphin County Dairy Promotion Committee by serving a delicious milk punch to guests as they arrived.

As guests arrived at the annual meeting, they viewed the exhibits in the lobby. On display were the following extension projects: Master Gardeners, Association for Retarded Citizens ARC - 4-H Club, International 4-H Youth Exchange Program, and Facts on Child Care and Chemicals in the Home.

During the banquet, guests were entertained with piano music by Representative George Gekas. Representative Gekas was one of several special guests including commissioners Sally Klein, Russ Shaeffer, Dr. Paul Wangsness, capital region director; and Michelle Rodgers, assistant regional director.

New board members were elected during the business meeting. Randy Greider of Halifax will represent the 4-H program and Kathy Lapp of Enders will represent the Family Living program to the executive board. Two new board members were also appointed: Dr. Donald Lester, clergy in Harrisburg, and C.J. Rich, master clothing and textile volunteer and a kindergarten teacher in Harrisburg.

Following the business meeting, the 4-H program in Dauphin County was spotlighted. Kathy Wolfe and Amy Williams reported on the 'Meet the Plants" program that the master gardeners have been using with the 4-H club in Harrisburg.

Mary Laeger-Hagemeister, home economist, introduced the mentor mothers and teen mothers in the audience. Mae Hostetter, 4-H agent, and Laeger-Hagemeister started the program in September by matching a volunteer with a teen mother to act as a mentor for a 10-month commitment.

In addition, Helen Riley, 4-H agent, reported on her new Theatre Arts programs in the Harrisburg School District, the Girls Club and the YWCA in Harrisburg. The focus is reaching "At Risk" youth through theatre and dance to release their energies in a positive manner and increase their self-esteem.

The final presentation was by Craig Williams, IFYE to Taiwan. Participants enjoyed an armchair tour of Craig's five-month stay in Taiwan in 1989. He closed his presentation by thanking Dauphin County 4-H and Mae Hostetter, 4-H agent. Craig presented Mae with a large plaque, a replica of a Chinese coin, engraved with a thank-you message.

Special presentations and recognition were given to the 1989 host families that opened their homes to the IFYE and JIFYE youth this past year. In addition, master gardeners who finished their training received certificates from Kathy Wolfe and Jim Welshans. Those recipients included: Pat Fowler, Jonathan Benson and Karen Hurley. A special certificate of appreciation was presented to the executive board president, Ken Staver, by Jim Welshans, county extension director, for his dedication and leadership given to the Dauphin County Extension Programs.

Two leadership recognition awards were given to individuals who have demonstrated outstanding leadership and commitment. Receiving the award from the Agriculture Advisory Committee was Amos Stoltzfus of Millersburg. Rev. Herb Bomberger, was the recipient of the Family Living Award.

Gwen Bower, from Senator John Shumaker's office presented a $2,000 check to Joel Myers, president of the 4-H Advisory Committee for support of the Dauphin County 4-H Clubs. The funds will be used for the annual 4-H Fair. The final presentation was made by 4-H leader, Bud Brubaker. Bud presented a 4-H Flag to John Orr, director of the District Conservation office. The flag is to be flown with the other flags in front of the Dauphin County Agriculture and Natural Resources Center.

Bedford Extension Holds Annual Banquet

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

NEW ENTERPRISE (Bedford Co.) — A Bedford Valley woman was honored for 20 years of service as secretary of the Bedford County Extension. The award was presented at the annual Extension banquet held on Thursday evening, February 22, at the New Enterprise Church of the Brethren.

Joann Mann, a 4-H leader of sewing and the Community Club began as Extension Board member prior to her 20-year stint as secretary. "I finally decided I had served my turn," laughs Joan, who was presented with a hand-painted mug by Susan Fox, interim director and Bedford County Dairy Agent.

Dottie Bromley, Schellsburg, was elected president of the Extension for 1990. Vice president is Dennis Turner, Morrison's Cove; Pam Hershberger, Everett, is secretary; and Bonnie Foor, Everett, treasurer.

H. Karl Beegle of Bedford was presented with a Century Farm Award. Nearly all of Beegle's family was in attendance for the presentation made by Ted Hoover, department of agriculture.

Shannon Lafferty, Bedford County Lamb and Wool Queen, was an honored guest. An array of sheep and lamb products were on display. Shannon is a member of both 4-H and FFA and has her own flock of 14 sheep. She has reigned over the Bedford County sheep farmers since last March.

Susan Fox reviewed some of the ways that Bedford County Extension celebrated its 75 years of existence. Trees were planted near the Extension office, there was a display at Bedford's Hospital Day and special seminars were offered on water use and quality, post secondary education, and land use planning.

Fred Claycomb and Dottie Bromley attended Regional and State Extension Council and reported on some of their experience and new knowledge.

Mary Jo Cook, assistant to the regional director, made a few remarks. "Bedford County is doing more for water quality than any other county in the state," Cook stated. "I am very pleased with Bedford County Extension," Cook continued. "It is a visionary group with a tremendous ability to look forward."

The evening ended with a slide presentation titled, "Down Country Roads in Appalachia," by Bill King from Kittaning.

A turkey dinner was served by the ladies of the Church of the Brethren.

At the Bedford County extension banquet, Susan Fox (right), extension interim director, recognized Joan Mann for 20 years of service as extension secretary.

Shannon Lafferty, Bedford County Lamb and Wool Queen, shows John Holbert, former Bedford County extension agent, some wool products from her display.

When not tending the garment business, Smith utilizes her talents in disseminating information about Carroll County, as director of public information and tourism. "I love my job," said Smith. And as a resident of Carroll's smallest town, she proclaimed, "what a neat place to live." Smith is an active member of the New Windsor Heritage Committee.

Of her business, Smith said she has "met the most wonderful women who have had to overcome tremendous business obstacles." Going beyond the obvious challenges of design and marketing, Smith sees her business as a way of life and a means of communing with like-minded strong, talented women who state in no uncertain terms, "I can do my business on my terms."

Smith, Beggs and Belnap is located at 207 Main Street, New Windsor. Beginning in March, the shop will be open on weekends from 10:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., or by appointment, "and at whim." Ida Risser

There are many things that one can take advantage of if only the opportunity is seized and action taken. I've traveled to Hawaii by myself; I've gone white water rafting and fell overboard and as a 20-year-old, I've explored many corners of New York City, but a present pursuit is even more exciting.

Our township has a "Parks and Recreation Department" which offers many opportunities to learn new things. There are six classes in aquatics for pre-schoolers and adults. There are classes in gymnastics for all ages. There are dance classes, music classes, fitness and sports and so much more.

What caught my husband's eye was the "Country Woodworking" course that lasted eight weeks. I decided to take the course with him as previously I had pondered taking it alone. Now that he does not milk cows until late in the evening, we can go together.

The first class was an eye-opener as we were introduced to many new pieces of power equipment. In that first session we used a radial arm saw, a drill press, a router, a jigsaw, a jointer, a planer and a drum sander. We made a caddy for utensils and napkins to be used at a picnic. Even stenciling designs on the ends was a learning experience for me. Allen decided that a stain on his caddy was sufficient.

He is now making an end table with drop leaves and I am attempting to make a coffee table with drop leaves. We have our own dried lumber and so both pieces will be of black walnut. Other people in our class are using pine or oak lumber.

Some of the machines scare me as I realize the danger in using them. There are five women and three men in the class. This surprised me. Some of them have taken the course before and have woodworking tools in their homes. However, it is all new to me.

Champion Tomato Growers Honored

HERSHEY (Dauphin Co.) — Pennsylvania's top tomato growers were honored at the annual Tomato Awards Luncheon on January 30, 1990, during the 1990 Pennsylvania Vegetable Conference at the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center.

The contest was sponsored by Furman Foods, Inc. and the Department of Horticulture, Pennsylvania State University. James F. Kohl, Vice President of Furman Foods, presented the awards.

In the Class 3 hand harvest (15-24 acres) category, Robert MacBeth of Biglerville, Adams County, took first place. He grew 17.5 acres of tomatoes and harvested 35.7 useable tons per acre. MacBeth planted five varieties of bare-root transplants the first two weeks of May. His winning harvest went from mid-August to mid-September. In addition to tomatoes, he also grows soybeans, corn, strawberries, peaches, apples, hay, and wheat on 300 acres.

Dio Shelter of Turbotville, Montour County, had the second highest yield for the Class 3 hand harvest category with 34.6 tons per acre.

Samuel Rovenolt, manager, accepted the Class 1 machine harvest (more than 100 acres) award for Furman Farms, Inc. of Northumberland, Northumberland County. They harvested 20.1 useable tons per acre from their 140 acres of tomatoes. Their production methods included soil-testing each field, plowing down a portion of the recommended potassium and banding the remainder of the fertilizer recommendation, pre-plant incorporating of Devrinol (3 lb/A) and Tillam (3-4 qt./A), transplanting tray plants in twin rows (varieties used included 2653, 7151, 696, 7983, 832, Early Pear, LaRossa, 9208, 6203, P76, 8245, 8243, 7870 and 4135), band-applying Amiben over the row and Sencor in the row with a side dressing of fertilizer, cultivating three times with front-mounted danish-tines, spraying fungicides (Bravo 720, Manex 11, Kocide, and Ridomil) on a 7-10 schedule and insecticides (Asana XL, Guthion with Vydate and Trident) three to four times with a high-pressure boom sprayer or helicopter, and applying Ethrel (2-5 pt/A depending on temperature) as harvest aid. They use a Button Johnson electronic sort, brush-shaker harvester. Custom harvestors were also hired to keep up with the crop when necessary. Furmans also grow 206 acres of peas, 165 of snap beans, 106 of oats, 195 of wheat, 550 of field corn, and 581 of soybeans.

A 12-year veteran of tomato growing, Earl Stern of Blue Ridge Farms in Orrstown, Franklin County, again had the highest yield in his category, Class 3 machine harvest (50-75 acres). He harvested 1,673 useable tons from his 50 acres at 33.5 tons per acre. His yields by variety were 2653 - 33 T/A, 7151 - 47 T/A, 9208 - 28 T/A, and 8245 - 28 T/A. Stern planted 13,000 bare-root plants per acre in twin rows with trickle irrigation. Despite the high moisture conditions early in the season, he used the trickle irrigation to apply water six times and fertilizer twice.

The trickle tubing did not create any problems during the harvesting process. It allowed him to irrigate without wetting the foliage, increasing the disease pressure. The crop was sprayed 10 times on a 10-12 day schedule beginning June 10. Stern also grows 210 acres of soybeans, 135 of wheat, and 30 of rye at Orrstown and 425 acres of wheat in Lock Haven.

Anchor Farms of New Columbia in Union County and Carl Schmidt of Muncy in Lycoming County recorded 23 and 22.5 tons per acre, respectively, in the Class 3 machine harvest category.

In the Class 4 machine harvest category, Fred and Steve Kistler won the top honors with 40.3 tons per acre on their 35 acres in Bloomsburg, Columbia County. Planting was done between May 20 and 29 at the rate of 10,000 plants to the acre. They bought about half of their transplants from Streaters' Greenhouses in Bloomsburg. Harvest began Augsut 28 and was finished up on September 28. Fred planted 25 acres and obtained a 39.2 ton per acre yield while Steve planted 10 acres and harvested 43.0 tons per acre.

Having recorded the top yields in the state for machine harvest for two consecutive years, Fred said, "Any grower with a Class 1 or Class 2 soil should seriously consider growing tomatoes." A family operation which is operated by Fred and his wife Becky, sons Steve and Brian along with Steve's wife Tina with hired help only during transplanting and harvesting, they keep busy growing processing snap beans and sweet corn, soybeans, wheat, and timothy-clover sod on their 275 acres in addition to strawberries, sweet corn, and apples for their small roadside market. They also harvest their own snap beans and do custom harvesting for other growers.

Other entries in the Class 4 machine harvest category were Robert Swartz, Lykens, 27 T/A; Paul Dotter and Sons, Mill Hall, 27 T/A; Weaver Farms, Middleburg, 23.3 T/A; and George and Alice Toner, Mill Hall, 18.2 T/A.

Mail Pack

Friends and relatives who live in other places enjoy hearing about what's going on in your family. This is especially true when there has been a divorce in the family and one parent no longer lives with his/her children. But sometimes the days and weeks go by so fast that it's hard to keep track of everything. Here's a fun way to stay in touch.

What do we need?

Large manila envelopes

Postage

Schedule a time for the whole family to begin to work on this activity. Ask each person to bring something that reflects what they have been doing lately. This could be:

*Completed homework assignments and quizzes

*Drawings, pages from coloring books, and other "original art"

*Notes from teachers

*Programs, agendas or schedules from meetings, music recitals, concerts, school plays and other events

*Ticket stubs

*Recipes

*Photos

*Party invitations and favors

Ask family members to identify a special relative who lives in another town who would be especially interested in hearing about the kinds of things family members have been doing.

Write the family member's name and address on the manila envelope. Ask family members to add a short note explaining a little more about the item they brought with them to the meeting. Have everyone put their items and notes in the envelope so it can be mailed. Be sure to have the postmaster weigh it first to determine the proper amount of postage necessary.

Have the family think of another relative's name to put on the second envelope. Post the second envelope in a convenient place (bulletin board or refrigerator). Set a deadline for when the second envelope will be mailed. Until then, encourage family members to fill the envelope with anything they would be interesting to send. When the time comes to mail the second envelope, start the process all over again with a new envelope addressed to somebody else.

Table Talk Activity

To practice the skills of talking and listening, why not use "table talk"? This can be done around the kitchen table for mealtime talk, when you are traveling in your car, or at any time when all the family members are present. This can encourage your child to learn and think about various topics.

You can start by writing some leading questions on index cards and then place them face down. Take turns drawing from the pile. Read each question out loud and give everyone a chance to answer.

Respond to each other in accepting and encouraging ways. You can have a good time but don't allow teasing, ridicule or arguments to develop.

Some questions that can help you get started might be. . . "If you could go back in time, what period would you choose and why?" "Tell what you expect from your best friend." "What is one thing that happened to you this week that you feel good about?" "What would you do if you found $20 on the floor at (the local) super market?" Now you can make up your own questions for discussion.

16-Page Pork Ed Booklet Redesigned, Mailed

CHICAGO, ILL. — Pork will be seen in a new light when junior high school students walk into home economics and consumer education classrooms this year.

"Focus on Pork," the long-established favorite educational material for these classes, has been revamped with a contemporary design, the new pork cookery recommendations and updated nutritional information. The 16-page booklet, a project of the Pork Industry Group, is funded by checkoff dollars.

All 44,000 junior high home economics and consumer education instructors in the U.S. will be mailed a complimentary copy of "Focus on Pork" in February.

Lancaster 4-H To Hold Benefit Auction

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster County 4-H Program will be holding the 4th Annual Benefit Auction on Saturday, March 24, 1990 at the Farm and Home Center.

The event will begin with a preview of the items and an omelet breakfast at 6:30 a.m. The auction will begin at 9:00 a.m.

Items range from livestock to art. "There is something for everyone," said Zoann Parker, county 4-H extension agent.

The proceeds from the auction go directly into the county program, providing the over 4,000 4-H members with activities, materials and opportunities to learn life skills such as citizenship, leadership and self esteem, said Parker. The money will be used to train the 650 volunteer adult leaders.

Items are presently being accepted at the 4-H office. If you have an item to donate, please contact either Jackie Bard or Zoann Parker at 394-8651. All donations are tax deductible.

Bucks Coop To Meet

The Bucks Local of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative will hold its annual dinner meeting March 7 at 12 p.m. at the Plumsteadville Grange Hall.

Robert B. McSparran, a Lancaster County dairy farmer and president of the cooperative, will be the guest speaker. McSparran will report on cooperative business and issues facing the dairy industry.

Preschoolers And Money

Saving is a complicated idea for young children. "Next week" and "next month" may be the same for them — too far in the future to understand. Saving may begin as soon as a child wants something that costs too much for his or her regular allowance. It is important at first that the goal be very tangible such as a new toy or game and reachable in a fairly short time — within a few weeks — otherwise saving becomes a chore and a burden with no foreseeable reward.

As children grow older, they can save over a longer time and for less tangible items such as a week at camp, college, or a vacation.

Some parents choose to act as "banker" for their children's savings; others open savings accounts for their children. Children then learn that financial accounts are a tool that people use to help them manage money. Many banks and credit unions will give children tours so they can see how money is handled.

ADC Meetings Scheduled

SOUTHAMPTON (Bucks Co.) — Several locals of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative have annual meetings scheduled soon.

The Blue Mountain Local of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative will hold its annual dinner meeting March 6 at 12 p.m. at the Stockertown Memorial Hall.

James S. Fraher, Atlantic's economist, will be the guest speaker. Fraher will report on cooperative business and milk prices and market trends.

During the meeting, officers and delegates will be elected for the coming year.

Got Grain? Then get the trailer that is Timpte tough... the Super Hopper. It's not only built to take it...it's also built to cut fuel costs. The Super Hopper is lightweight and aerodynamically designed to reduce wind drag. When there's grain to be hauled, Timpte does the haulin' best and pulls a lot easier than the rest.

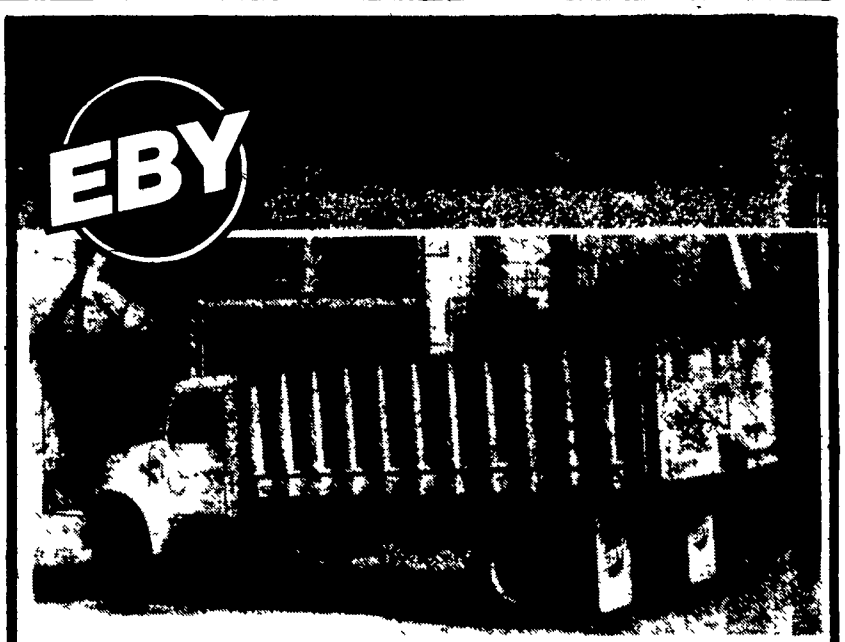
Box 127, Blue Ball, PA 17506 (717) 354-4971



CONSTRUCTED FOR YEARS OF MAINTENANCE-FREE SERVICE.

You'll get more out of an Eby aluminum grain body. Lightweight and rugged aluminum provides rigid, fuel-efficient support to fill your grain hauling needs.

Eby packs years of experience, workmanship and performance into every aluminum body it manufactures. And special Eby options let you customize your body to your individual operation. Available in standard lengths, each unit is designed to provide you with an investment in durable performance and practical economy.

Look over these outstanding features.

- Less weight. Eby aluminum bodies weigh up to 30% less than comparable steel and wood construction.
- Less maintenance. Aluminum construction won't rust or rot - never needs painting.
- Long-life durability. Heavy-duty structural components and hollow-tube frame combine with aluminum floor and sides to stand up to years of hard work.

Get outstanding value in EVERY Eby trailer.

Whether it's a top-of-the-line Ruff Neck or an economical Wrangler, you know your livestock trailer is built to last if it's from Eby.

Aluminum construction is one of the main reasons these trailers are so durable and reliable. They'll never rust through or need welding. In fact, without ever being painted, an Eby livestock trailer will stay looking new for years.

Standard features make your Eby trailer a profitable investment. Extra-heavy axles, brakes, wheels and tires. Thick aluminum sheet flooring. Sturdy posts and rails. Even an aerodynamically designed front end is standard.

And, while standard features make even the economical Eby Wrangler far more than an average economy-model, we custom-build everything we make. So you tell us what you want. Choose from a long list of options. Select those features you need for your particular operation. Whether it's a Wrangler or deluxe Ruff Neck, the trailer you buy will be the trailer you need.

Farmland Condemnation Agreement Averts

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Representatives of the Governor's Office, the state Agricultural Lands Condemnation Approval Board (ALCAB) and the Turnpike Commission reached an agreement that saved two productive farms from condemnation for the construction of two Turnpike extensions in western Pennsylvania, Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff said today.

Wolff, ALCAB's chairman, said the Turnpike Commission has agreed to seek an alternative to its proposal to replace 30 acres of wetlands along the proposed route for the Beaver Valley Expressway with productive farmland that would be condemned elsewhere.

"This administration is committed to saving farmland," Wolff said, "and we must always look for alternatives that do not endanger Pennsylvania's leading industry."

The Commission's agreement to seek an alternative to the condemnation of productive farmland removed ALCAB's final objection to the route in Beaver and Lawrence counties.

ALCAB approved the proposed route February 13th at the continuation of a hearing that began Jan. 24. The agreement was worked out in the interim between the two sessions.

At Tuesday's session, ALCAB also accepted as the best alternative the Turnpike Commission's plan to use farmland for the Greensburg Expressway in Westmoreland County.

Under Pennsylvania law, all highway projects involving the condemnation of productive farmland must receive prior approval from the condemnation approval board.

Feeding Hay Cubes

Feeding hay cubes are appearing on some farms that are short on forage due to the weather problems last summer and fall.

Due to the finer forage particle size in cubes, versus baled hay, it is recommended that they be limited to 50% of the forage dry matter fed to avoid a possible reduction in digestibility from quicker rumen passage and a depression in milk fat test.

Watch also for possible mold and mustiness that sometimes can occur in cubes, as well as baled hays.

COMPARE THESE FEATURES AND OPTIONS

Simple hydraulics allows one valve to operate the lift and stabilizer cylinders. Center plumbing means less hose length and easier coupling.

The basic box is heavy-duty steel welded seams, and reinforced for even more strength.

Standard offset hitch adjusts in 5-inch steps to lengths from 6'3" to 7'11". To allow for different row crop spacings, you can offset either right or left 5, 7½, 10 or 12½ inches.

Rub rails offer more protection to vehicles when approaching, during dumping cycle, and when departing.

Stabilizer cylinders hydraulically lock on to axle to hold wagon rigid during dump cycle.

Galvanized roof features vent insert for straight-through air flow.

The model 700 dump wagon is designed for years of trouble free service. The hydraulic system with a cable assist is designed to unload large loads of up to 20,000 lbs. quickly and efficiently even if the load is not distributed evenly.

Make your operation safer • Use year round • Variety of crops • All field conditions • Operate in wet and muddy

When Your Truck Reaches The Blower, Just Back Into Your RICHARDTON Conveyor Box, Dump Your Load And Race Away For The Next!

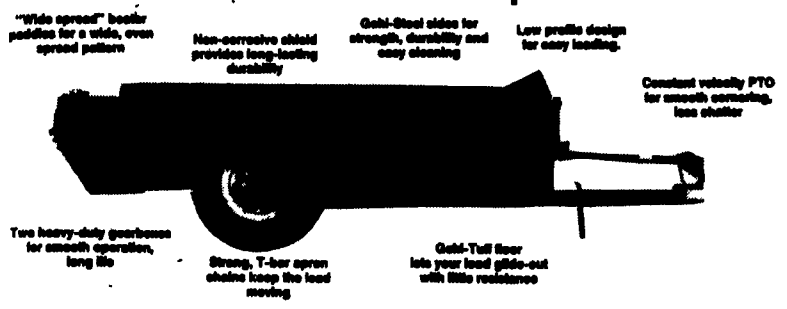
Proven Performance Features And Economical Price Makes Gehl Your Box Spreader Choice



"Wide spread" beater paddles for a wide, even spread pattern
Non-corrosive shield provides long-lasting durability
Gehl-Steel sides for strength, durability and easy cleaning
Low profile design for easy loading.
Constant velocity PTO for smooth cornering, less chatter
Two heavy-duty gearboxes for smooth operation, long life
Strong, T-bar apron chains keep the load moving
Gehl-Tuff floor lets your load glide-out with little resistance

Full 10-year warranty on floor and sides

Heavy-duty gear boxes
Two heav-duty gear boxes, one a 90 degree beater drive, the other a two-speed worm box with bronze gear and steel worm; provide efficient power transmission, smoother operation and long life.

Gehl-Tuff floor
In cold weather, the slick Gehl-Tuff surface reduces the force needed to break a frozen apron loose from the floor. So your whole load glides out with little resistance. And less apron pull means less wear and tear on drives and apron chains.

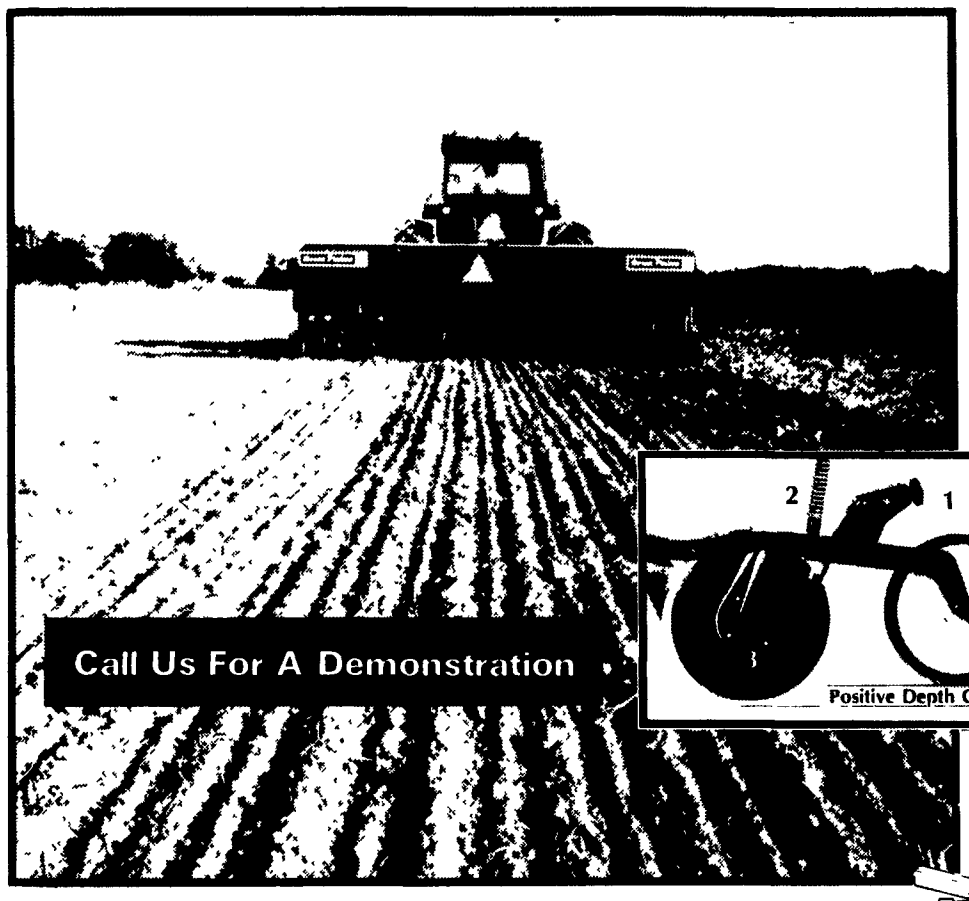
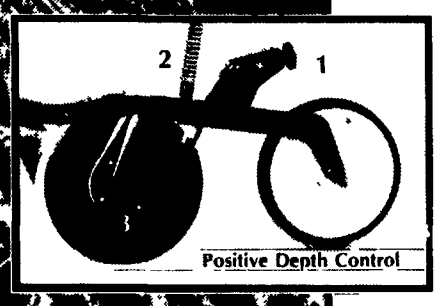
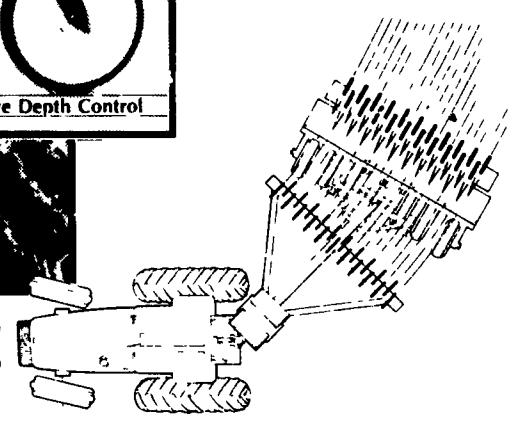
You Won't Find A Better No-Till Drill Than GREAT PLAINS





Great Plains Solid Stand® drills have the planting accuracy drilled soybeans need;
(1) Depth-Gauging Press Wheels keep the opener from penetrating too deep; planting depth can be quickly changed with exclusive dial-a-depth adjustment system. (2) Double Down-Pressure Springs hold opener firmly in the soil — preventing the bouncing action which leaves seed scattered on top of the ground.

(3) Special Seed Chute places seed in the very bottom of the v-slot, rather than allowing slot to partially close prior to seed release



THE NO-TILL HITCH THAT WORKS

Here's why:
A unique pivot between the coulter unit and the drill allows each disk opener to track exactly in the slot cut by the coulter in front — even while the unit is rounding a curve.

Excellent penetration is also achieved, thanks to a heavy-duty framework, calcium-fillable transport tires, and a special weight transfer design which applies some of the weight of the drill itself to the coulters. Should additional weight be needed, specially designed weight brackets are available which accept most tractor suitcase-style weights. In all, up to 400 lbs. of weight per coulter is possible — ensuring penetration even in the toughest ground.

Finally, all Combination Drill Hitches feature a quick hitch for attaching easily to 3-point drills. So you have the flexibility to no-till some acreage, then switch back to a conventional seeding method as conditions vary.

COMPARE PERFORMANCE! COMPARE PRICE! YOU'LL BUY A Great Plains NO-TILL DRILL

WARNING, ALL SILO OWNERS

Check Your Silo Now For Rotten Staves. If You Have Been Using Your Silo For 10 To 15 Years For Either Corn Silage Or Haylage, It Is Time To SHOTCRETE.

If you have a 15 year old silo, get it fixed or insure it better! But don't wait until the last minute to have it repaired because we may not be able to fix it if you wait too long.
REMEMBER your silo will not fall over when it's empty - it will fall over when it's full. It cannot stand on deteriorated concrete...

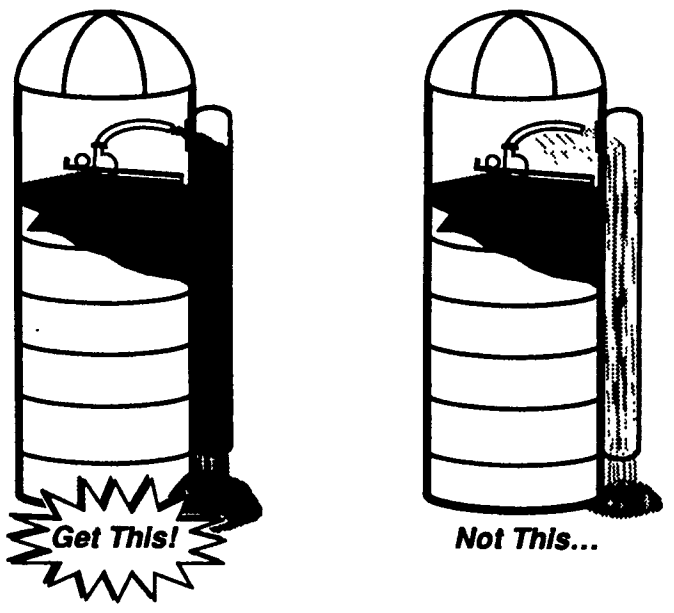
Get the Power You Pay For With Van Dale DURAGLIDE™



The newest innovation in silo unloading—from Van Dale, of course—is the DURAGLIDE Impeller System, which dramatically increases throwing power while reducing power requirements.

The DURAGLIDE paddle and wrapper inserts are slicker than glass and more durable than stainless steel.

Results in silage out the door every time—no annoying trips up the silo!

See this revolutionary system today at your local Van Dale dealers.

Ag Security Areas: Progress in 1990

GUY TEMPLE
Union Co. Extension

LEWISBURG (Union Co.) — During the past few weeks we have received many calls regarding the status of the agricultural security program in the Susquehanna Valley area. Agricultural security areas may be designated by township or borough officials when they are petitioned by landowners requesting an ag security area. After receiving a petition from landowners, officials have it reviewed by the local planning commission (if there is one) and an ag security area advisory committee, which the officials must appoint. Then after a public hearing the board may designate an ag security area. It provides more freedom against nuisance ordinances for farmers within the ag area. Nuisance ordinances could relate to the spreading of manure, running of tractors at all hours of the day or night, dust from various farm operations, spraying for insect or disease control. All of the authors writing about the "greatness of country living", seem to have left out the chapter relating to those necessary aspects of farming.

During the past few years several ag security areas have been designated by township and borough officials. At least three in Montour, seven in Northumberland, three in Snyder and five in Union County. Several more are presently in some stage of development.

A second benefit of the ag security bill (Act 43) was that farmland owners could sell development rights. Prior to the act the only way farmers could reap any benefit other than food or fiber from their land was to sell it for some type of development. The right to develop land is a valuable right. Under the act farmland owners could be paid for their development rights - the difference between agricultural value and market value. They would still own and farm the land, but they could no longer develop the land. However, no monies were made available in the original act to purchase development rights.

Monies were authorized in 1987 when we all had the opportunity of voting yes or no for the state to float a $1 million bond issue to be used to purchases farmland development rights. The referendum passed statewide by a 2 to 1 margin. In 1988 the state legislature passed legislation on how that bond was to be floated, and how the dollars would be distributed to purchase farmland development rights from farmers in ag security areas.

Presently Union and Snyder county have appointed county Ag Preservation board members to administer the program at the county level. Dave Epler (Union) and Craig Mitterling (Snyder) have been appointed to chair the county boards. Both boards are presently developing a written program of how the purchase of development rights program will be handled in their county.

A group of farmers from four ag security areas in Lycoming County met last week with the Lycoming County Commissioners to request a county board be appointed. Plans are being made for representatives from at least seven ag security area advisory committees to meet with the Northumberland County Commissioners. I have heard of no official action being taken by Commissioners in Columbia or Montour Counties.

When a county program has been finalized and approved by the state board, farmers in ag security areas will be able to offer to sell their development rights to the county board. Two basic criteria will be used to determine if development rights should be purchased - soils productivity level, and site factors.

The committee must determine the production capabilities of the different types of soils within the county, and then place a numerical value on each production capability level. Site factors relate to where a farm is located, and are also given a numerical value. What percentage of the area within 1 mile is in agricultural use? How close is the nearest water or sewer line? How much non-farm development is adjacent or nearby. How far to the nearest town? What percent of land within one mile is in an ag security area? What is the zoning in the area? On how many acres of the productive land of the farm would the owner be willing to sell development rights? These and many other questions relating specially to the county will have a numerical value placed on them. Both the soil and site values are to be combined into a total numerical value.

The county committee will then use the numerical values, rather than a judgmental value, to determine if development values should be purchased from a specific landowner wanting to sell development rights. An example of how the selection criteria can be used by the county committee. Two landowners offer to sell their development rights. There are only enough dollars to buy development rights from one farm. The committee, using the soil and site criteria would assign a numerical rating to all factors listed. The farmer with the best selection criteria rating would be the first one offered a price for development rights. The criteria take the guess work and personalities out of the process.

Another example of how the program could be used would be when a farmer is wanting to retire. The farmer's bank account is his land and he must now have some money to live in retirement. A son wants to buy the farm but cannot afford the total value. Until the purchase of development rights program becomes a reality, the only option he had was to sell some or all of the farmland. Now he can offer to sell the development rights to the county. He will receive some money to live, but still owns the land. However, it now has a lower value because the developments rights have been sold. The son may now be able to buy the lower priced farm and continue to farm the land. Results - Dad has some money to live, the son has a farm to farm and the community is assured of a continuing farm economy, as well as the open space that the farm provides.

When will the first development rights be purchased? The first was just a few weeks ago in Lancaster County. It would seem to this agent that some farmland development rights may be sold in the valley during 1990. Several people have asked - how many farmers will sell their development rights? I sure don't know!

PORCINE STRESS SYNDROME

Now that most of the major packers in the nation have made a commitment to purchasing hogs on lean value, it's reasonable to assume that we'll be seeing more porcine stress syndrome (PSS) in the near future.

Many producers remember the surge to the meat-type hog in the '60's, and the PSS-problems that came with it — sudden death and pale, soft, and exudative (PSE) pork. It's clear that PSS and heavily muscled hogs run hand-in-hand. But it's also clear that selection for carcass leanness is not the only factor associated with PSS.

We're just beginning to understand that environmental conditions before slaughter are equally important in the development of PSE.

Incidence

More than 11 percent of the hogs entered in the 1988 Pork Challenge Test (sponsored by the National Pork Producers Council) were designated pale, soft, and exudative. Lynn Knipe of the Meat Export Research Center says that the Japanese shy away from our pork because 30-40 percent of U.S. pork shipments have PSE characteristics. And although Danish and Canadian pork supposedly have fewer PSE problems, there is no question that both countries (and most of Europe) have room for improvement.

What Happens in the Pig

Pigs affected with PSS have an unusual metabolism. When subjected to stress (castration, loading, hauling, or mating), the muscles rapidly break down glycogen, a form of stored carbohydrate (sugar). Why the rapid breakdown occurs is not completely understood.

There is strong evidence that PSS hogs have more or larger "alpha-white" muscle fibers than normal hogs. The alpha-white fiber, which becomes predominant after genetic selection for heavily muscled hogs, has the biochemical machinery for rapid breakdown of glycogen.

Other studies have shown that PSS pigs have lower levels of dopamine in the brain, which could result in an over-stimulation of muscle cells. And still other evidence suggests that the membranes surrounding muscle fibers are abnormal. We may yet discover that all three theories are closely related. In any case, it's clear that when muscle cells rapidly metabolize glycogen, a lot of things happen. First, an incredible amount of heat is released — so much that the PSS pig has trouble getting rid of it. That's why his body temperature rises, often by 10 degrees in a matter of minutes. And that's why death losses are higher in the summer months.

Red and purple blotches on the skin often accompany this rise in temperature. When the PSS pig is under stress, muscle cells quickly contract — sometimes to the point that the pig has tremors. A rapid tail twitching is a sign of this. Lactic acid, a by-product of glycogen break down, is released into the bloodstream. That increases the acidity of the blood (blood pH drops) and leads to an increase in respiration rate — an automatic mechanism used by all animals for correcting low blood pH. This is why pigs suffering from PSS will breath very rapidly.

Carcasses from PSS pigs are different. Because of the rapid drop in pH, the muscles lose their ability to retain juices. Muscles take on a mushy, pale appearance. The problem is most apparent in the loin and outer ham muscles, and often leads to a two-toned color in the ham cuts. Fresh cuts lose more water and nutrients—are less attractive to consumers, and have a shorter shelf life. Processed products shrink excessively (about 3 percent above normal). Frozen cuts lose more moisture during thawing.

Obviously PSS can be a problem for producers. But PSE, a direct result of the stress syndrome, is a problem for both packers and consumers.

CAUSES OF PSS and PSE

There is little question that genetics play an important role in the incidence of PSS. Selecting lean, heavily muscled breeding replacements can lead to a predominance of the alpha-white muscle fiber. If that happens, PSS and PSE may follow.

But there is mounting evidence that environment is a factor, especially in the incidence of PSE. The time of feeding relative to the time of slaughter is important, since feeding time will determine the amount of glycogen in the muscles. Loading, unloading, and handling of pigs just prior to slaughter also affect PSE. Temperature and humidity during the transit and holding process is critical — with most PSE problems occurring during the summer.

Detection of PSS In the Live Pig

Halothane test

Halothane is a gas used to anesthetize pigs during surgery. Besides putting the pig to sleep, it also has the property of making the PSS pig show signs of muscle rigidity within 3 to 5 minutes of receiving the gas.

Disadvantages of the test include the need for special equipment and expertise, danger of killing the stress-susceptible pig, the narrow window of time in which the test can be used (between 7 and 11 weeks of age), and the fact that carriers of the halothane response gene will test negative.

Blood typing

According to the Pork Industry Handbook, researchers have discovered five genes carried on the same chromosome as the halothane response gene. This is important for two reasons. First, because the genes are on the same chromosome, they are likely inherited together. And second, knowing which genes are linked to the stress gene can tell us which animals are carriers. But to my knowledge, the test has not yet been perfected.

Blood Enzymes

A lot of work has been done regarding various enzyme levels in the blood and stress susceptibility. Results have been variable since a lot of factors can cloud the results. Excitement prior to sample collection, normal variation in enzyme levels, and contamination during needle puncture are just a few of the problems.

One enzyme that shows promise in detecting PSS-prone pigs is creatine phosphokinase (CPK). Two to eight hours after subjecting pigs to uniform physical stress, a blood sample is drawn from an ear vein. If CPK levels exceed 100 units/ml serum (Sigma Chemical Company procedure) or 60 light units (Antonik laboratory procedures), the pig is considered positive for the syndrome.

Detecting PSE in The Carcass

After a hog carcass has had a chance to cool in a typical packing plant, it is moved to a cutting room. At that point, it's easy to identify the PSE condition — you can see the pale color and the juices exuding from the muscle.

The challenge is to identify the problem 45 minutes after slaughter, or just before the carcass enters the cooler. This would allow the packer to sort the carcasses and perhaps correct problems in pre-slaughter handling.

The information may also be useful to the producer in his breeding programs. Some of the new electronic probes measure "reflectance" of the meat, in addition to the normal fat and muscle depth measurements. Reflectance is an indication of color. The higher the reflectance, the lighter the color and the greater the likelihood of the meat being PSE.

The Fat-o-Meat'er used by Hatfield measures reflectance. And studies in Europe reportedly show that reflectance accurately predicts PSE. However, in a group of test hogs at Hatfield (in which PSE was visually checked in the cooler), we found that the Fat-o-Meat'er measurements taken 45 minutes after slaughter were not reliable in predicting PSE.

Research at the University of Guelph confirms the fact that the Fat-o-Meat'er is reliable at identifying PSE 24 hours post slaughter, but not 45 minutes post slaughter. The one concept that shows promise is pH. All muscle drops in pH after slaughter.

However, muscle from a PSE hog drops much faster than normal, according to research at Iowa State University and the University of Guelph. At 45 minutes post-slaughter, the pH will be lower in a PSE hog compared to a normal one (about 5.7 vs 6.4, respectively). Unfortunately, we don't yet have the technology to measure pH at normal line speeds in large packing plants.

Reducing the problem

For pigs with PSS, there is no practical treatment, other than eliminating the stress. Unfortunately, minor things like mating or moving a pig down an alley are enough to trigger a PSS "attack." For carcasses with PSE, there are few processes that can effectively utilize the watery pork.

Blood test breeding stock

Few blood tests are being used presently. That will likely change if the incidence of PSS increases. Using both the halothane and CPK test will improve diagnosis over either test alone. Unfortunately, neither test will identify the carriers. And according to Temple Grandin, a noted designer of livestock facilities, for every sow testing positive in your herd, there will be another 18 sows carrying the gene.

Take pigs off the feed

Fasting hogs 8 to 12 hours prior to slaughter will reduce the amount of glycogen in the muscles and help to eliminate the rapid drop in pH.

Keep pigs cool during hot weather

Bedding the truck with wet sand or shavings when temperatures exceed 60 degrees will help, says Temple Grandin. If the temperature is more than 80 degrees, spray hogs with a light mist prior to loading.

Practices at the packing plant

A 3 to 6 hour rest period between unloading and stunning reduced PSE by 20 to 40 percent in studies at the University of Guelph. Cooling the hogs rapidly after slaughter will help to reduce the problems associated with a rapid drop in muscle pH.

Mixing pigs and long transport times both increase PSE, although these items are usually beyond our control.

What Do You Get When You Cross Chinese And American Swine?

DEKALB, Ill.— The first cross between a Chinese and American pig has been produced at a research farm in Esmond, Illinois operated by DEKALB Swine Breeders, Inc.

The company says the cross is the first step in a research program that may eventually make hog farming more profitable for U.S. producers.

The crossbred animals were produced by artificially inseminating DEKALB lines with swine semen that was imported from China last summer. The first litter was farrowed on November 17, 1989.

"The Chinese breeds are known for their large litter size, early sexual maturity, and disease resistance," said DEKALB President Roy Poage. "Unfortunately, their carcasses are not lean enough for U.S. markets." Poage said that the goal of DEKALB breeders is to incorporate the best traits of the Chinese breeds into the DEKALB lines through selective breeding.

"The new pigs have retained a few of the physical features of the Chinese breeds, such as their ear size and wrinkled noses," said Dr. David Fox, director of swine genetic research at DEKALB. He said that the pigs have been very hardy and docile and have grown quite well the first few weeks after birth.

DEKALB has the only privately funded program researching the Chinese pigs. Two university groups and the USDA are also studying the Chinese pigs. "It was a significant investment for us," said Poage, "but we felt it was worth the risk."

To minimize the health risk, and the cost, DEKALB opted to import swine semen instead of live animals. Poage said that importing frozen semen allowed the company to get a diverse supply of Chinese swine germplasm without spending money to transport and quarantine live animals. Poage added that DEKALB has closely monitored the health of the sows that were inseminated, and that there have been no health problems.

Bret Miller, manager of DEKALB's Esmond, Illinois farm, holds up a Chinese-American pig that was farrowed in November 1989.

Even though DEKALB breeders are pleased with the new Chinese-American pigs, they acknowledge that their work has only begun. "It may be five to ten years before U.S. farmers see the results at the commercial level," said Fox, "but the potential benefits are too great to ignore."

Ram Lamb Performance Test Scheduled

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center announces that the annual ram lamb performance test is scheduled to begin in April.

Pennsylvania's ram lamb performance testing program is the only centralized sheep performance testing program in the Northeast. As all the food-producing species of animals become more efficient and more importance is placed on economically important performance traits, the sheep industry must keep in step or risk losing their market share of the food supply. Many commercial sheep producers are becoming more aware of the need for reliable information on the seedstock which they are obtaining for use in the improvement of their flocks.

Sheep producers can nominate their best ram lambs under the following minimum requirements:

• All rams must be eligible to be recorded or registered with their national breed association.

• Senior rams must be born between September 1, 1989 and December 31, 1989. Junior rams must be born in January or February 1990.

• There are minimum weights per day of age requirements for the lambs at delivery time, dependent on breed. These run from 0.55 lbs. per day to 0.75 lbs. per day.

• All lambs must meet minimum requirements for structural correctness, frame type, natural muscling, breed type, and wool quality.

• The lambs must meet minimum health requirements.

The ram nominations accepted would need to be delivered April 17, 1990. The lambs will be given a 7-day adjustment period and then will be placed on an 84-day gain test. The rams will be weighed every 14 days and an average daily gain will be calculated as well as a lifetime weight per day of age. These rams will also be ratioed within their breed groups.

At the end of the 84 days, the rams will be evaluated by a committee for breed character, breed type, correctness of mouth, breeding soundness, black fibre content, and other factors, and will need to meet minimum standards. The rams will all be scanned ultrasonically to determine backfat thickness and to estimate loin eye area.

After all of the calculations and evaluations, approximately the top 75 percent of the rams will be selected to be offered in Pennsylvania's 12th Performance Tested Ram Lamb and Invitational Ewe Sale. This sale is scheduled for August 4, 1990.

To secure rules and nomination forms for the ram test or for more information on the test or the performance-tested ram sale, contact Glenn Eberly, director, Meat Animal Evaluation Center, 651 Fox Hollow Road, State College, PA 16803 (814) 238-2527.

Economic penalty

Because the problem is both environmental and genetic, subjecting the producer to a discount is not warranted.

Once we have the technology for identifying PSE carcasses 45 minutes after slaughter, the information should be used to evaluate not only genetic problems but handling and hauling practices as well.

Summary

Despite marked reductions, PSS is still prevalent. As producers select lean, heavily muscled breeding stock to take advantage of new carcass grading premiums, PSS problems may increase in the near future.

PSS in the worst form can lead to sudden death in hogs during time of unloading or mating. If PSS pigs survive the loading and transport process, the carcasses are often pale, soft, and exudative. That creates problems for both the packer and the consumer.

In addition to the genetic component, we've discovered that environment plays an important role. Fasting pigs before slaughter, keeping pigs cool during transit, resting pigs for several hours after unloading, and a rapid chill time all help to reduce PSE problems.

DPI Drive Begins

GEORGETOWN, Del. — The Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc. (DPI) 1990 Fund Drive has begun and it is off to a good start.

Fund Drive Chairman and DPI First Vice President Alden H. Balfany of Salisbury, Maryland reported a total of $206,827.95 in cash and pledges at the Fund Drive Kickoff dinner on February 15, 1990 at Seaford, Delaware.

I'm very pleased by the early response to the Fund Drive," Balfany said. "With the enthusiasm of our volunteer solicitors, I'm confident we'll reach or exceed the $425,000 goal."

Close to 200 volunteer solicitors from throughout the Delmarva poultry growing region attended the kickoff to learn of the progress to date and to hear the featured speaker. Layton Wheeler, manager, member and staff services, Delmarva Electric Cooperative, spoke about the significance of the poultry industry to the Delmarva Peninsula's economy and its people.

Wheeler said, "Anybody on Delmarva who doesn't know the importance of poultry to our economy doesn't know what's going on." He encouraged the volunteer solicitors to work hard in the remaining weeks of the fund drive so the goal can be met. "Working together means winning together," he said.

The fund drive will conclude April 24, 1990 with the Delmarva Poultry Booster Banquet in Salisbury, Maryland. DPI supporters receive one ticket for each $100 they invest.

DPI is the 4,000-member nonprofit trade association working for the continued progress of Delmarva's poultry industry. The fund drive is its method of raising money for its many projects.

DPI includes poultry growers, allied industry suppliers, industry employees, Delmarva's eight poultry companies, and non-poultry business that recognize the importance of the chicken industry to Delmarva's economy.

Sumner Named President Of Poultry And Egg Export Council

TUCKER, GA — James H. Sumner has been named president of the USA Poultry and Egg Export Council.

Sumner, who has served as vice president of market development since mid-January, succeeds Bill Powers who resigned on Feb. 12.

Jerry Faulkner, chairman of the council, noted that although the council has faced several changes over the past few months, he and the executive committee feel good about the future.

"We have the utmost confidence in Jim and his ability to move the council forward in the decade of the '90's," said Faulkner.

Before joining the council staff, Sumner served as director of corporate communications for Dairymen, Inc., a regional milk marketing cooperative headquartered in Louisville, Kentucky.

Prior to that, Sumner was director of markets for the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture for seven years. In that capacity, he directed the state's agricultural marketing programs which included exporting, commodity promotion, livestock grading and reporting, and poultry and egg inspection.

The council is an organization of more than 70 poultry and egg companies cooperating with the U.S. Department of Agriculture for the expansion and development of the nation's poultry and egg exports. With offices serving Europe, the Middle East, Africa, and the Far East, the council provides a wide range of activities and services overseas.

Sumner holds a B.S. degree in journalism from Southern Illinois University and has worked toward his M.S. degree in public relations at Temple University in Philadelphia. He has served as farm editor for the Lancaster Intelligencer Journal and as assistant director of member and public relations for Inter-State Milk Producers Cooperative in Southampton.

Firestone Tires Feature Long Bars In Treads

AKRON, Ohio — Firestone has introduced two farm tractor tires that feature equal length long bars in the tread design, a radical departure from the long bar and short bar design used in the past.

The bias ply tires are the Super All Traction 23 and the Super All Traction front wheel drive, both in production at the company's Des Moines plant.

"The long bar/long bar configuration is now used in every tire in the Firestone tractor line because of the advantages of longer wear and better ride it provides, with no loss of traction," said Robert L. Smith, business manager, Firestone farm tires.

"Extensive Firestone tests indicate there is less tread squirm, and thus less wear, in the equal length longer bars. With the long bar/short bar design, vibration increases as the bars wear and the smoothness of the ride decreases," Smith said.

The 23-degree angle of the bars, which Firestone introduced in the 1960s in conjunction with a more open center, provides for cleaning and no loss of traction.

In addition, the combination of a flat tread contour and heavy bar bracing on the Super All Traction 23 tire provides shoulder-to-shoulder contact and helps to extend tread life.

Firestone's tests were conducted at the company's Tire Test Center in Columbiana, Ohio. Additional testing was completed at the Firestone Tire Test Center in Fort Stockton, Texas.

Bulls Nearly Finished With Meat Evaluation Test

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Meat Animal Evaluation Center has announced that the 75 bulls on test have completed 84 days of the 112 day test. The bulls are still performing very well with many outstanding individuals in the various breeds.

The 25 Angus bulls are averaging 3.78 pounds per day on test and have maintained a lifetime weight per day of age of 3.26 pounds per day. The top-gaining Angus bull is the Scotch Cap son from Meadow Mist Farms that is gaining 4.70 pounds through 84 days with a ratio of 124. This bull also has a lifetime weight per day of age of 3.69 pounds per day with a ratio of 113. The second fastest gaining Angus bull is the Hoff Esso SC 433 son consigned by Windcrest Farm. This bull has gained 4.49 pounds per day on test with a ratio of 119 and has a lifetime weight per day of age of 3.39 pounds per day with a ratio of 104.

The 22 Simmentals are averaging 3.83 pounds per day through 84 days and have maintained a group average lifetime weight per day of age of 3.29 pounds per day. The top-gaining Simmental is also the top-gaining bull over all breeds. This Papillon son consigned by Messick Farms is maintaining a 5.00 pounds per day gain through 84 days with a ratio of 131. He also has a 3.81 pounds per day lifetime weight with a ratio of 116. The second fastest gaining Simmental is the youngest bull on test. This Stough's Infra Red son owned by G & J Valley Farm has gained 4.60 pounds per day on test with ratio of 120 and has a lifetime weight per day of age of 3.67 pounds per day with a ratio of 112.

The 21 Polled Herefords have averaged 3.57 pounds per day ADG through 84 days and have a 3.11 pounds per day lifetime weight per DOA. The to-gaining Polled Hereford bull is the red-necked RD Wintun Vision son owned by Wil-Stock Farms. This calf has gained an impressive 4.62 pounds per day on test with a ratio of 129. He also has managed a lifetime weight per DOA of 3.24 pounds per day with a ratio of 104. Tied for second fastest gaining Polled Hereford are the G & R Raceway 1900 sons owned by Stony Creek Farm and Kevin Diehl. these bulls exhibited a gain of 4.36 pounds per day so far, which earned them a ratio of 122. Gaining almost as rapidly are the Race son from Egleston's Polled Herefords and the RB Stamina son owned by Spring Bottom Farm. These two bulls have gained 4.35 pounds per day on test so far.

The 4 Charolais bulls have a breed average ADG of 3.45 pounds per day on test and a lifetime weight per DOA of 3.13 pounds per day. The fastest gaining Charolais is a BR Yukon Jack son. This bull owned by Cherry Run Charolais is gaining 3.69 pounds per day with a ratio of 107.

This year again we have some outstanding bulls representing the Salers, Shorthorn, and Chiangus breeds. Ford Tedder Spreads In 10-Foot Swath

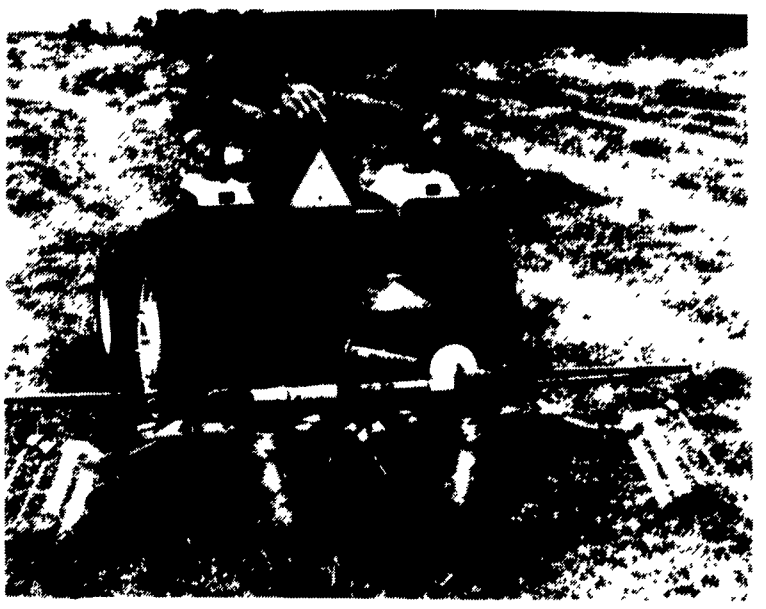
NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The new Model 157 tedder from Ford New Holland teds and spreads hay in a 10-foot swath to speed curing.

The new tedder is carried on the tractor's 3-point linkage for easy maneuverability in transport and field crossing. Two left-hand rotor bars can be repositioned for narrower transport on roads and through gates.

Tedding is the fastest way to cure grass hay, said Joe Weicksel, product manager. "That's the tedder's most important use. But legume crops can benefit, too, if the tedding is done carefully and before the leaves are dry enough to break or shatter."

Tedding can loosen up an evening-cut swath on the morning after to get a head start on that day's sunlight and breezes through easier air penetration in the swath.



The new Model 157 tedder from Ford New Holland mounts on the tractor 3-point linkage and teds a 10-foot width. The machine is designed to speed drying in grass crops but can also be used in legumes if tedding is completed before leaves are too dry.

FFA Chapters From Iowa, Ohio Top 'Corn In The Bag' Sales

PHOENIX, Ariz.— Two Iowa FFA chapters and one from Ohio were rewarded for their "Corn In The Bag" fund raising efforts at the Annual Awards Banquet of the National Corn Grower's Association's (NCGA) Corn Classic.

The "Corn In The Bag" Project, cosponsored by NCGA and ICI Americas Inc., allowed FFA chapters throughout the nation to sell biodegradable plastic garbage bags made from cornstarch.

North Polk FFA Chapter in Alleman, Iowa was named the top chapter in the fund raising project by topping all other chapters in the sale of the garbage bags.

For its efforts, the chapter received $5,000 and an all-expense-paid trip for Thomas Cory, chapter advisor, and Renee Cory, chapter president, to accept the award at the Corn Classic in Phoenix.

Prairie FFA in Gowie, Iowa placed second in the fund raiser and was awarded $2,500 for its sales effort. Representing the chapter were chapter members Travis Hicks and Dale Peterson, accompanied by Loren Adams.

A $1,000 check was presented to the Arcanum FFA in Arcanum, Ohio for ranking third in sales. George Skidmore, chapter advisor, and chapter member Ryan Denniston accepted the check for the chapter.

"The 'Corn In The Bag' Project was a success again this year because it allowed FFA chapters another opportunity to generate funds for chapter activities and develop a new corn market," said Floyd Schultz, NCGA Plastic committee chairman and a Plainfield, Illinois corn grower.

For Yield... W-L alfalfa stacks up.

FOURTH YEAR

W-L	Competitors
W-L Alfalfa varities are strong producers throughout the life of your stand. You can't afford to settle for less.	If your alfalfa doesn't make it to the fourth year, you've reduced the overall profitability of your crop.

In test after test by public and private researchers, W-L alfalfa yields stack up for profits. For more than 25 years, W-L alfalfa varities have been bred for long stand persistence, quick recovery after cutting, multiple pest resistance and extra leafy, fine-stemmed forage. With proper crop management, you'll have strong fourth-year yields that stack up for a profitable crop.

Profit Margins Still Exist

For Fall 1990 Cattle Market

PALMYRA (Lebanon Co.)—The Feb. 1 USDA 7-State Cattle on Feed Report was released recently and indicated on-feed numbers at 8.526 mil. hd., 107 percent of a year ago; placements at 1.896 mil. hd., 111 percent of a year ago; and marketing at 1.634 mil. hd., 97 percent of a year ago.

According to Mike Orndorff, market analyst for PACMA, Inc., "This was a record number of cattle placed on feed and finally indicates a producer response to price. Unfortunately, it appears as though the cash and futures highs are in for 1990. April futures have dropped over $2/cwt. since the report. However, profit margins still exist for fall marketings but producers need to be prudent in the purchase of feeders and forward price their marketings off the October futures when appropriate."

For more information on forward pricing cattle, call PACMA, Inc. at (800) 722-6246 or out of state (800) 733-3647.

Nut Tree Grafting, Fruit Workshop Highlights 4-Flap Grafting

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — Things will be a little nutty and fruity on Saturday, March 3 during a Nut Tree Grafting and Tree Fruit Workshop at the Dauphin County Agriculture and Natural Resources Center, two miles north of Dauphin Borough on Route 225.

Jay R. Book, vice chairman and vice president of the Pennsylvania Nut Growers Association, and Dauphin County Conservation District will conduct a classroom session with a hands-on grafting demonstration from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. After a lunch break, James Welshans, executive director of the Dauphin County cooperative extension office, will conduct a Tree Fruit Workshop from 12 noon to 2 p.m.

Not only will Jay share his knowledge of nut tree grafting, he may also share his favorite nut recipes. Jay said, "Most people are surprised to hear of the varieties of nut trees that grow extremely well in Pennsylvania."

Grafting is a process where a small limb is spliced onto another to produce a top grade nut. The results of grafting create a larger than normal kernel that contains more nutmeat within a shell that's easier to remove. During the workshop, Jay will discuss the growth and planting site requirements of various nut-producing trees. Highlighting the workshop is a new four-flap grafting technique.

Jim Welshans will present a session on tree fruit geared for the novice but still of value to the veteran fruit grower. Fruit topics will cover species selection, site preparation, general care and pruning of the fruit trees.

The workshop is free, but preregistration is required. For more information, call (717) 921-8100.

Newspaper Collections Are Farm-City Cooperation

Lebanon city and county officials team up with area farmers to unload newspaper bundles from the trunk of a car and load them onto the back of an area farmer's truck. The site is the rear parking lot of the city-county municipal building and the central location is to see further monthly use as a Saturday morning-through-afternoon newspaper collection and distribution point. It's all part of a voluntary recycling program that was put into play by cooperating officials, with Kenneth Winebark, county extension agent, serving as the catalyst. Winebark, not shown, along with other officials and farmers, was helping to load a large tractor trailer truck, from which the photo was taken. The first day of the program saw an estimated 17 tons of bundled newspaper dropped off by urban and rural residents and hauled away by farmers who are already up on how to make and use shredded newspaper for inexpensive livestock bedding. According to Winebark, more needs to be done. On Thursday, he held a demonstration "newspaper bedding barn meeting" at Ken and Karen Sellers farm, near Annville. He said that when more area farmers know how to use and make the money-saving bedding, the demand for used newspaper will increase. Landfill pioneer and waste water treatment innovater Frank Meiser, now retired, also showed up for the recycling effort. In the backround, Meiser stands facing the camera with his hands in his pockets to keep warm while waiting for the next load of papers to come in. With farmers being able to use newspaper constructively, there's less material hastening the life expectancy of the county's landfill, that was started and run by Meiser as a public service. Lebanon isn't the only county with a bedding program, however. Many extension offices around the state are initiating efforts to get similar programs off the ground. Other counties are well ahead in the recycling effort.

1990 Farmland Preservation Funds Allocated

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The State Agricultural Land Preservation Board has approved an additional $20 million in funding to enable counties to purchase agricultural conservation easements.

Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff, who chairs the board, said the 1990 state allocation will be coupled with $25 million allocated during 1989.

The 1990 allocation was set at $20 million in order to meet matching fund formulas in the Farmland Preservation Act. To date, the board has approved a total of $45 million for easement purchases to preserve agricultural land. Counties have contributed $5.8 million in local funds to the program.

"When you add up last year's state money, new state funding and contributions from counties, you get a three-pronged effort that puts $50.8 million into the battle to save an irreplaceable natural resource," Wolff said.

"I think that kind of commitment shows Pennsylvania intends to save its farms to produce food for future generations."

Pennsylvania's farmland protection program is funded by a $100 million bond issue approved by voters in a statewide referendum in 1987.

Funds are allocated according to a formula based on development pressure, agricultural production and county appropriations.

The State Agricultural Land Preservation Board also approved rules and procedures to operate a county farmland preservation program in Lehigh County. In order to receive state funding, each county must submit a proposed plan of operation for approval by the board. Officials in Lehigh County now can begin purchasing agricultural easements.

Counties with approved programs are Berks, Bucks, Chester, Lancaster and Lehigh. Twenty-three counties have allocated local funds for purchases of agricultural easements.

In other board action, easement purchases were approved for four farms in Lancaster County. Those easements will protect 323 acres of prime farmland from development.

Under Pennsylvania's farmland protection program, farmers can sell their development rights based on appraisals of their farms. The price per acre is the difference between appraisals as farmland and as development land. On the four farms approved by the board, the price for development rights ranged from $1,548 an acre to $2106 an acre.

Conference Scheduled

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — In April, 1990 Penn State will sponsor a Conference for Employers of Farm Labor in the following three locations:

- April 2, 1990, Biglerville Fire Hall, Biglerville;
- April 5, 1990, Thompson's Dairy Bar, Newton Ranson Blvd., Lackawanna County;
- April 6, 1990, Red Rose Inn, Routes 796 and 1, Jennersville.

The 1990 conference will be a one-day program intended to increase an employer's knowledge and understanding of important issues that impact on the relationships between an employer and his or her employees. This important area has continued to evolve over the past year and the purpose of this program is to help employers understand these changes and other aspects of the relationship.

This year's program will be a one-day program beginning at 8:30 a.m. and lasting until 5 p.m. Lunch is part of the program at each location.

At last year's conference, a manual was distributed to all program registrants. Updates to this manual will be distributed to all registrants as part of the 1990 conference.

The cost for this year's conference is $36 per registrant.

Control Weeds By Proper Alfalfa Stand Management

AMES, Iowa — Weeds in alfalfa hay may reduce forage quality by nearly 50 percent. Therefore, weed control is an essential part of alfalfa's total management program, said Bill Fleet, eastern sales area agronomist for Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc. to hay producers, cattlemen, and dairymen during the recent Hay Management Forum, a satellite-broadcasted conference sponsored by Microbial Genetics, a division of Pioneer.

"The best weed control for alfalfa is to integrate and properly manage all areas of alfalfa production, because 90 to 95 percent of weed control comes from the alfalfa stand itself," Fleet said. "Thus, management practices that promote good growth affect weed control."

Fleet told the nearly 10,000 farmers throughout the United States who watched the forum via satellite transmission that several areas of alfalfa management can have dramatic impacts on an alfalfa stand and weed control. They include:

•Site selection. The site of an alfalfa field is not only important from a soil type standpoint, but also from a fertility, soil pH, and cropping history standpoint. The important thing to remember is that producers have to be willing to adjust, usually downward, their production expectations. Fleet said, "A soil may have the capability from a fertility standpoint to produce 8 tons/acre, but from a physical standpoint — too wet or too heavy — it may be able to produce only 3 tons/acre."

•Fertility. Fertilization management of an alfalfa field is an ongoing process that begins several years before the stand is established and continues throughout the life of the stand. Fleet said the key nutrients required for alfalfa are phosphorus, potassium, sulfur, magnesium, calcium, and boron.

•Soil pH. Lime is the soil regulator and the most important soil additive because soil pH can determine how well the six major nutrients will perform. For example, a producer may be doing a great job of fertilizing, but if the soil pH is not in the correct range, the producer will not reap the full production and economic benefits from the fertilizer.

•Seedbed condition. Seedbeds have some effect on seeding rate because poor seedbeds may require higher rates of seeding in order to achieve an acceptable initial plant population. Seedbeds should be relatively fine and very firm. "You should be able to stand on the seedbed and not sink in over the soles of your shoes," Fleet said.

•Stand evaluation. At some time in the life of an alfalfa stand, a producer must decide if the stand is no longer economically manageable. Most stands have lost their capacity to produce acceptable yield and quality levels when the stand density is less than four to five plants per square feet.

Another managerial decision that can affect the performance of an alfalfa stand is selecting what variety of seed to use. Dr. Craig Sheaffer, professor of agronomy at the University of Minnesota, said forage quality should not be the main criterion for selecting a variety.

Select Varieties

"When I look to select varieties in a hay management system, I first look for varieties that have good yield persistence — varieties that will tolerate frequent cutting," Sheaffer said. "Therefore, forage quality becomes a secondary selection criterion."

Sheaffer also advised growers to plant more expensive seed with proven yield persistence because of the long-term benefits. Although buying cheaper seed may save you money when establishing a crop, Fleet said, the forage yields and returns per acre for the more expensive seed will easily cover the higher input costs.

Following all these management tips, however, will not ensure any one producer a high-quality crop of alfalfa hay because harvesting and storing has a dramatic impact on the final product. It is so dramatic, that Steve Soderlund, technical services manager at Microbial Genetics, told viewers weather is the number one factor that affects hay quality.

"Generally, to bale safely, alfalfa requires two to four days of good drying weather without a preservative," Soderlund said. In Wisconsin, however, the probability of getting three consecutive drying days in June is only 30 percent, less than 40 percent in July, and less than 50 percent in August. "This means that, on the average, producers can expect about 40 percent or more of their hay to have some rain damage," he said.

Damage Significant

And the damage can be significant. University of Wisconsin studies show that with no rain, hay experiences a 9.6 percent loss of dry matter primarily due to plant respiration during wilting. With one inch of rain during the first 24 hours after cutting, a 20.2 percent loss in dry matter can be expected. If alfalfa gets a severe rain of about 2.5 inches after laying on the ground for a couple of days, a 54.4 percent loss can occur.

Another phase in harvesting that affects hay quality is the mechanical handling of overly dried hay. Research at Microbial Genetics found that in large round bales, for every 1 percent drop in moisture content below 20 percent, a producer loses about one percent of the hay due to leaf shatter.

"I think it goes without saying that if producers could bale their hay at higher moisture levels, they could reduce risk to weather losses and minimize leaf shatter," Soderlund said. "However, it is well recognized that baling hay at moisture levels above 15 percent increases the risk of losses due to mold and heat damage."

To overcome the worries of spoilage, Soderlund suggested the use of Pioneer® brand 1155 Alfalfa Hay Inoculant. In the past, producers have benefited from the use of this inoculant in small square bales. But recent research from Microbial Genetics shows that 1155 is just as effective when used with large round bales.

Studies Found

These studies found that hay treated with 1155, baled at 20 percent moisture, and stored for 90 days had increased yields of 353 pounds per acre per cutting compared to hay that was allowed to dry one extra day to 10 percent moisture.

In addition to the increase in tonnage, the studies found a one percent increase in protein content in inoculated hay. And in feed trials with beef steers, inoculant-treated hay was more palatable and supported up to a 15 percent increase in intake.

Soderlund advised producers to allow inoculant-treated large round bales to stabilize and fully cure before storing. If stacked too early, moisture will migrate to the top bales and cause severe damage. Likewise, producers should not cover large round bales with plastic or other devices until the bales stabilized.

Gehl Posts Record 1989 Sales

WEST BEND, WI — Gehl Company posted record 1989 sales and net income and a strong fourth quarter performance, according to an announcement today by Bernard L. Nielsen, president and chief executive officer. The company became publicly owned in November.

Sales for the year increased 24 percent to $154.6 million in 1989, compared to $124.6 million in 1988. Net income grew 49 percent to a record $5 million in 1989 from $3.4 million in 1988, excluding a $708,000 ($0.17 per share) gain in 1988 related to a change in accounting for income taxes. Earnings per share in 1989 reached $1.17, up 39 percent over the $0.84 per share earned in 1988, excluding the $0.17 per share gain.

"Our continued growth and strong performance during 1989 demonstrates the demand for new agricultural and light industrial and construction equipment in the capital goods markets we serve," said Nielsen. "We've positioned ourselves to help customers take advantage of a strengthening agricultural economy and the continuing need to rebuild infrastructures throughout the world."

Gehl Company's backlog of orders at December 31, 1989, remained strong at $55.7 million. While the backlog is lower than the $62 million backlog of one year ago, Nielsen indicated that the change is a result of planned increases in pre-season shipments to meet continued demand and the implementation of new order writing and wholesale financing policies. These factors tend to reduce peak levels of backlog but provide for balanced inventory, manpower, and material requirements.

Sales and net income also increased for the fourth quarter of 1989. Net income rose to $1.1 million from $99,000 in the comparable 1988 period. Sales reached $39.2 million, up 34 percent from $29.2 million in the fourth quarter of 1988. Fourth quarter earnings per share were $0.22, compared to $0.02 for the same quarter in 1988.

By business segment, 1989 sales from Gehl's agricultural division rose 27 percent to $114.2 million from $90.2 million in 1988. Operating income increased 53 percent in 1989 to $9.1 million compared to $5.9 million in the prior year. The strong performance was the result of sales of the company's livestock feeding product line acquired in late 1988 and increased sales in most other product lines.

In the industrial/construction division, 1989 sales increased 18 percent to $40.5 million from $34.4 million in 1988. Operating income grew 51 percent to $4.9 million in 1989 from $3.2 million last year. Sales of two new models of rough-terrain telescoping-boom forklifts and increased sales of skid steer loaders to Gehl's distributor for Europe and the Middle East contributed to higher divisional sales.

According to Nielsen, the company expects increased sales and improved operating margins in 1990 because of favorable agribusiness market conditions, increased market penetration and market share in the industries it serves, and on going internal improvements in quality, costs, and productivity.

The competition hasn't kept up with Massey-Ferguson. Have you?

M-F 3600 Series

Still the real leader

Massey-Ferguson caught the competition by surprise when they introduced the revolutionary M-F Autotronic tractors 3 years ago.

Today the competition's newest models still can't match the productivity of the M-F Autotronic tractors Here's why Steering.

When making tight turns on the headlands, you need to quickly disengage the differential lock, but keep the 4WD to pull you sharply through the turn

- ▶ Raise your 3-point hitch or touch a brake and M-F Autotronic tractors automatically disengage the differential lock, but continues the 4WD so you can turn faster and sharper. The competition shuts off their front-wheel assist, or does nothing

Reduced slippage.

How often have you wasted fuel and time from unnecessary wheel spin, or even been stopped when one wheel dug in, just because you forgot to re-engage the differential lock or 4WD?

- ▶ Drop the three-point hitch and M-F Autotronic tractors automatically re-engage the differential lock to prevent spinning and lost time
- ▶ On 4WD models, touch the differential lock and it automatically engages the 4WD.

Improved control.

Stopping a heavy load can be hard on your tractor and your nerves. But it doesn't have to be.

- ▶ As soon as you apply the brakes on 4WD models, the tractor instantly engages the 4WD to give you effective 4-wheel braking and maximum control.

Gentler PTO.

Independent PTO systems can be pretty hard on shear pins, clutches and implements.

- ▶ M-F Autotronic tractors automatically measure the PTO load and engage the clutch smoothly and progressively to prevent damage

4WD is great in the field, but not on the road.

- ▶ M-F Autotronic tractors automatically disengage the 4WD at speeds over 9 mph (14 KPH) for better fuel economy and less tire wear.
- ▶ Slow down, and 4WD is re-engaged for maximum control and traction.

Compare all the benefits. See and drive the competition's copies of the M-F Autotronic tractors. Then stop by your M-F Dealer and see the real value and performance that has made Massey-Ferguson the Western World's largest tractor manufacturer.

Then, if you still think their tractor is better, buy it.

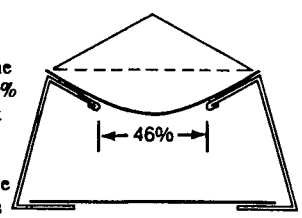
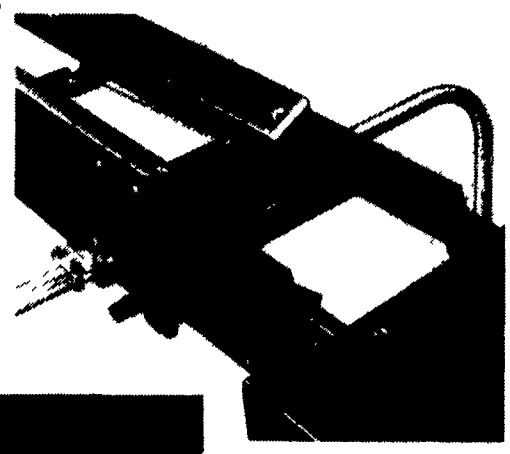
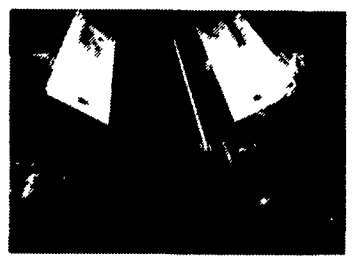
Here's More Proof That J-STAR Builds It Best:



Deep-trough, air-borne 14 in. belt carries 27% more feed than a flat 16 in. belt. 105% more than a flat 12 in. belt. Also, because 46% of the belt rides over thin air - instead of sliding on a metal surface there's less drag. Requires less HP, less energy... reduces wear on the belt. Belt returns conditions for reduced friction.





Convenient and simple belt cable tightener mantainer belt or cable tension with a trun of a self-locking ratchet. Ratchet is easy to get to; requires only a wrench for adjustments.

Super 750 barn cleaner...for pulling up to 700 feet of chain

SUPER 500 DRIVE: The Super 500 spur gear (not roller chain: drive unit handles up to 250 ft. of chain with 2 H.P. up to 350 ft. of chain with 3 H.P. and up to 550 ft of chain with a 5 H.P. motor

SUPER 750 DRIVE: The Super 750 drive unit with 7½ H.P. motor handles up to 700 ft of chain. The main gear is cast from ductile iron to provide the extra strength required for cleaning large barns Both units are packed with power and built to last

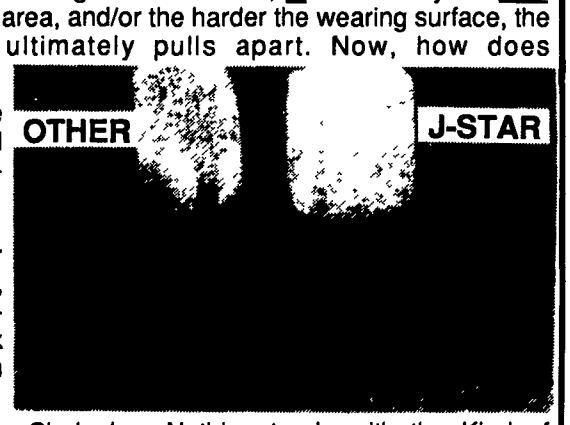
BARN CLEANER CHAIN - Face The Facts

FICTION: The Stronger the Chain the Longer it will Last...

The life of barn cleaner chain is not directly affected by its tensile strength. The strength of a new chain considerably exceeds the maximum pull of the drive unit. For example, the pull of a J-Star model 750 drive unit - the heaviest and fastest on the market - is only 33% of the tensile strength of J-Star's hook link chain. Enough said!!

FICTION: All Hook Link Chain is Basically Alike...

The life of barn cleaner chain, for a given installation, is affected by its wear and hardness. The greater the wear area, and/or the harder the wearing surface, the longer a link will wear before it ultimately pulls apart. Now, how does J-Star chain stack up?



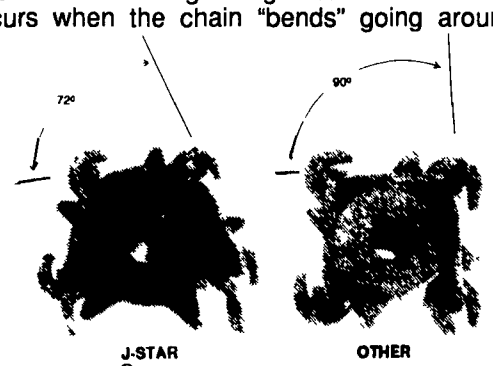
J-Star chain is hardened by the same process to the same hardness range as all competitive hook link chain — NO DIFFERENCE!

BUT...

The first point in a chain to fail from wear is usually the end of the eye. J-Star chain, compared to the other brand for example, has more area in the hook link area. Note the graphic difference shown below.

FICTION: The Life of a Barn Cleaner Chain has Nothing to do with the Kind of Drive Unit It's Used With It...

Barn cleaner chain wears at the point where the links contact one another. The rate of wear for a given installation increases as the amount of "grinding" between hook and sprocket increases. This "grinding" occurs when the chain "bends" going around drive sprockets, idler sprockets, such as corner wheels, reverse bend wheels, hold-down shoes or wheels, and drive sprockets. Most commercial barn cleaners are about equal in the degree to which they "bend" the chain going through most of these units. HOWEVER - hook link chain is "gripped" less when it goes around a J-Star 72-tooth drive sprocket than when it goes around the other brand 90° sprocket.



All-forged Hook-Link® chain... available on Super 300 and Super 500 barn cleaners

Extra thick steel at all wear points

IMPORTANT: Look for the "parting line" on any barn cleaner chain you buy. It shows where excess metal has been trimmed off. It is your assurance that the link was totally forged, not just punched out of a flat steel bar with grain flow in one direction only.

You want a totally-forged link because forging changes the grain of the steel, causing it to curve in unbroken flow lines around the contours of the link, giving the link greater strength to serve you longer.

MILK. IT'S FITNESS YOU CAN DRINK.

SLICK CONCRETE CAN BE ROUGHENED

SCABBLING is an effective way to avoid unnecessary losses of cattle. The SCABBLER makes bands about two inches wide approximately 1/8" to 3/16 in. depth. This gives sufficient area for good footing while allowing you to scrape the smooth surface as before. It is near enough to the surface to give your cows full advantage of the roughness and deep enough to remain effective for years. It greatly aids in heat detection.

And the good news is that it is reasonably priced. You have the choice of doing it yourself or having us do it for you. We offer service right to your door. Call us for more details.

Original "Spreading Action"® tines give better coverage at much higher speeds, cutting labor and tractor time by as much as 50%. Adjusts without tools to provide the right penetration for a big variety of jobs!

PASTURES: Increases quality and quantity of feed from pasture. Aerates to stimulate growth and improve moisture penetration. Scatters droppings, reducing parasites. Prepares soil for overseeding without disturbihg existing growth. Works in seed and fertilizer. Many owners report pasture yield increases of 15%.

SHREDS STALKS: Shreds and spreads stalks in spring ahead of no till and ridge till planting.

BROADCASTING SMALL GRAINS AND GRASSES: University of Illinois found overseeding by broadcasting followed by a Fuerst Harrow a superior combination, out-performing equipment costing more than 10 times as much. Pulled behind the broadcaster, it covers seed to desired depth in one time-saving operation.

HERBICIDE INCORPORATION: You don't need expensive implements to get uniform herbicide incorporation. A Fuerst Harrow behind a disk or cultivator saves a pass over your fields, levels and prepares excellent seedbeds. At high speeds the harrow unloads trash as it works.

1989 BARN PAINTING
Latest Developments

1. PREPARATION - High volume water blasting at 1,000 lb. pressure re-surfaces barn siding into a smooth (like new) appearance!
   a. Performed by professionals quickly at reasonable cost.
   b. By yourself with your own or rented equipment.
   c. Or other more conventional methods.
2. APPLICATION - To insure better adherence to this super prepared surface, use the best fine bristle brush in four directions to evenly distribute the recommended mil thickness of seal coat coverage.
3. SPECIALIZATION - Every barn is different but generally it's best to use a high quality mildew resistant product, specially formulated to meet the requirements of this partially weathered wood that was and will be weather stressed.
4. WARNING - The modified oil latex is less effective as a wood preserver and actually increases nail & metal deterioration. Deal with home people. At their rates, I could double mine.

New Patz® slide of COR-TEN® steel resists corrosion

COR-TEN steel provides atmospheric corrosion resistance for longer slide life.

Patz COR-TEN steel slides are painted to further protect against corrosion. COR-TEN steel holds paint longer than ordinary steel. If the paint is scratched, COR-TEN steel forms a tightly adherent oxide to "heal" itself.

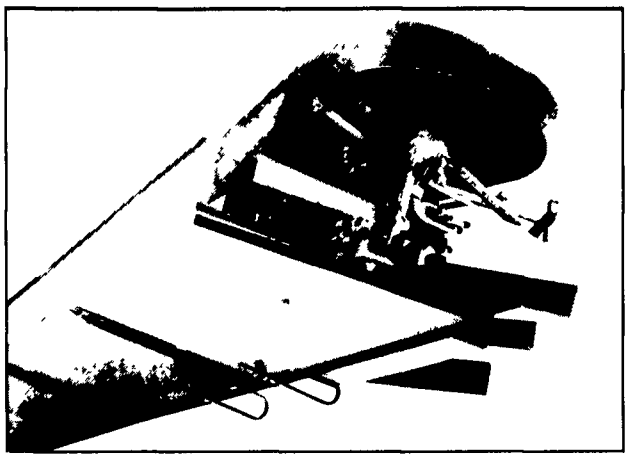
COR-TEN steel is stronger than mild steel. The COR-TEN steel slide is welded to a 4½-inch by 6⅝-inch COR-TEN center box beam for extra rigidity.

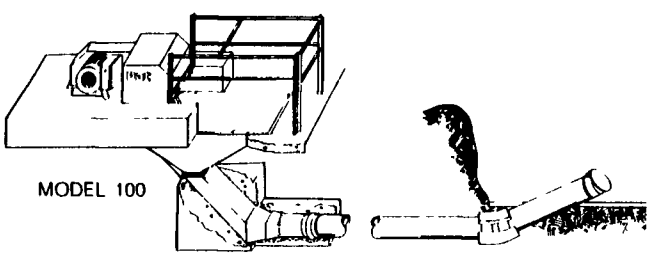
The COR-TEN steel return slide lip is standard equipment. It helps keep the area clean.

Patz can build slides to various widths and lengths. Ask your Patz dealer for details.

Ask your Patz dealer about the new 10-year warranty on COR-TEN steel slides.

COR-TEN is a registered trademark of U.S. Steel Corp.





Why Patz is No. 1

- Durable Patz hook-and-eye link chain Progression forging builds extra strength into hook-and-eye link contact points Final heat treating increases hardness, strength and wear resistance
- Four-tooth sprocket drives every link behind the hook--the link's thickest and strongest point
- Chain flexibility for various layouts
- Select 2" flites for solid manure or 4" high flites for slurry manure ¼-inch-thick flites are welded to Patz links ½-inch-thick wear shoes extend flite life
- Three drive unit sizes match your gutter length and allow expansion
- Corner wheel top-and-bottom flanges guide the chain around the corner. Corner wheel assemblies remove easily for service without concrete breakout
- Heavier XH link available for extremely long pulls

Patz®

Precision Feeding System Speaks 5 Languages

KANSAS CITY, MO — Dairy farmers can now feed cows more precisely and more productively than ever before, thanks to a new feeding system so advanced it speaks five languages.

The new RationMaster® Plus™ computerized feeding system is available from Alfa-Laval Agri, Inc., a Kansas City-based dairy equipment and supply company.

According to J. Mark Juett, marketing manager for Alfa-Laval, the new RationMaster® Plus™ feeder is a third-generation enhancement of the basic RationMaster II, the most widely used feeder.

"Every RationMaster provides individual on-demand feeding," Juett said. "But we've built 16 times the power and many more features into the RationMaster® Plus™. We wanted our customers to be able to customize a ration for every cow in the herd — either manually or automatically.

"We call it a precision feeding system, because it helps dairymen make the most efficient use of feed possible. There's virtually no wasted or uneaten feed. Each cow receives precisely what she needs for maximum production without over- or under-feeding," Juett said.

Some of the new or improved functions of the RationMaster® Plus™ include:

• An Active Production File containing complete feeding, breeding and lactation information on every cow in the herd. The RationMaster® Plus™ updates this information daily to "challenge-feed" each cow for maximum production, beginning with the first feed build-up prior to calving. This file also generates a number of valuable management reports, including an Action List which notifies the dairyman whenever a cow is due for calving, insemination, preg check, etc.

• Feeding programs that automatically adjust as production changes. The operator can either choose a present fixed-step program or design customized feeding tables and "tie" them to actual production. Then, as production levels change, the RationMaster® Plus™ system will recalculate each cow's ration for maximum efficiency.

• Adjustable dispensing rates. RationMaster ® Plus™ lets the operator control feed delivery rates right from the processor. This reduces trips to the feeding station to recalibrate and makes it possible to match the dispensing rate to each cow's ability to consume a particular feedstuff.

• Feeds four feedstuffs per cow, eight per herd.

• Simple, menu-driven programs. By following on-screen commands, anyone can easily operate the RationMaster Plus with no previous computer experience.

• Five-language capability. A simple command converts operation from English to Spanish, German, French or Italian.

The RationMaster® Plus™ Computerized Feeding System from Alfa-Laval Agri, Inc. provides individual on-demand feeding. A ration can be customized for every cow in the herd.

The RationMaster ® Plus™ system offers true on-demand feeding. According to Juett, university studies have shown that this feeding method can increase feed consumption by as much as five percent over other systems, improve feed utilization, and reduce incidents of rumen upset and twisted stomachs.

"To succeed in the dairy business," Juett said, "you have to achieve a high yield per cow while using your farm's resources efficiently. And since about half the cost of producing a gallon of milk goes into feed, more efficient feeding methods can make a big difference on your bottom line. With the RationMaster® Plus™, dairymen can get the most from their feed and their cows. And that adds up to big savings in any language."

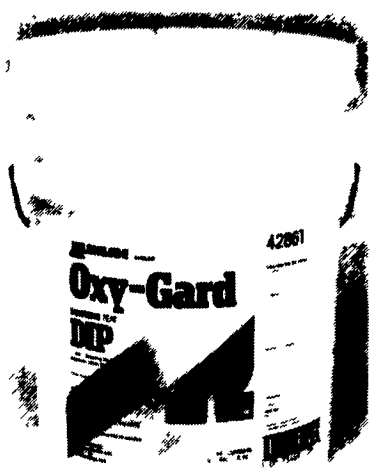
Teat Dip Helps Control Mastitis-Causing Organisms



Oxy-Gard is a new peroxide-based teat dip introduced by Klenzade, a service of Ecolab Inc. The dip requires a 15-second contact time to reduce gram positive and negative bacteria counts by more than 99.999 percent. Oxy-Gard is a "residue safe" teat dip, and the active ingredients and emollient are the in the generally recognized as safe (GRAS) FDA category.

ST. PAUL, MN — Dairy farmers have a new tool to help control mastitis-causing organisms. Klenzade, a service of Ecolab Inc., has introduced Oxy-Gard, a fast-acting, broad-spectrum germicidal pre- and post-milking peroxide-based teat dip.

Pre-dip applications of the hydrogen peroxide/lactic acid based product require only a 15-second contact time to reduce both gram positive and gram negative bacteria counts by more than 99.999 percent. Low-level iodine and chlorhexidine dips require 30 to 60 seconds to achieve the same level of reduction against Staphylococcus aureus.

When used as a pre-dip, Oxy-Gard meets the PMO code requirements for treatment with a sanitizing solution just prior to milking.

Oxy-Gard is a "residue safe" teat dip. The active ingredients and emollient present in the product are approved as direct food additives or are in the FDA category.

Extensive field tests indicate Oxy-Gard does not cause teat irritation in either pre-dip or post-dip applications. Field tests also indicate the product does not cause irritation to the milker's skin.

For more information about Oxy-Gard contact Klenzade, a service of Ecolab Inc., Ecolab Center, St. Paul, MN 55102, (612) 293-2233.

Cows Could Save Human Lives

BELTSVILLE, Md. — Code Red: An automobile accident victim is rushed into a hospital operating room, where doctors and nurses are "prepping" to save another life. One day in the future, their success could be due in part to an unseen volunteer - the common cow.

Cows could be the source of ultra-pure hemoglobin as a standby for blood, thanks to a technique developed independently by U.S. Department of Agriculture biochemist John R. DeLoach and other researchers.

In medical emergencies, DeLoach said, the easily stored hemoglobin could be used to carry vital oxygen to tissues throughout the human body until the victim's blood type can be determined and human blood supplies become available.

DeLoach has tested the hemoglobin on rats, goats and rabbits with no ill effects. His research was done at a veterinary toxicology laboratory of USDA's Agricultural Research Service in College Station, Texas.

"The use of ultra-pure hemoglobin from cattle wouldn't pose a risk to humans," he emphasized. "Doctors have been using animal insulin in people without any danger, and they use swine valves in human heart operations. And this technique enables us to utilize a universal blood donor - right off the ranch.

"Using this in people would only be an emergency, short-term solution -- buying time to find supplies of blood that match the person's blood type. This could be especially useful in military field hospitals that have trouble storing blood."

To obtain the hemoglobin, DeLoach uses a technique he developed to encapsulate medical drugs in red blood cells for slow release in the body.

"We can isolate 300 to 400 grams of hemoglobin in one day with this system," DeLoach said. "And our system can easily be scaled up to isolate larger quantities. Previously, you might get three to four grams of ultra-pure hemoglobin in a week.

"A grown cow has 28 liters of blood and a liter of blood has 140 grams of hemoglobin. Removing the amount of blood we're talking about from a full-grown cow is no different from a human donating a pint of blood to a blood bank."

The ultra-pure cattle hemoglobin can be freeze-dried and will remain stable for months at room temperature. It can be rapidly prepared for use by simply mixing it with sterile water.

By comparison, human blood can be stored in a refrigerator for only 30 days. Blood can be stored frozen indefinitely, but it must be thawed and mixed with glycerine for use, a process that takes hours.

Farmers Should Know About New Pesticide Laws

BY ROBERT E. LEIBY
& DAVID L. DUNBAR
Lehigh Co. Cooperative
Extension Office

New Pesticide Use Regulations

Three provisions designed to provide additional safeguards for the use of pesticides in Pennsylvania are among formal regulations issued recently by the state Department of Agriculture.

Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff says the regulations follow guidelines the department has used in implementing sections of the state's Pesticide Control Act as amended by the Lesgislature in 1986.

The regulations include:

(1) A provision for licensing all businesses engaged in the commercial or public application of pesticides in the state. This will be in addition to the present procedure for licensing individual applicators.

(2) Introduction of a registered technician category for applicator employees who work with pesticides but do not hold a commercial applicator's license.

(3) A provision that in some instances will require commercial and public applicators to notify a neighboring landowner before a pesticide is applied to a property.

Walter Peechatka, director of the Bureau of Plant Industry, says the new regulation for licensing businesses will help the Agriculture Department implement two key portions of the Pesticide Control Act -- the requirements that each business provide evidence of financial responsibility and employ at least one certified applicator.

The department is notifying commercial and public applicators of the licensing requirements.

Peechatka estimates that between 12,000 to 15,000 will be certified as registered technicians in the first year. The category will include anyone employed by a commercial or public applicator firm who handles pesticides but does not have a certified applicator's license.

Each applicant will undergo a 30-day training program outlined by the state and administered by the employer.

Under the prior notification regulations, commercial and public applicators will be required to publish a legal notice every 45 days listing municipalities in the area that will be treated with restricted-use pesticides. Area residents may contact the applicator for exact locations and will subsequently be notified of the date for spraying on any adjoining properties.

In instances where a commercial or public applicator intends to use a general-use pesticide on lawn and turfgrass or ornamental trees and shrubs, the applicators are not required to publish a legal notice. Persons desiring prior notification will be expected to contact applicators with a request to be notified of scheduled applications in their neighborhoods, according to Peechatka.

General-use pesticides are those available for purchase by the public in retail stores. Restricted-use pesticides can be sold only to licensed commercial, public, and private applicators. The private applicator classification includes farmers and ornamental nursery operators who will use the chemical on their own property.

The department also operates a program for people who are certified as medically hypersensitive to pesticides. A list of some 200 Pennsylvania residents and their addresses is currently distributed by the department to licensed applicators who are requested to voluntarily notify those individuals of applications of pesticides within 500 feet of their property.

Wolff says the state currently licenses some 6,500 commercial and public applicators and approximately 26,000 private applicators.

Each year the Agriculture Department's Bureau of Plant Industry updates a list of about 9,500 products approved for use in Pennsylvania to control plant destructive and health-threatening insects, rodents, weeds, and other pests.

Corn Test Reports

Corn tests are conducted annually throughout Pennsylvania to evaluate commercially-available hybrids. Results are summarized on the basis of length of growing season to provide one report for each of four maturity zones.

The 1990 Pennsylvania Commercial Hybrid Corn Test Reports for all four of the state's maturity zones are available in county extension offices.

The word's getting around

After 10 years of research and selection, new CIMARRON VR alfalfa is here

This is it! New CIMARRON VR is now available. This new premium alfalfa is bred from the popular variety CIMARRON, and is selected for its high-performing yield and quality characteristics—and its resistance to Verticillium wilt.

Bred from winterhardy germplasm for early spring growth, full-season production and rapid recovery, CIMARRON VR offers excellent persistence in a wide range of soils and climates.

CIMARRON VR provides an outstanding combination of resistance to all major alfalfa diseases and insects, including anthracnose (races I and II), Verticillium wilt, bacterial wilt, Fusarium wilt, common leaf spot, Phytophthora root rot, Aphanomyces root rot, Stemphylium leaf spot, pea aphids, spotted alfalfa aphids and alfalfa weevils.

CIMARRON VR—advanced technology for today's alfalfa grower.

DAIRYMEN,

Are you.....

1. Short on hay?
2. Frustrated with high hay prices?
3. Lacking a good quality hay?

If you are, then you need Master Mix® SWEET BULK 'N FLAKES.

Master Mix® SWEET BULK 'N FLAKES is a specially designed product to add bulk, palatability, texture and nutritional quality to grain-concentrate mixtures.

The major ingredient in SWEET BULK 'N FLAKES is Soybran® flakes, which is the outer covering of the soybean, which has been cooked under controlled conditions. The resulting product is a thin flake with unusual nutritional qualities, such as high digestibility.

The fiber digestibility of any feedstuff fed to dairy cows is an important nutritional consideration. Feedstuffs with high cellulose digestibility are desirable in that they add more energy to the total ration along with high levels of fiber. The following table shows this digestibility of soybran flakes in relation to other common bulky ingredients.

Master Mix®

Cellulose Digestibility of Soybran Flakes
Soybran Flakes	95%
Beet Pulp	89%
Ground Corncobs	49%
Cottonseed Hulls	25%

Master Mix®

One pound of SWEET BULK 'N FLAKES replaces 1½ pounds of hay.

Here are a few comments from dairymen who are using SWEET BULK 'N FLAKES.

"I bought a load of hay for $148 and the cows didn't go for it. I decided to push 5 lbs. of Sweet Bulk 'N Flakes to my fresh cows and they came up 200 lbs."

"Since I began feeding Sweet Bulk 'N Flakes at noon instead of hay, I have picked up over 100 lbs. of milk per day."

"I know what I get every time I order Sweet Bulk 'N Flakes and I don't have nearly as much money tied up as if I was buying a six-ton load of hay."

Contact Your Master Mix Dealer To See How SWEET BULK 'N FLAKES Could Be Worked Into Your Current Feeding Program.

Dairy Tips By Dr. John Clark, P.A.S.

Purina Mills Dairy Consultant

LOOK AT THE COWS

The feeding of dairy cattle has become very sophisticated over the past few years. Quick laboratory analyses of feedstuffs, use of computers for formulating rations, and automatic feeding systems are in widespread use. However, the actual ration consumed by the cow may be quite different than that on the computer print-out. Simple things such as day-to-day variation in forage moisture or quality, variation in average dry matter intake, or malfunctioning feeding systems may foil the best attempts to provide a balanced ration.
Ultimately, the cow is the final measure of ration adequacy. Actual dry matter intake and the cows body condition must be monitored to see if proper nutrition is being provided. If not, recalculate the ration to bring it into balance. The animals will tell you if it's right by showing better production, cow condition & health.

DAIRYMAN!! GUARD YOUR PROFITS NOW!!!

Your doing great if your cows are milking well on the poor quality forage of last season. However, to milk well on these feeds could really stress a cows body and mineral reserves. Guard your profits by feeding high quality Purina minerals to make sure your cows will clean at freshening, rebreed well, and stay healthy the entire lactation. Purina's lineup of Dairy Minerals sold in this area are designed to balance the large variety of feeding programs used in the Northeast. Only the highest quality ingredients are used in manufacturing Purina Dairy Minerals and the whole line is backed by Purina Mills Quality Guarantee. Last but not least, compare your current mineral to Purina, you'll find Purina very price competitive.

Purina Dairy Suppl-Minerals balance low to no concentrate programs for macro minerals, trace minerals and vitamins.

Purina Dairy Minerals balance macro minerals and provide insurance levels of all essential trace minerals when a concentrate is being used.
